Editor's Column

STUART R. PADDOCK

We cannot let go unnoticed in this column mention of the recent death of Dr. C. A. Starck of Palatine. He was our personal friend for over 60 years. He was also more than a friend to hundreds of families of this area from the "horse and buggy" days to the present time.

During recent years his friends have frequently suggested that the entire community join in some recognition for the care he has given them and their families. Each time we made plans for such an event, the grapevine brought back word that the doctor preferred that no such recognition be attempted.

Today, those friends have the opportunity to join in a memorial to his memory.

In a mass of accumulated mail that has been forwarded to us we find a clipping from a Bluffton, Indiana, newspaper telling of the election of Homer J. Byrd for his third six-year term as circuit judge. He had previously refused to become a Democratic candidate for the Indiana Supreme court.

Although an avowed Democrat during his residence in Arlington Heights, he was elected to a number of local offices, including village trustee, local judge, etc.

It was in 1912, a Presidential year, that he proved for the first and only time a Democrat could be elected a member of the county board from a suburban town.

Spending two months in the South, we have become acquainted with some of the thinking of its residents. The same week that Charleston was holding an observance of the firing upon Ft. Sumter, an editorial appeared in one of the papers which read in part as follows:

"Southerners managed to survive four years of war and 10 years of Yankee occupation. The ordeal ahead (desegregation) may be even more dark and harrowing. Angry, hurt, and out-numbered, white Southerners will have to seek new ways to save their civilization. We are confident that despite such surrenders as bitter as Appomattox they will find ways to endure these, too, without yielding the inner sanctuaries of the white man's culture."

We spent an hour today in the editorial office of a newspaper that started publication in 1803, 157 years ago and 25 years before a white man settled in Wheeling township.

We have frequently alluded to the age of this paper—88 years as the first suburban newspaper in Cook county.

SEEK COMPROMISE ON PROBLEM AREA

STATE TROOPER shines light in face of Carpentersville motorist who was thrown from his car after it was hit by semi-trailer truck last Thursday on the Northwest Tollway west of Illinois 58. The driver, Meral M. Schoeben, 50, of Rt. 2, Box 38, Carpentersville, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community hospital. Police said he cut in front of the semi he was passing too soon and caught his car on the front end, spinning out of control and twice being hit by the truck driven by Matthew W. Bonnema of Chicago.

Tavern Owner Sues For Village Licenses

Benjamin Micklevitz, owner of Benny's tavern, 640 W. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights, sued the village Friday for liquor, restaurant, cigaret and juke box licenses.

His Circuit court complaint charges that the village's refusal to issue him the licenses is "illegal, unjust, contrary to law, wilful, and arbitrary."

The suit reports that Edward G. Carlisle, village president and liquor control commissioner for Arlington Heights, informed Micklevitz by letter on April 3, 1960, that the village would not renew the tavern's liquor license.

MICKLEVITZ asserts in the suit that this stand was taken without any reasonable or just cause."

When the village on June 6 denied his application for renewal of his liquor license for the year 1960, Micklevitz appealed to the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

The state commission on Dec. 15 ordered the village to renew his license, the suit says. The state said the village's refusal to renew the license was "not justified under the evidence presented to the commission."

However, the village has refused to obey the state's order to renew Micklevitz's liquor license, according to the suit.

IN ADDITION, Village Clerk Mildred Pearson on January 2 refused to accept fees from Micklevitz for restaurant, cigaret, and juke box licenses, the suit says.

The suit asks the court to order the village to issue him the licenses.

It says Micklevitz has been an Arlington Heights resident for more than 10 years, has operated the tavern since 1953, and has invested more than $10,000 in tavern and restaurant equipment and furnishings.

Named defendants are the village, Carlisle, the village clerk, and Leonard Hanson, village manager. Hanson said Tuesday the licenses were not issued because the tavern is in violation by being too close to Arlington high school.

Appoint Leaders In Mothers March

Four local women have been named Zone Colonels to help organize the 1961 Mothers' March of Dimes in Arlington Heights, it was announced this week by Mrs. L. W. Calderwood, Mothers' March chairman here.

Named Colonels were Mrs. Robert Bishop, 530 S. Chestnut; Mrs. Leland Linn, 130 S. Fernandez; Mrs. Richard Bronwell, 403 N. Douglas, and Mrs. Theodore Samuelson, 727 N. Chestnut.

The four leaders are recruiting women volunteers to take part in the annual house-to-house appeal for funds to prevent crippling diseases and aid polio patients.

THIS YEAR the Mothers' March will be held Tuesday, Jan. 31, from 7 to 8 p.m. The March climaxes the month-long March of Dimes campaign.

With the help of these dedicated volunteer workers, we hope to enlist enough mothers to call on every home in Arlington Heights this year," Mrs. Calderwood said.

"The need for funds is great because we must continue our assistance to polio victims for whom the polio vaccine came too late and those new sufferers we can expect as long as millions of Americans remain unvaccinated."

Anyone in Arlington Heights wishing to be a volunteer Marching Mother may phone Mrs. Calderwood at CL 9-2420.

Village Parking Proposals Adopted

A program recommended by a special three-man parking committee appointed by the Arlington Heights board of trustees was being instituted in the village this week.

The committee recommended January 16 that no additional 12-hour parking meters be installed on any improved street and that a program for the removal of existing 12-hour meters be started.

COMPOSED OF former trustee Robert Bishop and trustees Eugene Schlickman and William Sauer, the committee also agreed that all day parking should not be permitted on any improved street.

"All day meters have been in use on the streets ever since parking meters were first installed," the committee reported. "Several more have been installed in the downtown area when the streets were widened.

"According to the latest information available, there are presently 540 12-hour meters in use. We realize usage of these meters has become an accepted practice and that stopping the practice would create confusion."

THE COMMITTEE therefore recommended no more 12-hour meters be installed and asked the removal program be started as additional off-street parking facilities are made available.

Letter Mailed To Officials

The executive committee of the Arlington Heights Park Manor Homeowners association this week directed a letter to 15 village officials in a final effort to implement an improvement program for the 80-acre subdivision.

In its letter, the committee proposed a full program of storm sewer and paving, sanitary sewer and water mains be planned in two steps as follows:

(1) immediate installation of sanitary sewer and water mains, and

(2) completion of the program by installation of storm sewer and paving at a future date when the area is suitably built up and a comprehensive storm sewer is a reality.

THE LETTER, mailed Tuesday, was prompted by the appearance last week of association members before the board of local improvements, according to Donald Burdick, association president.

The board Thursday indicated willingness to delete sidewalks from the improvement project, but refused to budge from its position that the entire program be undertaken at one time.

Park Manor home owners insist they cannot afford the whole program. They say village officials quoted them an estimated cost of $30 to $40 per frontage foot last May, but that the cost is actually more likely to run between $60 and $80.

"THE ENTIRE program will literally bankrupt many of us," Burdick told the Herald. "As the project has been proposed to us, we'll be paying in excess of $80 a month.

"This would mean that at the end of 10 years the cost of improving a 100-foot lot would add up to $10,000. Park Manor residents don't have that kind of money."

Estimates of the cost of the project, submitted by Consoer, Townsend and associates, are divided into three parts: water mains, $157,489.30; sanitary sewer, $150,959.39, and storm sewer and paving, $708,055.25. Total cost is $1,016,503.94.

"IT BECOMES necessary for us to seek to modify the proposed improvement program to fit our own pocketbooks, realizing that we would not like to see the entire program abandoned," the committee's letter stated.

The letter cited the improvement board's objection to a partial program; that is, if only sanitary sewer and water mains were installed there would be a seven per cent increase in cost to restore the roads to present condition.

"The seven per cent increases the cost of this portion of the program $1.52 per front foot, which brings the total to $24.62, a far cry from a possible $75 per front foot the full program would demand," the letter reasoned.

ANOTHER BOARD point was that sanitary sewer and water mains would cause home building to be stimulated, bringing in heavy construction trucks to compound the problem of sub-standard roads.

The association answered in its letter: "We feel that more costly damage would be done by construction trucks traveling over an improved road than over an unimproved road.

"It would seem sensible to wait for permanent roads until the bulk of construction is completed."

PARK MANOR home owners petitioned the board several months ago for special assessments to provide the development in the southeastern portion of the village with water, streets and sewers. The 50-home area is being served by septic tanks and wells.

The home owners' letter concluded by saying "it is our hope that your recommendation will be predicated on what we are able to afford and also on what immediate improvements are needed for health and safety.

"We feel that our proposal is completely reasonable and, frankly, we can see no alternative."

ANOTHER hearing on the controversial project has been scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 23, at 8 p.m.

Suburb GOP Revolt Looms

Committeemen Rebel At City Leadership

A revolt is under way in the ranks of the Cook county GOP Central Committee to gain more voice for suburban Republicans in party circles.

The first salvo was fired Monday and before the smoke had cleared from a room in Chicago's Bismark hotel 25 angry suburban GOP Committeemen took a walk.

The stated reason for the en masse departure of the Country Towns Committeemen, as the township leaders are sometimes called, was dissatisfaction with what they felt was a too light censure of those Republican legislators who aided the Democrats in electing Paul Powell as speaker of the house.

FRANCIS X. Connell, chairman of the Central Committee, read a statement blackballing the mavericks "unless or until these two men prove themselves worthy of Republican recognition."

The suburban contingent objected to the "unless or until" phrase, feeling the defectors should be booted out once and for all with no door open for return.

But some northwest suburban committeemen feel the censure episode was merely a fuse that ignited a long smoldering resentment of many of their number against the present palace guard or "the boys downtown" as some call them.

WILLIAM Erickson, vice-chairman of the Country Towns organization, a county commissioner, and Evanston township committeeman revealed the story behind the story when he told Paddock Publications: "We served notice as of this week that the suburbs are a power to be reckoned with. We deliver the vote in our area while they're selling out downtown. It's time all Republicans recognized the strength of the suburbs."

Sherman Canty, Elk Grove township committeeman, said, "There's a feeling in the Country Towns that the fellows in Chicago have been too bi-partisan in their association with the Democrats."

"It's a fact we won the legislature by one vote, and it follows we should have had the speakership," said Canty.

"We don't go for the kind of tactics used at the Central Committee meeting," said Henry Busse, committeeman for Wheeling Township. He noted that Chairman Connell, Chicago's 37th ward leader, "tried to steam roll his way through the meeting."

DEPLORING the bedlam prior to the suburban walk-out, Jack Reedy, Schaumburg township committeeman told Paddock Publications: "It's no wonder they don't let the press in on these meetings. There is no order . . . no protocol. A man can just stand up and holler a motion or direct a comment to the chair without being recognized. The conduct of the meeting was the poorest I've ever seen."

One suburban committeeman, who asked to go unnamed, said he was all for the Country Towns breaking off from the Central Committee. "How can you keep the enthusiasm of a purely volunteer suburban organization high, when the Republican 'pros' in Chicago are selling us down the river?" he asked.

The committeeman added that he felt at least half of Chicago's 50 ward leaders would go with the 30 suburban committeemen if a break was made. "They're just as fed up as we are with the way things are being run downtown," he said.

Chamber of Commerce

Dinner-Dance Is Wednesday

FINAL PLANS for the annual Arlington Heights chamber of commerce Spring dinner-dance are discussed Wednesday by Donald Hartman, toastmaster for the event, and Donald Hess, the chamber's executive manager. The dinner-dance will be held Wednesday, Feb. 1, at the Rolling Green country club.

Donald Hartman and William Griffith, co-chairmen of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce annual Spring dinner-dance, proudly announced this week that "everything is ready" for the Wednesday, Feb. 1 event.

Hartman, who will serve as toastmaster of the affair, said he anticipates an attendance of near 250 persons. The dinner-dance will be held at the Rolling Green country club beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Griffith revealed dancing music will be provided from 8:30 p.m. on by Ralph Berger and his five-piece orchestra. The evening's menu calls for a full course prime rib of beef dinner, Griffith noted.

INSTALLATION of new chamber officers will take place following the dinner. Elected to office recently were Robert Y. Paddock, president; W. C. Wolf, vice president, and Roy Benson, secretary-treasurer.

New members of the board of directors are Benson, Robert Walters, Irving Robbin, Nick Barkulis and Edward Mills. All were elected January 3 at the board of directors first 1961 meeting.

Rev. George B. Roth, assistant at St. James Catholic church, Arlington Heights, will give the pre-dinner invocation. The chamber has contracted for the use of all club facilities the evening of February 1, Hartman said.

BOTH HARTMAN and Griffith stressed that all residents in the area are invited to attend the dinner-dance. Tickets may be obtained from chamber officers, directors or at the chamber office, CL 3-1703.

Invitations to the dinner-dance have been sent to village officials and chambers of commerce in Des Plaines, Mt. Prospect, Palatine and other communities.

Tavern Owner Sues For Village Licenses

Benjamin Micklevitz, owner of Benny's tavern, 640 W. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights, sued the village Friday for liquor, restaurant, cigaret and juke box licenses.

His Circuit court complaint charges that the village's refusal to issue him the licenses is "illegal, unjust, contrary to law, wilful, and arbitrary."

The suit reports that Edward G. Carlisle, village president and liquor control commissioner for Arlington Heights, informed Micklevitz by letter on April 3, 1960, that the village would not renew the tavern's liquor license.

MICKLEVITZ asserts in the suit that this stand was taken without any reasonable or just cause."

When the village on June 6 denied his application for renewal of his liquor license for the year 1960, Micklevitz appealed to the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

The state commission on Dec. 15 ordered the village to renew his license, the suit says. The state said the village's refusal to renew the license was "not justified under the evidence presented to the commission."

However, the village has refused to obey the state's order to renew Micklevitz's liquor license, according to the suit.

IN ADDITION, Village Clerk Mildred Pearson on January 2 refused to accept fees from Micklevitz for restaurant, cigaret, and juke box licenses, the suit says.

The suit asks the court to order the village to issue him the licenses.

It says Micklevitz has been an Arlington Heights resident for more than 10 years, has operated the tavern since 1953, and has invested more than $10,000 in tavern and restaurant equipment and furnishings.

Named defendants are the village, Carlisle, the village clerk, and Leonard Hanson, village manager. Hanson said Tuesday the licenses were not issued because the tavern is in violation by being too close to Arlington high school.

Appoint Leaders In Mothers March

Four local women have been named Zone Colonels to help organize the 1961 Mothers' March of Dimes in Arlington Heights, it was announced this week by Mrs. L. W. Calderwood, Mothers' March chairman here.

Named Colonels were Mrs. Robert Bishop, 530 S. Chestnut; Mrs. Leland Linn, 130 S. Fernandez; Mrs. Richard Bronwell, 403 N. Douglas, and Mrs. Theodore Samuelson, 727 N. Chestnut.

The four leaders are recruiting women volunteers to take part in the annual house-to-house appeal for funds to prevent crippling diseases and aid polio patients.

Anyone in Arlington Heights wishing to be a volunteer Marching Mother may phone Mrs. Calderwood at CL 9-2420.

Village Parking Proposals Adopted

A program recommended by a special three-man parking committee appointed by the Arlington Heights board of trustees was being instituted in the village this week.

The committee recommended January 16 that no additional 12-hour parking meters be installed on any improved street and that a program for the removal of existing 12-hour meters be started.

COMPOSED OF former trustee Robert Bishop and trustees Eugene Schlickman and William Sauer, the committee also agreed that all day parking should not be permitted on any improved street.

"All day meters have been in use on the streets ever since parking meters were first installed," the committee reported. "Several more have been installed in the downtown area when the streets were widened.

"According to the latest information available, there are presently 540 12-hour meters in use. We realize usage of these meters has become an accepted practice and that stopping the practice would create confusion."

THE COMMITTEE therefore recommended no more 12-hour meters be installed and asked the removal program be started as additional off-street parking facilities are made available.

In a letter to every householder this week, the board of education of school district 25 said it contemplates "no serious difficulty" in assuming responsibility for the direction of the recently merged Wilson district 24.

"The board of education and administration of this district expect to be able to assume responsibility of Wilson school in somewhat the manner used repeatedly in opening a new school in district 25," the board pointed out.

"In fact, the Wilson school has an adequate organization and a competent staff which can be fused with district 25 without serious difficulty," the letter said.

THE COOK county board of school trustees approved the merger of the two districts January 3. Some 89 per cent of the voters in district 24 had petitioned for annexation to nine-school district 25.

The 500 Wilson students, two-thirds of whom live in Arlington Heights, will thus be able to take advantage of excellent facilities in district 25. District 24 was located on the village's north side extending as far north as Hintz rd.

"District 25 does, of course, assume responsibility for a larger area," the board's letter continued. "However, it is felt that there is, in the long run, a considerable advantage to the community in keeping the school district's boundaries and those of the village similar.

"While any contemplated building program must, of course, consider the needs of the overall area, it should be remembered that the assessed valuation and bonding power have been increased.

"WHAT THE future ability of the enlarged district will be depends upon the nature of the growth in the added area, and it is quite possible development of the area would make for a more adequate tax base for schools.

"At any rate, the board of education accepts this added responsibility and solicits the support and cooperation of the people in both areas in their efforts to serve well the people of the total community."

The letter also noted the Wilson board of education will continue to operate its school system until June 30, the end of the fiscal year. For purposes of elections and referendums, however, district 25 includes the territory in both districts as of now.

Voters from both of the previously constituted districts will participate in district 25's school board election April 8 and in a building referendum contemplated for the spring of 1961. (AF

Ready-Mix Relocation Hearing Set

Discussion on the attempt to relocate Consumers company, a ready-mix concrete plant, from busy Northwest hwy. is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 4, at a hearing before the Arlington Heights zoning board of appeals.

Village manager L. A. Hanson has asked for a zoning variation at the village's inactive sewage treatment plant to permit Consumers company to move there from its present location at 301 W. Northwest hwy.

THE SEWAGE plant is situated in the extreme southeastern corner of the village. The 9.5 acre plant, inoperative since 1957, is zoned for public use.

The hearing will be held at 10:30 a.m. in the village hall council room.

Ask Addition For Medical Building

Dr. Robert C. Kloempken was advised Saturday to seek the Arlington Heights plan commission's approval of his request to build an addition to the medical building at Evergreen ave. and Central rd.

THE VILLAGE zoning board of appeals suggested the course of action Saturday after voting to dismiss the doctor's petition for a zoning variation.

The board ruled to dismiss the request for variation on the grounds it lacked jurisdiction. Village attorney Stephen Jurco said the board could not "grant a variation on a variation."

DR. KLOEMPKEN owns the medical building on lot 171 and sought the variation to permit construction of an addition on lot 172. Both lots are now zoned for residential use.

Attorney Jurco said a change in zoning from R-3 to B-1 is needed. He noted the plan commission is the proper body to deal with the rezoning. A hearing before the commission was scheduled for 8 p. m. Wednesday, Feb. 15.

Caucus Candidate Forms May Be Obtained at Bank

Questionnaires to be used for presenting names of prospective candidates for village office to the Arlington Heights Caucus have been made available at the Arlington Heights National Bank, 14 E. Campbell.

This announcement was made Tuesday by Donald Whiting, chairman of the Caucus candidate recommendation committee He said the questionnaire supply is accompanied by important information on the Caucus.

"CAUCUS OFFICERS decided to place questionnaires in a public place so that valuable time could be saved," Whiting said. He pointed out it takes a good deal of time to distribute the questionnaires once prospective candidates' names have been received.

Any resident of the village wishing to obtain a questionnaire may do so by asking Miss Florence Brehm or Mrs. Ruth Van Wakeman, bank employees, Whiting noted.

HE NOTED the recommendation committee will accept names of candidates through Monday, Jan. 30. The two weeks prior to the final public Caucus meeting on February 13 will be used for interviewing office aspirants.

The recommendation committee will make at least two recommendations for five office vacancies at the public meeting. Persons attending the meeting will then elect those to form the Caucus ticket.

Whiting told the Herald the recommendation committee has mailed 98 questionnaires and interviewed 22 potential candidates to date. He said the committee hopes for an attendance of 1,000 residents at the February 13 public meeting.

TO BE FILLED in April's election are the seats of village president Edward G. Carlisle, trustees Robert Bukowski, Melvin Kurtz and Wendell Prunty, and village clerk Mildred Pearson.

The Caucus organization operates under the premise "the office seeks the man."

Lot Size Variations Are Denied

The Arlington Heights zoning board of appeals voted Saturday to deny the petition of Eugene W. Pilawski requesting frontage variations for 10 lots on the west side of Fernandez st. between Grove and George.

The board ruled the waving of frontage standards would represent a "change contrary to the comprehensive zoning ordinance, which contemplates larger lots with larger homes."

Pilawski, part owner of the property, asked the board to permit 60 foot frontage measurements. Present zoning calls for 75 foot frontages.

Where you save DOES make a difference!
ARLINGTON HEIGHTS FEDERAL SAVINGS & LOAN ASSOCIATION
$20,000,000 in assets
$564,000 in dividends to 13,276 savers!

Arlington Federal Marks Record Year for Savings

Savers at Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan association earned more than a half-million dollars in dividends during 1960 -- an increase of 50 per cent over earnings in 1959.

Loans to families to purchase homes reached $5,772,000 during 1960. Of this amount, approximately $2,147,000 was invested in the financing of 85 new homes.

ASSETS OF Arlington Heights Federal Savings went above the $20,000,000 mark by the end of 1960 -- an increase of nearly 25 per cent over year-end assets of $16,100,000 in 1959.

Savings capital mounted to $17,000,000, or 27½ per cent above savings capital a year ago. Savers increased in number by 18 per cent, from 11,246 to 13,276.

These were some of the key facts and figures presented by president Paul E. Collins at the annual meeting of the association January 18 in the community room of the Federal Savings offices at 25 E. Campbell st. in downtown Arlington Heights.

"These substantial gains are all the more remarkable when one considers the decline in real estate activity in 1960 and the fact that the first year of the 'soaring 60s' fell below expectations in many lines of business," Collins said.

NOTING THAT the investment by the association of more than $2 million in new homes during 1960 matched almost exactly its investment in new homes in 1959, Collins observed that this achievement is particularly impressive when compared with an 18 to 20 per cent decline in home building nationally. "It represents a tremendous contribution to community growth, progress, and prosperity," Collins said.

The payment of $564,000 to savers as dividends during 1960 is a significant addition to the community's financial stability of its families, the Federal Savings president pointed out.

Though the outlook for the year ahead is uncertain, Collins expressed the belief that demand for home loans should remain firm in this area. While fewer new homes may be built, the sale of older established homes should remain firm because of the history of transfers to and from the area of key corporate personnel.

Despite the uncertainties, Collins told officers and shareholders to anticipate another excellent savings year, with families continuing their strides toward the building up of nest eggs for the future.

AMONG OFFICE developments during 1960 was the announcement that the association has expanded its utilization of the second floor of the Williamsburg Colonial building erected in 1958. Approximately half of the second floor is now in use for association business.

Part of this floor space has been taken by the installation of modern high-speed electronic equipment to increase the efficiency of record keeping and to reduce substantially the time required for customer transactions.

Reelected to three-year terms on the Federal Savings Board of Directors were Virgil K. Horath, William H. Spomer, and Paul E. Collins. (B9

Constitutional Convention Is Overdue for Illinois

by REP. BERNARD PESKIN

Annual Legislative Sessions. Judicial Reform. Revenue Reform. Short Ballot. 18 year old Vote. Non-Presidential Year Election of our State Officers. Legalized Bingo.

These are only a few of the proposals I'm sure will be submitted to the General Assembly this year as Constitutional Reform measures.

They are, each of them, important measures. Important either to the state as a whole in order to provide for better state government, or important to large segments of the population as individuals. Each of these proposals have large groups of supporters and each has large groups in opposition. Each of these proposals has been presented before.

OF THE proposals listed above, only two have, in previous sessions of the legislature, received the required 2/3 vote in each House in order that they might be voted upon at referendum by the voters of our state. Both were defeated - judicial reform in 1958 and revenue reform in 1956, 1952, and on five other occasions during this century.

It is good that our Constitution is difficult to amend. This protects us against the voters yielding to temporary emotions or impassioned campaigns. While it prevents us from immediately conforming our laws to suit our times, it benefits us in that it prevents us, to a large degree, in conforming our times to suit our laws. This does not impede progress, but rather, promotes it. Laws are easier to change than are our times.

What it does point up, however, is the great need to revise so much of our constitution. It points out that the Illinois Constitution, unlike our Federal Constitution, is not an enduring thing. The Federal Constitution is a broad, flexible thing while the Illinois Constitution is inflexible and narrow in its scope.

LET'S FACE IT. The drafters of the Constitution of the United States were able to call on the best brains from 13 colonies - articulate and educated men were available and did serve at the Constitutional Convention. That document then had to be ratified by individual states, and underwent additional scrutiny.

It was not so in Illinois. We have had three different Constitutions since our state was founded in 1818. We had only a handful of truly educated men to call on in those years when Illinois was a largely agricultural state. We just didn't have the calibre of men who could or would devote the necessary time to drafting an enduring instrument - one that could meet the challenge of changing times.

Today the picture is different. Illinois is one of the greatest industrial states in the nation. In my judgment, Illinois has the best brains in the country serving its industrial, financial and business community. Three of the finest universities in the world are located within its boundaries. All of this is available to us for the asking.

A CONSTITUTIONAL Convention, if held in Illinois today, could bring forth a document of which we could all be proud. A document with which we all could live. We could have a new Constitution which would meet the challenge of changing times within its own framework and not burden Illinois' citizens with attempting to sort out truth from fiction every four years when controversial amendments are submitted to them.

The Illinois League of Women Voters has undertaken the project of convincing the Legislature that it should call such a convention. I'm hopeful they will be able to enlist the support of other organizations. It's time we stopped trying to do a piecemeal job of revising our Constitution and sat down to do a job on the whole thing. Where you save DOES make a difference!
ARLINGTON HEIGHTS FEDERAL SAVINGS & LOAN ASSOCIATION
$564,000 in dividends to 13,276 savers!

Arlington Federal Marks Record Year for Savings

Savers at Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan association earned more than a half-million dollars in dividends during 1960 -- an increase of 50 per cent over earnings in 1959.

Loans to families to purchase homes reached $5,772,000 during 1960. Of this amount, approximately $2,147,000 was invested in the financing of 85 new homes.

ASSETS OF Arlington Heights Federal Savings went above the $20,000,000 mark by the end of 1960 -- an increase of nearly 25 per cent over year-end assets of $16,100,000 in 1959.

Savings capital mounted to $17,000,000, or 27½ per cent above savings capital a year ago. Savers increased in number by 18 per cent, from 11,246 to 13,276.

These were some of the key facts and figures presented by president Paul E. Collins at the annual meeting of the association January 18 in the community room of the Federal Savings offices at 25 E. Campbell st. in downtown Arlington Heights.

"These substantial gains are all the more remarkable when one considers the decline in real estate activity in 1960 and the fact that the first year of the 'soaring 60s' fell below expectations in many lines of business," Collins said.

NOTING THAT the investment by the association of more than $2 million in new homes during 1960 matched almost exactly its investment in new homes in 1959, Collins observed that this achievement is particularly impressive when compared with an 18 to 20 per cent decline in home building nationally. "It represents a tremendous contribution to community growth, progress, and prosperity," Collins said.

The payment of $564,000 to savers as dividends during 1960 is a significant addition to the community's financial stability of its families, the Federal Savings president pointed out.

Though the outlook for the year ahead is uncertain, Collins expressed the belief that demand for home loans should remain firm in this area. While fewer new homes may be built, the sale of older established homes should remain firm because of the history of transfers to and from the area of key corporate personnel.

Despite the uncertainties, Collins told officers and shareholders to anticipate another excellent savings year, with families continuing their strides toward the building up of nest eggs for the future.

AMONG OFFICE developments during 1960 was the announcement that the association has expanded its utilization of the second floor of the Williamsburg Colonial building erected in 1958. Approximately half of the second floor is now in use for association business.

Part of this floor space has been taken by the installation of modern high-speed electronic equipment to increase the efficiency of record keeping and to reduce substantially the time required for customer transactions.

Reelected to three-year terms on the Federal Savings Board of Directors were Virgil K. Horath, William H. Spomer, and Paul E. Collins. (B9

Constitutional Convention Is Overdue for Illinois

Annual Legislative Sessions. Judicial Reform. Revenue Reform. Short Ballot. 18 year old Vote. Non-Presidential Year Election of our State Officers. Legalized Bingo.

These are only a few of the proposals I'm sure will be submitted to the General Assembly this year as Constitutional Reform measures.

They are, each of them, important measures. Important either to the state as a whole in order to provide for better state government, or important to large segments of the population as individuals. Each of these proposals have large groups of supporters and each has large groups in opposition. Each of these proposals has been presented before.

OF THE proposals listed above, only two have, in previous sessions of the legislature, received the required 2/3 vote in each House in order that they might be voted upon at referendum by the voters of our state. Both were defeated - judicial reform in 1958 and revenue reform in 1956, 1952, and on five other occasions during this century.

It is good that our Constitution is difficult to amend. This protects us against the voters yielding to temporary emotions or impassioned campaigns. While it prevents us from immediately conforming our laws to suit our times, it benefits us in that it prevents us, to a large degree, in conforming our times to suit our laws. This does not impede progress, but rather, promotes it. Laws are easier to change than are our times.

What it does point up, however, is the great need to revise so much of our constitution. It points out that the Illinois Constitution, unlike our Federal Constitution, is not an enduring thing. The Federal Constitution is a broad, flexible thing while the Illinois Constitution is inflexible and narrow in its scope.

LET'S FACE IT. The drafters of the Constitution of the United States were able to call on the best brains from 13 colonies - articulate and educated men were available and did serve at the Constitutional Convention. That document then had to be ratified by individual states, and underwent additional scrutiny.

It was not so in Illinois. We have had three different Constitutions since our state was founded in 1818. We had only a handful of truly educated men to call on in those years when Illinois was a largely agricultural state. We just didn't have the calibre of men who could or would devote the necessary time to drafting an enduring instrument - one that could meet the challenge of changing times.

Today the picture is different. Illinois is one of the greatest industrial states in the nation. In my judgment, Illinois has the best brains in the country serving its industrial, financial and business community. Three of the finest universities in the world are located within its boundaries. All of this is available to us for the asking.

A CONSTITUTIONAL Convention, if held in Illinois today, could bring forth a document of which we could all be proud. A document with which we all could live. We could have a new Constitution which would meet the challenge of changing times within its own framework and not burden Illinois' citizens with attempting to sort out truth from fiction every four years when controversial amendments are submitted to them.

The Illinois League of Women Voters has undertaken the project of convincing the Legislature that it should call such a convention. I'm hopeful they will be able to enlist the support of other organizations. It's time we stopped trying to do a piecemeal job of revising our Constitution and sat down to do a job on the whole thing. Air Attack Defenses Outlined for Rotary

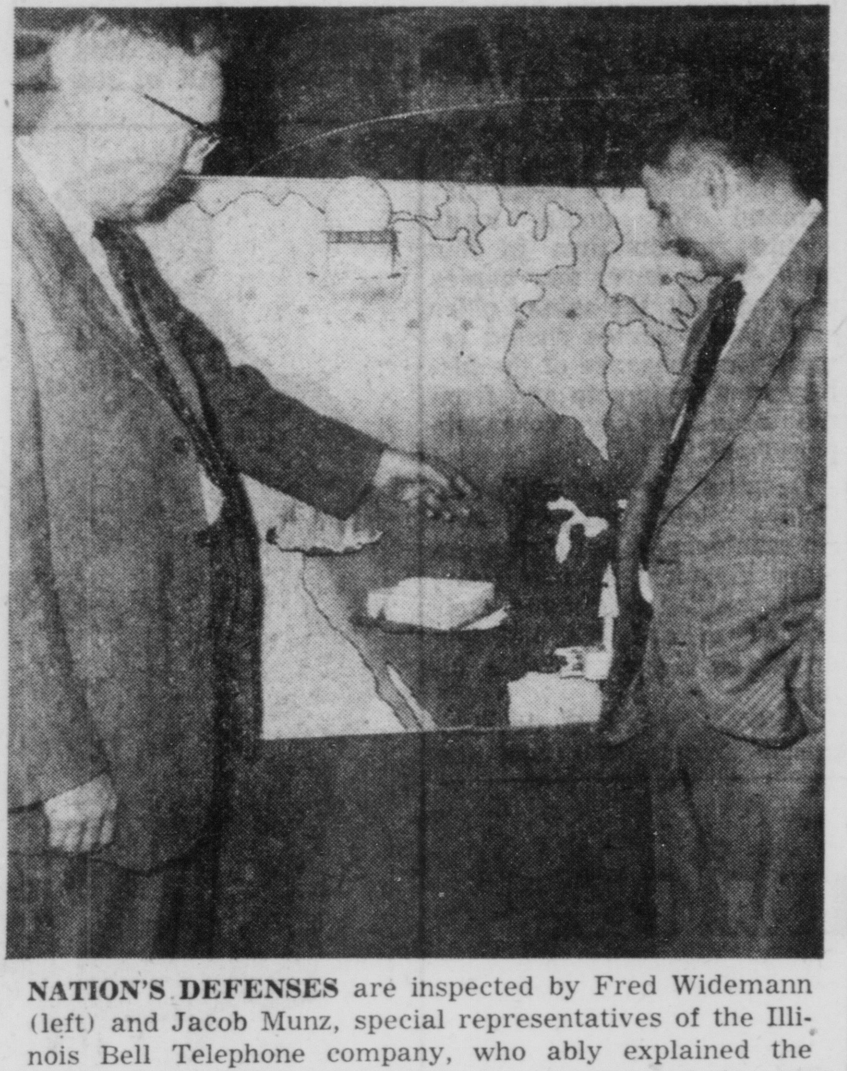
By BRUCE LADD

Members of the Arlington Heights Rotary club left a noon meeting last week with renewed confidence in the ability of the United States to defend itself in the event of an air attack.



NATION'S DEFENSES are inspected by Fred Widemann (left) and Jacob Munz, special representatives of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, who ably explained the United States defense structure to members of the Arlington Heights Rotary club Thursday. The Bell telephone system was instrumental in developing much of this country's defense network.

Forty Rotarians watched in silence Thursday as Fred Wiedemann and Jacob Munz, special representatives of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, presented an elaborate demonstration detailing the United States' complicated network of defense warning mechanisms.

EQUIPPED with cleverly adapted audio and visual aids, Wiedemann and Munz illustrated this country's approach to defense against jet bomber attack, as well as outlining the nation's retaliatory or offensive missile program.

"Hitler assured Germany's European neighbors again and again they wouldn't be attacked," Widemann pointed out. "They believed him and weren't prepared when the attack came.

"We must remember that our enemies are working on the same things we are — Inter - Continental Ballistics Missles (ICBM) and weapons to be used in defense of attack."

WIEDEMAN explained that in 1954 the Defense Department asked the Bell company to devise and put into operation a northern defense line. The company sent 4,000 employes and 420,000 tons of equipment to the arctic to work on the defense project.

The result is today's Distance Early Warning line or DEW line. It is composed of powerful radar equipment spread 3,000 miles across the arctic's 69th parallel.

The DEW line radar stations were built under the most fierce weather conditions imaginable, Wiedemann noted. The line serves to provide early warning in case of jet jomber attack from the north.

CONSTRUCTED next to implement the radar line was the White Alice project, a special telephone system spanning the rugged Alaskan terrain. Its 170,000 miles of special telephone circuits stand ready to carry attack warnings to the Canadian and United States governments.

Then came the Texas Towers off the Atlantic coast and strategically located weather stations throughout the country. The Semi-Automatic Ground Environment (SAGE) program was designed to provide interceptor protection.

"More than 33,000 private industries cooperated in the SAGE project," Wiedemann continued. "The SAGE control picks up all objects approaching the North American continent by air and carefully screens them.

"If an air object cannot be quickly identified, SAGE officers alert the Strategic Air Command (SAC) headquarters, where 3,000 planes can be vaulted into the air in 30 seconds."

Wiedemann said the Nike missiles—Ajax, Hercules and Zeus—are the result of the government's 1945 request for Bell engineers to develop protection against jet bombers and ICBMs.

HE SAID the Zeus missile is not yet perfected, but that it will be tested this summer against an ICBM. If successful, the United States will have a good retaliatory weapon against the ICBM and similar high speed weapons.

The Illinois Bell representatives told the Rotarians they had planned to engineer a telephone hookup to Denver, Colo., and SAC headquarters, but that all lines were being used.

The company, working closely with defense experts in its defense demonstrations, puts through the call to SAC and command personnel address the audience in regard to the day's alert activities.

"When we realize that SAC keeps tabs on between 200,000 and 300,000 air flights per day, we know a big job is being done," Wiedemann concluded. "I'm confident our defenses are in good hands."

The newly-organized Arlington Heights Skin and Scuba Diving club held its second regular meeting January 11. The featured guest speaker was Ray Hoglund, president of the Illinois Divers council.

In addition to an informative talk on diving techniques, Hoglund also showed 30 minutes of fascinating film of local diving activity. Among the underwater scenes shown was a shot of a muskie measuring six and one-half feet long and weighing 90 pounds.

Unfortunately for club members, Hoglund could not be persuaded to reveal the name of the lake where conservation authorities had requested him to make these underwater photographic studies.

THE MEETING opened with an election of officers. Officers unanimously elected are Robert Erickson, Arlington Heights, president; Edward W. Haedike, Arlington Heights, vice president; Harold Halaska, Elk Grove, secretary-treasurer, and Joseph Neynaber, Arlington Heights, diving officer.

The next meeting of the group will be held Wednesday, Feb. 1, at Pioneer park fieldhouse at 8 p. m. Another interesting program of movies of underwater diving experiences will be shown.

Anyone who is interested in the sport of underwater swimming is welcome to attend. Experience is not necessary, since various plans for instruction will be available this spring.

In addition to monthly meetings, the club plans to have monthly dives in the pool at the New Lawrence hotel in Chicago. The club has made arrangements to hold its first dive Wednesday, Feb. 8, at 9 p. m. at the hotel.

New County Subdivision Regulations Completed

A new set of subdivision regulations — an important step in the county's efforts to control the orderly development of unincorporated areas —has passed its last major hurdle.

It was predicted that 400 square miles of unincorporated area will be annexed by suburbs in the next two decades.

The County Board this week completed public hearings on the proposed new manual. John J. Duffy, chairman of the Board's Code and Ordinance Revision committee, said that the new regulations are expected to be passed at the Board's Jan. 25 meeting.

DUFFY said that the new manual represents a long step toward protecting the interests of both private enterprise—investors, home owners and builders—and local government.

The new manual provides for such public facilities as streets, sidewalks, drainage and storm sewers, light, and water supply.

"The purpose of the regulations is to see that every subdivision is so well designed and constructed that it does not become a charge against the community. . . and thus adversely affects the local tax base," Duffy said.

"One of the errors committed in the past in subdivision development has been the lack of recognition of the long-term responsibility involved in the planning of land and the laying out of streets and other facilities and services."

Harry F. Chaddick, director of the committee which prepared the manual, said that the suburbs have a large stake in the regulations because they will insure that areas adjacent to established communities are properly developed and do not become the slums of tomorrow.

THIS IS OF paramount importance in view of Chaddick's prediction that nearly all of the approximately 400 square miles of unincorporated area in suburban Cook County will have been annexed by existing suburbs within the next 20 years.

"The only reason that unincorporated land still exists," he said, "is that the county up to this point has had substandards for new developments."

The new manual, which replaces an antiquated 35-year old four page document, was widely hailed this week by suburban officials. An indication of their acceptance of the manual was that there were only a few minor objections to the Proposed Subdivision Manual when it was discussed at the board's public hearing.

"The new regulations have been drafted after lengthy conferences with builders, public officials and the state's attorney's office, Chaddick said.

"Under the new manual, each submitted plat must be investigated for compliance by the County Highway Department, the Health Department and the Zoning Administrator's Office. The County Plat Officer is charged with making recommendations to the County Board, which must take final action on all proposed subdivisions," Chaddick explained.

THE TECHNICAL staff that carried out the project was directed by George H. Kranenberg, consultant to the committee.

The completion of the new manual marks the second major step in Cook County's revamping of its regulatory codes and ordinances. A new zoning ordinance, also prepared by Chaddick and his staff, was passed by the County Board last year, and work is under way on a new building code. (B8

To Guide Development

Plan Commission Launches New Flood Mapping Program

Flood hazard maps will guide the development of low-lying areas along streams of six counties in Northeastern Illinois if a program undertaken by the Northeastern Illinois Metropolitan Area Planning Commission is successful.

At its quarterly meeting, January 19, the commission agreed to undertake to obtain local financing for a series of 40 "flood hazard maps" which will define and show graphically those parts of the metropolitan area which are subject to serious flooding.

The proposed mapping program would be a cooperative venture with the U. S. Geological Survey, which would carry out the mapping and obtain matching federal funds. Forty "quadrangles" would be mapped, each of them covering about 48 square miles. The cost of the program was estimated at $250,000, of which Northeastern Illinois' share would be $125,000.

BEHIND THE proposed mapping program is the fact that the Illinois legislature has granted new zoning powers to municipalities to enable them to plan for flood damage reduction and for the maximum economic use of their flood plans, Paul Oppermann, executive director, told the Planning Commission.

He noted that in order to enact reasonable flood plain regulations, municipalities need data "to delimit their flood plains and to establish the depth and frequency of inundation."

"Support from many quarters is develoing to advance a program that will provide municipalities and other units of government with basic flood information on which to prepare plans for growth and development and for the prevention of local flood damages," Oppermann declared.

THE PROPOSED flood hazard maps, he said, will ehlp communities in necessary efforts to

(1) prevent improper land development in floodway areas;

(2) restrict uses which would be hazardous to health and welfare and which would "lead to undue claims upon the public treasury for remedy";

(3) prevent inadequate channel maintenance, and

(4) protect prospective land-owners from being victimized.

At the same time, Oppermann added, flood plain regulations "may properly allow certain uses which would be subject to flood loss but which nevertheless would be considered beneficial."

QUADRANGLES proposed for inclusion in the flood hazard mapping program include:

Cook County

Arlington Heights, Palatine, Park Ridge, River Forest, Sag Junction, Blue Island, Palos Park, Tinley Park, Harvey, Calumet City (completed), Calumet Lake, and Spaulding.

In other actions, the planning commission:

—Agreed to undertake a study of coordinated transportation in the Chicago metropolitan area, as proposed by leading civic organizations, if the Illinois legislature authorizes such a study and appropriates funds for it.

—Heard a progress report on a cooperative land use study of the area around O'Hare International Airport now being conducted jointly with the city of Chicago's department of city planning, and in cooperation with the Federal Aviation Authority. The study, it was said, is aimed at the development of a suggested plan for use of land surrounding O'Hare Field. It will indicate those areas which are affected by noise and vibration and which are made hazardous by air traffic.

—Approved a statement on Fox River Valley flood control improvements to be presented by commission president Chester R. Davis at a public hearing to be held in Elgin, January 24.

—Referred to the commission's legislative committee drafts of bills calling for (1) stream maintenance by highway and other authorities; (2) research into ground water resources in Northeastern Illinois, and (3) air pollution regulations. (B8

Along the Camp Fire Trail

by Dorothy Schomburg CLearbrook 3-7017

HOFFMAN ESTATES

Last September, a new Camp Fire group, under the guardianship of Mrs. Robert F. Pedersen, was organized in Hoffman Estates, Roselle. The group name is Cha-Wee-Hi, which means "to become loving maidens." Members of the new groupl meeting every Monday at Blackhawk school, are Linda Gibbons, Melanie Higgins, Susan Nyttens, Vickie Orlen, Sally Pedersen, Beth Ann Radosta, Jeannette Reisz Annette Tanner, Susan Weinberg, Charlotte Shutte and Linda Vizcaino. Mrs. Vincent Radosta and Mrs. Charles Schutte are group sponsors.

ACTIVITIES of the Chaweehis have included a hike in Bloomingdale Woods, a Halloween party, a sponsor party and a roller skating party. The girls took their Trail Seeker test December 3 in Arlington Heights, and on December 23, at a council fire in Schaumburg junior high school, the Chaweehis received their Trail Seeker rank and their honor beads.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

Winekiya Camp Fire Girls held a Christmas party in the home of their guardian, Mrs. J. A. Nelson, The girls presented a play entitled, "The Three Wishes," in which Jenee Nelson, Kathy Johnson and Roberta Agnes appeared. A Christmas council fire honored Susan Conroy, who received her Trail Seeker rank at this time.

Now all the Winekiyas are working on their Wood Gatherer rank. Christmas solos were sung by Debbie Stafan, Monty Lou Jensen, Jan Nelson and Carolyn Dalley. Parents were invited and received Santa Claus chimneys made by their daughters. Each mother then gave her daughter the Camp Fire pin as her Christmas gift. Refreshments were coffee, punch and cookies prepared by the girls.

OKICIYAPI CAMP Fire Girls culminated their Christmas service work and holiday celebrations with a Christmas caroling party Tuesday, Dec. 20.

Sixth and eighth grade girls met in the home of their guardian, Mrs. Louis M. Shomburg, and exchanged Christmas cookies and recipes for their gift to the parents. These were decoratively boxed and together with the grab bag gifts, were taken to the party destination, the home of Linda Lorenz, for later distribution.

The girls, on their caroling rounds, sang Christmas hymns and popula Christmas songs for neighborhood friends and shut-ins. At two of their stops, they sang birthday wishes for Christie Windheim and Charles Staadt who were celebrating the day. Special wishes were extended to recent hospital patients, Hedy Brusa, and the group's co-guardian, Mrs. Robert R. Roth. Mrs. Roth later joined the girls for refreshments at their Christmas party. Christmas goodies and gifts were bestowed upon the carolers along the way.

THE EVENING was complete with the arrival of Santa Claus (Richard Chlupsa) during the party's festivities at 606 S. Highland. His bulging sack contained the Christmas gifts to the parents, Mrs. Roth's and Mrs. Shomburg's gifts to the girls, as well as gifts to the guardians. Selection of grab bag gifts, games and refreshments of cupcakes cookies and cocoa brought the fun evening to a close.

In the weeks preceding the Christmas festivities, the Okiciyapis had made 150 styrofoam and candy cane ornaments and decorated a Christmas tree for the pediatrics ward of the Northwest Community hospital. Magnus Farm was also the recipient of 75 of the umbrella-type ornaments, where residents received them as tray favors Christmas day. (B9

Cement Plant OK Is Asked for Road Work

Permission for the erection of a temporary concrete batching plant on Buffalo Grove road is being sought to begin the paving work for the conversion of Palatine road into a four-lane modified limited access highway with parallel two-lane local service roads.

A rezoning application has been filed with the county to allow the concrete plant on a 7 1/3 acre site just north of Palatine road A public hearing will be set.

BY NEXT FALL Palatine, now a bituminous two-lane road, is to be converted into a two-lane concrete road with the lanes divided by a four-foot median strip, according to Louis Quinlan, head of county highway advance planning. Also, grade separations are to be constructed at Arlington Heights (or State), Rand, Elmhurst and Milwaukee roads.

By the end of 1962 two additional lanes are to be completed making it a 48-foot four lane highway.

Local service roads, two lanes and 22 feet wide, are to parallel the four-lane highway on both sides along most of its length.

Total cost of the project is estimated at between $6½ and $7 million.

The limited access highway will connect with Edens Expressway and Milwaukee road on the east.

Palatine road is already major East-West route," Quinlan stated.

INSTALLATION of drains for the highway began last December.

The site of the proposed concrete batching plant is now zoned for single family residential. A general manufacturing classification is requested.

The application was filed by Edward J. Delory Jr., 808 S. Williams st., Mt. Prospect, an engineer for Contracting and Material co. from Evanston, owned by Arthur Milbratz, 2211 N. Buffalo Grove rd., Arlington Heights.

The company has the contract for the two-lane paving of Palatine from Rohlwing rd. to Milwaukee rd. (B-8

Jaycees Seek Names For Service Award

Announcement of the schedule for choosing the 1960 Distinguished Service Award winner was made this week by the DSA committee of the Arlington Heights Junior Chamber of Commerce. An invitation was issued to all village residents to nominate qualified candidates for the community service award.

Nominations for the award will be accepted until March 1, with the presentation banquet to be held late in March, the exact date to be announced, according to Paul Kearney, club publicitor.

THE DISTINGUISHED Service Award is presented to that young man, between the ages of 21 and 35, whose contribution to the community during 1960, leadership ability and personal or business progress is most deserving of recognition as outstanding.

The recipient need not be a member of the Jaycees and may be nominated by an organization or an individual. Letters of invitation to submit nominations are being sent to various village organizations, but individuals may send resumes of their candidates to Jaycees, Box 1, Arlington Heights.

All nominations should be typed or clearly written on standard 8½x11 paper, double spaced, and must include all details necessary to substantiate the three points on which nominees will be judged:

1) Contribution to community welfare of Arlington Heights during 1960;
2) evidence of leadership ability, and
3) evidence of personal or business progress.

ALL NOMINATIONS must be signed and address given so that further information may be obtained if required.

The judging committee will be composed of competent, distinguished citizens over 35 years of age whose choice will be based on the information submitted and their personal knowledge of the community.

Selection of the Distinguished Service Award winner for Arlington Heights will be followed by possible entry in the statewide Ten Outstanding Young Men competition and then the National TOYM finals.

President Kennery, Richard Nixon, Bob Richards, Leonard Bernstein and Bill Mauldin are other past winners of the national awards. A winner from Arlington Heights could join this distinguished company.

For Rental Homes

Reservation Plan Is Delivery Guarantee

A new program has been developed to solve the homemaker's age-old problem of how to be certain that his new home will be available whenever the old one is sold or leased.

This new approach is a reservation plan introduced at Carriage Hill, Glenview's luxury rental community of 136 Studio garden homes under construction by the Irvin A. Blietz home building and realty firm of Wilmette.

FAMILIES no longer need risk being "homeless" or "two home familites" Blietz guarantees the family occupancy of their home on any date they select. He agrees to return their deposit if they do not sell their house or lease their apartment before that date. The family can then select another home and later date if they wish.

This reservation program also allows the prospective tenant plenty of time to work out the most profitable home transaction, or in the case of apartment dwellers to complete satisfactory arrangements on subletting, furniture disposal, and other details that accompany a change of residence. Bruce Blietz, vice president of the firm, said the company also will cooperate with applicants in helping them arrange a home sale.

The Blietz organization has built more than 2,000 homes in north shore communities over the last 25 years.

TO DATE, 10 north shore families have made use of the reservation plan and of that group six already have sold homes and will be taking occupancy in Carriage Hill.

The entrance gate to the $3,500,000 residential park is located on Waukegan road, three blocks south of Glenview road shopping area. The studio garden homes are of split level and two story design, available in a two or three bedroom plan. They also offer family rooms. Carriage Hill was designed primarily for families who no longer want the burdensome upkeep of a large home and apartment dwellers who dislike the feeling of confinement and want outdoor garden and patio living. ARLINGTON SQUARES

The first dance of 1961 for the Arlington Height Square Dance club brought out lots of dancers and at least one good resolution. A member was overheard to voice his resolve to learn more round dances in the New Year, and, always obliging, Marie Clarke reviewed the round "Lady Be Good."

The club's next Saturday night dance will be February 11 and all square dancers in the area are invited to join club members in swinging out to the calls of Bill Clarke and the round dance instruction of Bill and his wife, Marie.

The dance will be held in Miner Junior High school in Arlington Heights, with squares forming up at 8:30 after a half-hour of the round dancing.

Tomorrow night South Junior high school will bounce to the rhythm of club members and the 15 guest couples, members of caller Clarke's class, who have been invited to join the Arlington Squares. Squares, rounds, sociability and refreshments will provide a full evening.

SOME Arlington Squares members will be Knotheads by this time next month and none will be insulted if anyone refers to them as such. In square dance circles a Knothead has prestige. When a complete square of dancers travels 80 miles or more to a regularly scheduled dance everyone in the square becomes a Knothead. February 25 a group of local club members will bus to Rockford to join the Jabos club there and swing out to the calls of Dale Manson.

Jabos members will try for eligibility in the Knotheads of Illinois with a return visit to Arlington Heights on a date not yet set.

Anyone interested in further information about the Arlington Squares is invited to call Mr. and Mrs. Don Pilch, Cl 5-0825, or write them at 1226 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights.

For Rental Homes

Reservation Plan Is Delivery Guarantee

A new program has been developed to solve the homemaker's age-old problem of how to be certain that his new home will be available whenever the old one is sold or leased.

This new approach is a reservation plan introduced at Carriage Hill, Glenview's luxury rental community of 136 Studio garden homes under construction by the Irvin A. Blietz home building and realty firm of Wilmette.

FAMILIES no longer need risk being "homeless" or "two home familites" Blietz guarantees the family occupancy of their home on any date they select. He agrees to return their deposit if they do not sell their house or lease their apartment before that date. The family can then select another home and later date if they wish.

This reservation program also allows the prospective tenant plenty of time to work out the most profitable home transaction, or in the case of apartment dwellers to complete satisfactory arrangements on subletting, furniture disposal, and other details that accompany a change of residence. Bruce Blietz, vice president of the firm, said the company also will cooperate with applicants in helping them arrange a home sale.

The Blietz organization has built more than 2,000 homes in north shore communities over the last 25 years.

TO DATE, 10 north shore families have made use of the reservation plan and of that group six already have sold homes and will be taking occupancy in Carriage Hill.

The entrance gate to the $3,500,000 residential park is located on Waukegan road, three blocks south of Glenview road shopping area. The studio garden homes are of split level and two story design, available in a two or three bedroom plan. They also offer family rooms. Carriage Hill was designed primarily for families who no longer want the burdensome upkeep of a large home and apartment dwellers who dislike the feeling of confinement and want outdoor garden and patio living. Suburbia's Children

Autos, TV Influence Modern Youth

by DICK HOFFMANN

(Fourth in a Series)

Youth generally, and suburban children particularly, have been characterized as uninformed and unconcerned, a generation uncommitted and toeing a line of conformity and comfort.

They are portrayed as indolent and indifferent, the products of a generation weaned at the mammillaries of Momism and materialism and raised by electronic babysitters.

And two mechanical contraptions, which have assumed an almost exaggerated importance when educators and parents dwell on the subject of the young, are the automobile and the television set.

THE NEW ELEMENT in American education -- television -- which is usually accused of returning vacant stares, is also "a window to the world," points out a Palatine housewife who administers intelligence tests in one school district.

Notes Mrs. Harriet Foster, principal of the Cardinal Drive school in Rolling Meadows: "When I came back to teaching, television was flourishing. I was amazed at the change in the vocabulary of second graders. They used more words, more adjectives and descriptions, and used them correctly."

Even television's instruction in violence is seen as having minimal effects by a northwest suburban psychiatrist. "My kids tell me, 'Oh, it's just make-believe; don't take it so seriously, Daddy.' "

The car, however, does not fare as well in balancing out assets and liabilities. It is blamed for American youth's puny physical capabilities which are shaded by comparison with European youngsters.

A NUMBER of studies conducted by high schools in this area show a direct relationship between car ownership and scholastic standing. A study of Niles township high school students concludes: "Parents who allowed a student the unrestricted use of the family car or the student's own car could expect the student's scholastic standing to drop. And the brighter the student, the more sharply his grades would fall."

The automobile is also viewed as providing a more sinister form of education for our young in illicit backseat sexual experiments. However sound this analysis of the car as a mobile laboratory, the majority of opinion sees Suburbia's offspring as morally upright youngsters.

"With the imbalance of advertising about sex, I'm surprised how well students behave," is the verdict of Bruno Waara, assistant principal at Arlington high school and president of the board of directors of Northwest Family Service counseling agency.

"On the whole, I'd say the morals of youngsters are very high," says Sgt. William Duvaney, Addison's juvenile officer. "I think parents, churches and schools have done a remarkable job in explaining the facts of life to children."

HENRY COBB, guidance director at Fenton high in Bensenville, feels statistics sounding the alarm over the rise of venereal disease and pregnancy among teenagers is misleading.

"There is more public information about these subjects," he commented. "We used to whisper about cancer at one time, too." Public reporting of these occurrences has led to the mistaken notion that teenagers are engaged in their own interpretation of the Kinsey report, the reasoning goes.

"We have an extremely small percentage of dropouts due to pregnancy, although I'm not denying we don't have them. Out of high school it may be a different thing," Cobb said. "In fact, we have a very small percentage of dropouts, and most of them are boys."

The youths who do drop out of school sometimes present problems to juvenile authorities, Sgt. Duvaney observed. This, he feels, is because the schools try "to make bookkeepers out of everyone." Not everyone has the aptitude or inclination for white collar work, he remarked, and would be happier collared to a job that required blue denim.

COMPETITION among bookkeepers is expected to increase, especially at the college entrance level. "Kids are aware that colleges will become increasingly harder to get into," commented John Strong, Prospect high school counselor, "And they see more and more competition to get what they want out of life. While this will stimulate some, others will be immobilized by the anxiety of it."

Much of this competition will be generated by Suburbia's Children. Principal Waara related that 59.8 per cent of Arlington students go on to college compared to the national average of 35 per cent.

"The ring of high schools in this area is as good as any in the country," declared the Rev. Dr. Martin E. Marty, pastor of the Elk Grove Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit and an associate editor of Christian Century magazine. "And they cannot be good unless there is a pattern of homework and discipline," he said, saluting this parental contribution to education.

"There is the familiar bell-shaped curve in intelligence tests out here," explains the Palatine housewife—educator, "except the bulge is at the top."

The educators of the body seem as concerned as those who discipline the mind over the teenagers' principal status symbol, the car. Concedes J. O. Jackson, backfield coach and driver educator instructor at Prospect high: "We're all soft; the whole country is mechanized. I drive a block and a half to the shopping center with the excuse that I'm in a hurry."

Jackson, who coached rural youths at Marshall, Ill., recalls one significant difference between the hayshaker and split-level athlete in that Joe Country showed more of a capacity for work. "If they were given a job to do, they'd know they would have to put out so much physical energy to do it. They didn't think of output as much as the end result. Suburban kids sometimes feel imposed upon if you call on them to run or do calisthenics."

Mr. Ford's gift is also viewed by many coaches as a rival to a winning team. One suburban football coach, lamenting the lack of talent when 10 numeral winners from his frosh-soph team failed to turn out for the varsity squad, classified his competition as: 1) cars; 2) girls; 3) supermarkets (where they worked to pay for the car); 4) television.

WALLY "PAPPY" Grace, Arlington high school athletic director, admits "we might have some who cannot do a pullup." But some muscle is being put into the schools' physical education program with standardized tests prepared by the AAHPER, American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. Required of all students, the tests are a guide to physical aptitude, and are administered in September, January and May with "each youngster in competition with himself. They set their own standards of improvement," Grace said.

The tests are a response to the dark findings of researchers in comparing the physical accomplishments of U. S. and European youngsters. The results might yet resurrect Bernard McFadden from his resting place. President John F. Kennedy, writing in a national magazine on "The Soft American," noted of tests given American and Continental children over a 15-year period: "The findings showed that despite our unparalleled standard of living, despite our good food and our many playgrounds, despite our emphasis on school athletics, American youth lagged far behind Europeans in physical fitness. Six tests for muscular strength and flexibility were given; 57.9 per cent of the American children failed one or more of these tests, while only 8.7 per cent of the European youngsters failed."

Dr. James B. Conant, in another article protesting the overemphasis on interscholastic as opposed to intramural contests in our schools, charges: "Fuzzy thinking attempts to relate athletic spectacles to the physical well-being of all our citizens."

Among the newer offerings in the Arlington high's physical education program are gymnastics and weightlifting, and rare is the school board that can resist all the fineries of the modern gym. But this more often becomes a condition where, as Dr. Marty observes, "The athlete has all the opportunities," in the providing of facilities.

A HOPEFUL sign, and one generally overlooked, is that most grade school bicycle racks are filled in good weather, Mrs. Foster, the Rolling Meadows principal, points out.

But there is another element in education which is probably peculiar to the suburbs. For the carpenter and bricklayer have assumed almost as much importance in some school districts as the science teacher.

School boards in districts like Elk Grove, Palatine, and Schaumburg - still reeling from the population pressures of such new communities as Elk Grove Village, Rolling Meadows and Hoffman Estates - must devote most of their time to providing physical classroom space.

"How can we concentrate on an enriched curriculum when our main concern has to be buildings," groused one school board member.

It's moving day for Delores and Harold Goeddeke, 28 N. Reuter, and their children, Vicky Ann, Luanne, Ricky and Sandra. Other new residents are Gladys and Kenneth Prince and their children, Pamela, Stephen and Russell, who recently moved to 112 N. Yale from Palo Alto, Cal. They plan to attend the Congregational church. Kenneth is associated with United Air Lines. Twelve year old Pamela was thrilled with the snow and can't wait to try ice skating for the first time. Gladys spends most of her time with the two younger ones, but she also enjoys bridge.

ESTHER AND Tony Van Bladel entertained in their home, 108 N. Reuter Saturday evening. Esther's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Liebert, Palatine, and her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beyer, Carpentersville, came for dessert and cards.

Birthdays in January are very popular in the Newquist home, 407 N. Hickory. The trio of celebrations was started off on the 17th with Mr. Newquist being the celebrant. Birthday cake and coffee with his family and his in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Gustafson, honored him on his special day.

Sunday, the 22nd, was Mrs. Newquist's birthday and the occasion was marked with dinner in her parent's home- the L. M. Gustafsons, 211 N. Beverly.

Kenny Newquist celebrates his 11th birthday Thursday and plans are being made for another family celebration with his grandparents and sister Kris.

Kenny's very special gift to his mother on Sunday was his serving as an acolyte, for the first time, in St. John's Episcopal church, Mt. Prospect.

AN "AFTER the baby has arrived" shower was given for Mrs. Lois Evans last Thursday afternoon in the home of former resident, Mrs. Jean Barton, now of Stonegate, with Mrs. Jack Anderson as co-hostess. Besides other friends, neighbors Mrs. Kenneth Behm, Mrs. Herman Mell, Mrs. Norman Hoym and Mrs. Matthew Cockrell were present at the luncheon with gifts and well wishes for the Evans' newest son, William John.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Anderson returned from their three-week Florida vacation in time to experience the first really cold weather of the winter. They were guests of Eileen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Hare in Coral Gables, and spent all of their vacation there, just swimming and sunning. Daughter Dawn was the only member of the family who witnessed the Orange Bowl parade New Years day.

Two of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lane's sons, of 309 N. Brighton pl. celebrated January birthdays. John's fourth on the 10th and Jerry's second on the 21st were both honored with family parties with grandparents Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Lockwood of Des Plaines and Mr. C. O. Lane as guests.

A WEEKEND away from home at the O'Hare Inn was spent by Emil Hanner. Business, rather than relaxation, was the reason. Mr. Hanner was attending a seminar presented by Carson Pirie Scott and co., his employers.

Mrs. Marguerite Scott, who is a member of the social committee of St. Pat's Mothers club, is busy these days planning for the annual card party and dance the club is giving Friday night at Chevy Chase country club. The Scott's daughter Marie, is a senior at the Des Plaines academy. (A

Suburbia's Children

by DICK HOFFMANN

(Fourth in a Series)

Youth generally, and suburban children particularly, have been characterized as uninformed and unconcerned, a generation uncommitted and toeing a line of conformity and comfort.

They are portrayed as indolent and indifferent, the products of a generation weaned at the mammillaries of Momism and materialism and raised by electronic babysitters.

And two mechanical contraptions, which have assumed an almost exaggerated importance when educators and parents dwell on the subject of the young, are the automobile and the television set.

THE NEW ELEMENT in American education -- television -- which is usually accused of returning vacant stares, is also "a window to the world," points out a Palatine housewife who administers intelligence tests in one school district.

Notes Mrs. Harriet Foster, principal of the Cardinal Drive school in Rolling Meadows: "When I came back to teaching, television was flourishing. I was amazed at the change in the vocabulary of second graders. They used more words, more adjectives and descriptions, and used them correctly."

Even television's instruction in violence is seen as having minimal effects by a northwest suburban psychiatrist. "My kids tell me, 'Oh, it's just make-believe; don't take it so seriously, Daddy.' "

The car, however, does not fare as well in balancing out assets and liabilities. It is blamed for American youth's puny physical capabilities which are shaded by comparison with European youngsters.

A NUMBER of studies conducted by high schools in this area show a direct relationship between car ownership and scholastic standing. A study of Niles township high school students concludes: "Parents who allowed a student the unrestricted use of the family car or the student's own car could expect the student's scholastic standing to drop. And the brighter the student, the more sharply his grades would fall."

The automobile is also viewed as providing a more sinister form of education for our young in illicit backseat sexual experiments. However sound this analysis of the car as a mobile laboratory, the majority of opinion sees Suburbia's offspring as morally upright youngsters.

"With the imbalance of advertising about sex, I'm surprised how well students behave," is the verdict of Bruno Waara, assistant principal at Arlington high school and president of the board of directors of Northwest Family Service counseling agency.

"On the whole, I'd say the morals of youngsters are very high," says Sgt. William Duvaney, Addison's juvenile officer. "I think parents, churches and schools have done a remarkable job in explaining the facts of life to children."

HENRY COBB, guidance director at Fenton high in Bensenville, feels statistics sounding the alarm over the rise of venereal disease and pregnancy among teenagers is misleading.

"There is more public information about these subjects," he commented. "We used to whisper about cancer at one time, too." Public reporting of these occurrences has led to the mistaken notion that teenagers are engaged in their own interpretation of the Kinsey report, the reasoning goes.

"We have an extremely small percentage of dropouts due to pregnancy, although I'm not denying we don't have them. Out of high school it may be a different thing," Cobb said. "In fact, we have a very small percentage of dropouts, and most of them are boys."

The youths who do drop out of school sometimes present problems to juvenile authorities, Sgt. Duvaney observed. This, he feels, is because the schools try "to make bookkeepers out of everyone." Not everyone has the aptitude or inclination for white collar work, he remarked, and would be happier collared to a job that required blue denim.

COMPETITION among bookkeepers is expected to increase, especially at the college entrance level. "Kids are aware that colleges will become increasingly harder to get into," commented John Strong, Prospect high school counselor, "And they see more and more competition to get what they want out of life. While this will stimulate some, others will be immobilized by the anxiety of it."

Much of this competition will be generated by Suburbia's Children. Principal Waara related that 59.8 per cent of Arlington students go on to college compared to the national average of 35 per cent.

"The ring of high schools in this area is as good as any in the country," declared the Rev. Dr. Martin E. Marty, pastor of the Elk Grove Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit and an associate editor of Christian Century magazine. "And they cannot be good unless there is a pattern of homework and discipline," he said, saluting this parental contribution to education.

"There is the familiar bell-shaped curve in intelligence tests out here," explains the Palatine housewife—educator, "except the bulge is at the top."

The educators of the body seem as concerned as those who discipline the mind over the teenagers' principal status symbol, the car. Concedes J. O. Jackson, backfield coach and driver educator instructor at Prospect high: "We're all soft; the whole country is mechanized. I drive a block and a half to the shopping center with the excuse that I'm in a hurry."

Jackson, who coached rural youths at Marshall, Ill., recalls one significant difference between the hayshaker and split-level athlete in that Joe Country showed more of a capacity for work. "If they were given a job to do, they'd know they would have to put out so much physical energy to do it. They didn't think of output as much as the end result. Suburban kids sometimes feel imposed upon if you call on them to run or do calisthenics."

Mr. Ford's gift is also viewed by many coaches as a rival to a winning team. One suburban football coach, lamenting the lack of talent when 10 numeral winners from his frosh-soph team failed to turn out for the varsity squad, classified his competition as: 1) cars; 2) girls; 3) supermarkets (where they worked to pay for the car); 4) television.

WALLY "PAPPY" Grace, Arlington high school athletic director, admits "we might have some who cannot do a pullup." But some muscle is being put into the schools' physical education program with standardized tests prepared by the AAHPER, American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. Required of all students, the tests are a guide to physical aptitude, and are administered in September, January and May with "each youngster in competition with himself. They set their own standards of improvement," Grace said.

The tests are a response to the dark findings of researchers in comparing the physical accomplishments of U. S. and European youngsters. The results might yet resurrect Bernard McFadden from his resting place. President John F. Kennedy, writing in a national magazine on "The Soft American," noted of tests given American and Continental children over a 15-year period: "The findings showed that despite our unparalleled standard of living, despite our good food and our many playgrounds, despite our emphasis on school athletics, American youth lagged far behind Europeans in physical fitness. Six tests for muscular strength and flexibility were given; 57.9 per cent of the American children failed one or more of these tests, while only 8.7 per cent of the European youngsters failed."

Dr. James B. Conant, in another article protesting the overemphasis on interscholastic as opposed to intramural contests in our schools, charges: "Fuzzy thinking attempts to relate athletic spectacles to the physical well-being of all our citizens."

Among the newer offerings in the Arlington high's physical education program are gymnastics and weightlifting, and rare is the school board that can resist all the fineries of the modern gym. But this more often becomes a condition where, as Dr. Marty observes, "The athlete has all the opportunities," in the providing of facilities.

A HOPEFUL sign, and one generally overlooked, is that most grade school bicycle racks are filled in good weather, Mrs. Foster, the Rolling Meadows principal, points out.

But there is another element in education which is probably peculiar to the suburbs. For the carpenter and bricklayer have assumed almost as much importance in some school districts as the science teacher.

School boards in districts like Elk Grove, Palatine, and Schaumburg - still reeling from the population pressures of such new communities as Elk Grove Village, Rolling Meadows and Hoffman Estates - must devote most of their time to providing physical classroom space.

"How can we concentrate on an enriched curriculum when our main concern has to be buildings," groused one school board member.

Stratton Greed Hurt GOP, Says Rentschler

William H. Rentschler laid much of the blame for the Republican party's bad showing last November to the "personal ambition and greed" of former Illinois governor William G. Stratton.

"Mr. Stratton's ultimatum that he was the only gubernatorial choice seriously harmed the entire Republican ticket from top to bottom," Rentschler told 75 members of the Wheeling Township Women's Republican club Tuesday night.

WILLIAM H. RENTSCHLER gestures freely while addressing 75 members of the Wheeling Township Women's Republican club Tuesday in Arlington Heights. The young Republican leader urged his audience to begin work now at party reorganization and continue to work 365 days a year.

The young GOP leader said "the handwriting was on the wall in 1956 when Mr. Stratton was narrowly re-elected at the same time other Republican candidates were winning by wide margins.".

RENTSCHLER, speaking in the community room of the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan association, told his audience there is an immense job before all Republicans to work to restore the party's power and prestige in Illinois.

"We must begin right now — this week — to seek new ideas, new faces, new hope. The gigantic vote frauds of the Chicago machine can be stamped out only by a militant Republican force," the 35-year-old businessman prophesied.

HE LISTED several of the steps he thinks should be taken first in GOP efforts at party reorganization. Included were:

—establishment of a capable, trained state coordinating agency to bring about cohesion and do away with duplicated effort and confusion;

—the spelling out of the basic tenets of Republicanism in a positive manner;

—investment of responsibility in auxiliary organizations like the Young Republicans, women's clubs and volunteers, and

—a work program for 365 days of every year.

"WE MUST begin now to rebuild our fences," Rentschler said. "The domination of the Stratton clique is no more and volunteers are being welcomed. We owe it to our country to bring the Republican message to the people."

Rentschler, a resident of Lake county and Illinois liaison man for former Vice President Richard Nixon, was introduced by Mrs. Walter Brown, club president. (B9

Despite cold temperatures of five degrees, approximately 100 boys and girls braved the elements to compete in the third annual Rotary Ice Carnival Saturday.

This event, which had to be cancelled in 1960 because of warm weather and no ice, looked doomed again for the second straight year when Thursday before the carnival temperatures reached 40 degrees.

However, the weather man came through with freezing temperatures Thursday evening and Friday, and with park district personnel working night and day, a coat of ice was ready Saturday morning.

WITH ROTARY club members and park employees officiating and organizing, the races were run in heats with the top five times qualifying for the finals. In figure skating Dennis Murphy won the boys open competition for the third straight year.

Stratton Greed Hurt GOP, Says Rentschler

William H. Rentschler laid much of the blame for the Republican party's bad showing last November to the "personal ambition and greed" of former Illinois governor William G. Stratton.

"Mr. Stratton's ultimatum that he was the only gubernatorial choice seriously harmed the entire Republican ticket from top to bottom," Rentschler told 75 members of the Wheeling Township Women's Republican club Tuesday night.

WILLIAM H. RENTSCHLER gestures freely while addressing 75 members of the Wheeling Township Women's Republican club Tuesday in Arlington Heights. The young Republican leader urged his audience to begin work now at party reorganization and continue to work 365 days a year.

The young GOP leader said "the handwriting was on the wall in 1956 when Mr. Stratton was narrowly re-elected at the same time other Republican candidates were winning by wide margins.".

RENTSCHLER, speaking in the community room of the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan association, told his audience there is an immense job before all Republicans to work to restore the party's power and prestige in Illinois.

"We must begin right now — this week — to seek new ideas, new faces, new hope. The gigantic vote frauds of the Chicago machine can be stamped out only by a militant Republican force," the 35-year-old businessman prophesied.

HE LISTED several of the steps he thinks should be taken first in GOP efforts at party reorganization. Included were:

—establishment of a capable, trained state coordinating agency to bring about cohesion and do away with duplicated effort and confusion;

—the spelling out of the basic tenets of Republicanism in a positive manner;

—investment of responsibility in auxiliary organizations like the Young Republicans, women's clubs and volunteers, and

—a work program for 365 days of every year.

"WE MUST begin now to rebuild our fences," Rentschler said. "The domination of the Stratton clique is no more and volunteers are being welcomed. We owe it to our country to bring the Republican message to the people."

Rentschler, a resident of Lake county and Illinois liaison man for former Vice President Richard Nixon, was introduced by Mrs. Walter Brown, club president. (B9 FLAMES MOUNT in pyramid from burning gasoline carried by tank truck which was hit by switch engine at O'Hare field Monday. (A14

Switch Engine Rams Into Gasoline Truck

A giant black column of smoke billowing skyward Monday afternoon drew motorists like moths to a flame to witness a spectacular blaze ignited when a diesel switch engine plowed the center of a gasoline tank truck at the northwest corner of O'Hare field.

Firemen from Mt. Prospect, Des Plaines and Chicago answered the summons to the explosive situation, but both vehicles were destroyed in the flaming pyre. Operators of the vehicles escaped injury.

Water poured on the burning structures locked in a grip of caved-in steel froze a ghostly white in the frigid air.

PERSONS rushing to the tell-tale funnel of black smoke speculated that a plane had crashed. The curling smoke, which poured skyward as if blown from a smoke stack, was visible in the communities surrounding the field of Bensenville, Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines as well as Mt. Prospect, Arlington Heights and elsewhere.

The truck, driven by Phillip Adams, 28, of 7719 Westwood, Elmwood Park, was crossing a railroad spur a short distance south of the intersection of Illinois 72 and Mt. Prospect rd. when the locomotive smashed into the truck's aluminum trailer.

The truck driver and the engineer, Homer Fawcett, 47, of 1703 S. Linder, Chicago, leaped to safety as the crash ignited the spilling gasoline.

A witness to the mishap told a reporter: "The engineer took off running and no one's been able to locate him yet."

FIREFIGHTERS were hampered in fighting the blaze by lack of nearby water supply, and three tank trucks had to be pressed into service to truck in water from a hydrant a mile away.

Officials said that had the fire erupted in the vicinity of the field's underground storage fuel tanks, a serious condition could have arose.

The heat of the blaze melted the truck's tires away, as firemen trained water on the scene. Force of the impact had lodged the locomotive's nose in the flaming center of the truck's trailer.

The engine was used by the Air Force to transport military cargo along the spur to O'Hare Air Force base. The truck was owned by Rogers Cartage company, 8720 Harlem, Oak Lawn. (A14

Police Start New Crime Report Plan

The North Shore chiefs of Police association's new method of reporting all area crimes to surrounding communities via a chain of telephone calls has been changed to weekly written reports.

Reason was that the telephone system was found to consume too much time. About 135 reports were sent out in the first month and a half of the system was in effect.

SINCE THE major crimes are broadcast by radio anyway, it was decided as the result of a questionnaire sent all of the 55 participating communities, to compile a weekly written report of all crimes from the central Evanston office.

Each police department will call in its reports there, and they will be recorded as one permanent area record to be distributed to all departments by mail.

Previously the communities were divided into three groups for the purpose of chain telephone dispatches. The new system goes into effect March 1. (A14 FLAMES MOUNT in pyramid from burning gasoline carried by tank truck which was hit by switch engine at O'Hare field Monday. (A14

Switch Engine Rams Into Gasoline Truck

A giant black column of smoke billowing skyward Monday afternoon drew motorists like moths to a flame to witness a spectacular blaze ignited when a diesel switch engine plowed the center of a gasoline tank truck at the northwest corner of O'Hare field.

Firemen from Mt. Prospect, Des Plaines and Chicago answered the summons to the explosive situation, but both vehicles were destroyed in the flaming pyre. Operators of the vehicles escaped injury.

Water poured on the burning structures locked in a grip of caved-in steel froze a ghostly white in the frigid air.

PERSONS rushing to the tell-tale funnel of black smoke speculated that a plane had crashed. The curling smoke, which poured skyward as if blown from a smoke stack, was visible in the communities surrounding the field of Bensenville, Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines as well as Mt. Prospect, Arlington Heights and elsewhere.

The truck, driven by Phillip Adams, 28, of 7719 Westwood, Elmwood Park, was crossing a railroad spur a short distance south of the intersection of Illinois 72 and Mt. Prospect rd. when the locomotive smashed into the truck's aluminum trailer.

The truck driver and the engineer, Homer Fawcett, 47, of 1703 S. Linder, Chicago, leaped to safety as the crash ignited the spilling gasoline.

A witness to the mishap told a reporter: "The engineer took off running and no one's been able to locate him yet."

FIREFIGHTERS were hampered in fighting the blaze by lack of nearby water supply, and three tank trucks had to be pressed into service to truck in water from a hydrant a mile away.

Officials said that had the fire erupted in the vicinity of the field's underground storage fuel tanks, a serious condition could have arose.

The heat of the blaze melted the truck's tires away, as firemen trained water on the scene. Force of the impact had lodged the locomotive's nose in the flaming center of the truck's trailer.

The engine was used by the Air Force to transport military cargo along the spur to O'Hare Air Force base. The truck was owned by Rogers Cartage company, 8720 Harlem, Oak Lawn. (A14

Now We Can Blame Social Decline on Chillblains

Sidelights
Of Arlington Heights

Dorothy Meyer, CL 3-2298   Elsie Jedd, CL 3-5982

The opening lines of last week's column blamed the current social decline on - of all things - spring fever! That unseasonable warm spell promptly gave way to unreasonable cold so that now chillblains and frost bite can be blamed for the social "recession." If mentioning the weather causes such radical changes, next week could bring floods - of news, we hope.

The most radical change reported so far was endured last Friday by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nyquist, 714 S. Mitchell, who left southern California for a flight home after three warm weeks on the west coast. It was 88 degrees when they left Los Angeles and 10 below zero when they arrived a few hours later at the airport here.

Helping to ward off the shock of their sharp freeze was the Nyquists' recollection of the summery time they had in California. The trip was mostly business and a little recreation for Mr. Nyquist and undiluted pleasure for his wife. They spent the first and third weeks in Los Angeles with San Francisco sandwiched between. A reunion with her college roommate highlighted the San Francisco week for Mrs. Nyquist, and visits with other friends in the Los Angeles area pleasantly occupied the other two weeks.

THE CHARLES Mallon family, 1041 S. Dunton, weekended in Sheboygan at the home of Mrs. Mallon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Erickson. They console local frosty friends with the intelligence that it was even colder in Sheboygan than it was here.

The temperature was higher in the east but so was the snow, report the Wier Swansons, 901 S. Highland, who returned Saturday evening after a 2-day business-and-pleasure stay in New York City. Despite a badly fractured time table, the two days held enough hours for the Swansons to attend, besides business matters, Mary Martin's new hit show, "Sound of Music," and to celebrate Mrs. Swansons' January 21 birthday in Sardi's.

The schedule disrupting began Thursday evening when the snowstorm over New York forced the Swansons' flight to land in Boston. A long bus ride later they arrived in New York, roughly nine hours late, to find snow piled six feet high and their hotel accommodations no longer available. The hotel made amends, the snow made the pace of the city less hectic and everything went smoothly until departure time when schedules again came apart at the seams.

The return flight was three hours late in taking off. Strangers get acquainted during hours of marking time and among the "strangers" the Swansons discovered a Mr. Coffman, former Arlington Heighter. Mr. Coffman asked them to relay greetings to his local friends and former Sherwood neighbors.

DR. AND MRS. Vernon Boman returned home to 739 S. Evergreen last Wednesday evening after four days in Ohio. In Cleveland they attended meetings of the Edward H. Angle society, then went on to Canton for visits with friends in the area.

Dr. and Mrs. Leland Linn, 130 S. Fernandez, came home Monday from a 10-day vacation in Arizona. They divided their time between warm and sunny Tucson and warm and sunny Phoenix, returning to wonder how the same sun can be so cold in Arlington Heights.

When a young lady objects to having a few years shaved off her actual age it's safe to assume she's a very young lady indeed. Debbie Reiss, erroneously reported here as a 5-year-old last year, was 10 years old Friday and proud of it. She celebrated the occasion with a party Saturday for eight girl friends and the Reiss household, 618 S. Evergreen, was full of the sounds of being 10 and glad of it. Games, prizes and birthday-special refreshments were the order of the afternoon.

Sunday Debbie and the rest of the family celebrated her day again with dinner at the Sweden House in Elgin.

KATHLEEN ANDRES was four years old last Tuesday and marked the occasion by staying up a mite later than usual. This was necessary to fully savor the best wishes and excitement brought to the Andres home, 1145 N. Belmont, by family friends and relatives who came to honor the young miss.

Sheryl Patterson, daughter of the William Pattersons, 1011 S. Dunton, will be home today from Northwest Community hospital if all goes as well as last reported. Sheryl and an acutely inflamed appendix parted company just in time last Friday evening during emergency surgery.

Sheryl is just 14 and shared a January 8 birthday celebration with her sister, Linda, who was 11 January 6. Congratulations came in pairs from local and Chicago family members.

Rev. and Mrs. George Aigner of Evanston were guests of honor last Friday evening at a party given by the pastor's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Zehner, 20 S. Salem. Fourteen neighborhood friends were introduced to the honor guests and enjoyed a sociable evening with them. Mr. Aigner is pastor of St. Paul Lutheran church in Evanston.

ON N. DUNTON last week, the birthday celebrations of two senior citizens and one junior member kept the birthday song echoing from house to house. The younger of the two Clarences at the Loechl household, 1213 N. Dunton, was first in the birthday book with a January 14 event.

Two small sisters and their twin ailments postponed his birthday party one week and last Saturday, dawning cold but healthful, was the day of fun. Lunch and the local matinee entertained Clarence's guests, Dale and Vince Weidner and John Meyer. Clarence was 7.

Last Tuesday evening Mrs. Emma Klages, 1135 N. Dunton, received the congratulations of her children and grandchildren at an informal party in her home.

Mrs. Ernest Poulos, 1225 N. Dunton, entertained with a birthday dessert last Wednesday afternoon for her mother, Mrs. Mabel Collins of Chicago. Mrs. Collins and her sister, Mrs. Ruth Scheffler, also of Chicago, spent the day here and with six neighborhood friends of the hostess, who enjoyed the afternoon party.

JANUARY birthdays resulted in three recent celebrations among members of the Warren Rumatz household, 828 S. Chestnut. Barbara was 11 years old January 18, a middle-of-the-week date, and chose the previous Friday for her slumber party celebration. Her wide awake slumber mates were Nancy Clark, Dawn Miller, Susan O'Dor, Cindy Vinberg and Debby Carns. Although it was a Friday the 13th occasion, it wasn't the jinx that kept them awake all night long. They just repelled slumber because it's the thing to do at slumber parties.

Sunday was Mrs. Rumatz' birthday, the 20th is the birth date of a family friend, Don Stryker, and as per custom both families celebrated together. The 2-way party was in the Rumatz home this year and included Mr. Rumatz' mother, his brother and fiancee as well as Mr. Stryker and his family of Deerfield.

Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Rumatz enjoyed a birthday eve "night out," that began with dinner and included bowling with Arlington Heights friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Galdoni and Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Thelander.

R. J. DRISCOLL is home again at 728 S. Vail after nine days in Northwest Community hospital where he underwent an appendectomy. He was seriously ill and will be recuperating at home for an indefinite period before being able to resume normal activities.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Muench, 124 S. Ridge, enjoyed a day at White Fence Farm in Lemont last Wednesday, attending a convention and the social events planned for the conventioneers.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Hendrichs, 1506 E. Fremont, weekended in Lafayette, Ind. in the home of Mrs. Hendrichs' parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Dietrich. Besides the family visit they enjoyed attending the Purdue-Iowa basketball game Saturday night and shared fellow Hoosiers' elation over the Purdue 47-41 victory that gave Purdue equal footing with Ohio for the Big 10 lead.

SYMPATHIES of the community go to Mrs. Walter Duda, 117 S. Windsor, on the death of her mother, Mrs. Anna R. Wangercyn of Calumet City. Mrs. Wangercyn died in her home January 15 and mass was said last Thursday in St. Victor church.

Sympathies also go to Charles Mitchell, 900 E. Dundee, and Paul Mitchell, 3220 N. Buffalo Grove, on the death of their brother, James Mitchell of Chicago, who died January 15 in Northwest Community hospital. In this area Mr. Mitchell also leaves a son, James of Buffalo Grove, and another brother, Albert of Prospect Heights. Services were held January 18 in Black's Memorial home with Rev. Robert O. Bartz officiating. Interment was in Memory Gardens cemetery.

MR. AND MRS. C. K. Godfrey, 307 S. Carlyle, returned from Tiburon, Cal. January 15, where they spent a month visiting their son and daughter-in-law, the Bradford Godfreys and their daughter, Kelly.

Mrs. Charles Barton, 321 S. Windsor, entertained at a luncheon and surprise baby shower last Thursday for Mrs. Richard Evans of Eastwood, whose infant son, William, was born December 12 in Northwest Community hospital.

Co-hostess with Mrs. Barton was Mrs. John Anderson of Arlington Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Stahnke, 110 S. Brighton, gave a party Saturday for members of the Stahnke clan. Guests included the John Stahnkes of Bellwood, the Roland Stahnkes of Downers Grove and the A. William Stahnkes of Plum Grove Woodlands.

Mrs. Thomas Hamilton and Mrs. Gale Oberlin were among the Stonegate residents attending the regional meeting of the Mt. Prospect Sweet Adelines Saturday in La Grange Park. Following the meeting and dinner, there was a novice quartet contest with Mrs. Hamilton's quartet participating. Members of Mrs. Hamilton's quartet, who call themselves the "So-Lows," include the Mrs. Charles Crooks, Mrs. Fred Garvey and Mrs. John Workum of Des Plaines.

MISS SUE BELL, 320 S. Windsor, joined two Indiana university classmates, Miss Judy Hendricks and Miss Lorna Lide of Arlington Heights, in Ladue, Mo., to spend several days visiting another classmate, Miss Ann Bucha.

Richard Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kelly, 317 Stratford, marked his sixth birthday January 15 with a party for eight guests.

Nancy Irwin celebrated her 12th birthday January 13. She was present at a surprise family dinner which included two of her closest friends who remained for a slumber party. Nancy is the daughter of the Nathaniel Irwins, 329 Stratford.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hall, 1305 Woodford, entertained at cocktails Saturday before attending their dance club at the Arlington VFW hall. Guests included the Robert Bukowskis, the Clyde Fosters, the William Francks the William Townsends, the Les Ploetzes and the James Blockis.

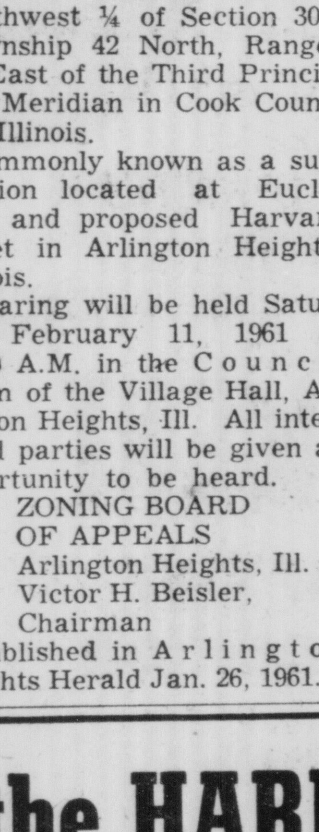
the HARRIS huddle



GEORGE HARRIS

Some days it hardly pays to get up, and this seems to be one of those days. Can't seem to get started to write this column. So much I'd like to tell you about, but not one word will form in my "little soft brain."

Just as I said that, it came to me like a flash. Why not thank all the wonderful people who made Harris Pharmacy what it is today? You have been wonderful to Marian and me and we are both thankful and grateful to have you as our customers. For the past number of years it has been a pleasure to serve your needs. We have erred, to be sure, but then you have been patient with us, and, again, our thanks. It is our earnest desire to serve you even better in 1961 and to continue to serve you for many years to come.

There is only one thing I can say in closing, "If we have pleased you, won't you kindly tell others. If we haven't pleased you, tell us." Again, from Marian and me and our staff — THANK YOU.

Now We Can Blame Social Decline on Chillblains

Sidelights

Dorothy Meyer, CL 3-2298 Elsie Jedd, CL 3-5982

The opening lines of last week's column blamed the current social decline on - of all things - spring fever! That unseasonable warm spell promptly gave way to unreasonable cold so that now chillblains and frost bite can be blamed for the social "recession." If mentioning the weather causes such radical changes, next week could bring floods - of news, we hope.

The most radical change reported so far was endured last Friday by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nyquist, 714 S. Mitchell, who left southern California for a flight home after three warm weeks on the west coast. It was 88 degrees when they left Los Angeles and 10 below zero when they arrived a few hours later at the airport here.

Helping to ward off the shock of their sharp freeze was the Nyquists' recollection of the summery time they had in California. The trip was mostly business and a little recreation for Mr. Nyquist and undiluted pleasure for his wife. They spent the first and third weeks in Los Angeles with San Francisco sandwiched between. A reunion with her college roommate highlighted the San Francisco week for Mrs. Nyquist, and visits with other friends in the Los Angeles area pleasantly occupied the other two weeks.

THE CHARLES Mallon family, 1041 S. Dunton, weekended in Sheboygan at the home of Mrs. Mallon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Erickson. They console local frosty friends with the intelligence that it was even colder in Sheboygan than it was here.

The temperature was higher in the east but so was the snow, report the Wier Swansons, 901 S. Highland, who returned Saturday evening after a 2-day business-and-pleasure stay in New York City. Despite a badly fractured time table, the two days held enough hours for the Swansons to attend, besides business matters, Mary Martin's new hit show, "Sound of Music," and to celebrate Mrs. Swansons' January 21 birthday in Sardi's.

The schedule disrupting began Thursday evening when the snowstorm over New York forced the Swansons' flight to land in Boston. A long bus ride later they arrived in New York, roughly nine hours late, to find snow piled six feet high and their hotel accommodations no longer available. The hotel made amends, the snow made the pace of the city less hectic and everything went smoothly until departure time when schedules again came apart at the seams.

The return flight was three hours late in taking off. Strangers get acquainted during hours of marking time and among the "strangers" the Swansons discovered a Mr. Coffman, former Arlington Heighter. Mr. Coffman asked them to relay greetings to his local friends and former Sherwood neighbors.

DR. AND MRS. Vernon Boman returned home to 739 S. Evergreen last Wednesday evening after four days in Ohio. In Cleveland they attended meetings of the Edward H. Angle society, then went on to Canton for visits with friends in the area.

Dr. and Mrs. Leland Linn, 130 S. Fernandez, came home Monday from a 10-day vacation in Arizona. They divided their time between warm and sunny Tucson and warm and sunny Phoenix, returning to wonder how the same sun can be so cold in Arlington Heights.

When a young lady objects to having a few years shaved off her actual age it's safe to assume she's a very young lady indeed. Debbie Reiss, erroneously reported here as a 5-year-old last year, was 10 years old Friday and proud of it. She celebrated the occasion with a party Saturday for eight girl friends and the Reiss household, 618 S. Evergreen, was full of the sounds of being 10 and glad of it. Games, prizes and birthday-special refreshments were the order of the afternoon.

Sunday Debbie and the rest of the family celebrated her day again with dinner at the Sweden House in Elgin.

KATHLEEN ANDRES was four years old last Tuesday and marked the occasion by staying up a mite later than usual. This was necessary to fully savor the best wishes and excitement brought to the Andres home, 1145 N. Belmont, by family friends and relatives who came to honor the young miss.

Sheryl Patterson, daughter of the William Pattersons, 1011 S. Dunton, will be home today from Northwest Community hospital if all goes as well as last reported. Sheryl and an acutely inflamed appendix parted company just in time last Friday evening during emergency surgery.

Sheryl is just 14 and shared a January 8 birthday celebration with her sister, Linda, who was 11 January 6. Congratulations came in pairs from local and Chicago family members.

Rev. and Mrs. George Aigner of Evanston were guests of honor last Friday evening at a party given by the pastor's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Zehner, 20 S. Salem. Fourteen neighborhood friends were introduced to the honor guests and enjoyed a sociable evening with them. Mr. Aigner is pastor of St. Paul Lutheran church in Evanston.

ON N. DUNTON last week, the birthday celebrations of two senior citizens and one junior member kept the birthday song echoing from house to house. The younger of the two Clarences at the Loechl household, 1213 N. Dunton, was first in the birthday book with a January 14 event.

Two small sisters and their twin ailments postponed his birthday party one week and last Saturday, dawning cold but healthful, was the day of fun. Lunch and the local matinee entertained Clarence's guests, Dale and Vince Weidner and John Meyer. Clarence was 7.

Last Tuesday evening Mrs. Emma Klages, 1135 N. Dunton, received the congratulations of her children and grandchildren at an informal party in her home.

Mrs. Ernest Poulos, 1225 N. Dunton, entertained with a birthday dessert last Wednesday afternoon for her mother, Mrs. Mabel Collins of Chicago. Mrs. Collins and her sister, Mrs. Ruth Scheffler, also of Chicago, spent the day here and with six neighborhood friends of the hostess, who enjoyed the afternoon party.

JANUARY birthdays resulted in three recent celebrations among members of the Warren Rumatz household, 828 S. Chestnut. Barbara was 11 years old January 18, a middle-of-the-week date, and chose the previous Friday for her slumber party celebration. Her wide awake slumber mates were Nancy Clark, Dawn Miller, Susan O'Dor, Cindy Vinberg and Debby Carns. Although it was a Friday the 13th occasion, it wasn't the jinx that kept them awake all night long. They just repelled slumber because it's the thing to do at slumber parties.

Sunday was Mrs. Rumatz' birthday, the 20th is the birth date of a family friend, Don Stryker, and as per custom both families celebrated together. The 2-way party was in the Rumatz home this year and included Mr. Rumatz' mother, his brother and fiancee as well as Mr. Stryker and his family of Deerfield.

Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Rumatz enjoyed a birthday eve "night out," that began with dinner and included bowling with Arlington Heights friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Galdoni and Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Thelander.

R. J. DRISCOLL is home again at 728 S. Vail after nine days in Northwest Community hospital where he underwent an appendectomy. He was seriously ill and will be recuperating at home for an indefinite period before being able to resume normal activities.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Muench, 124 S. Ridge, enjoyed a day at White Fence Farm in Lemont last Wednesday, attending a convention and the social events planned for the conventioneers.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Hendrichs, 1506 E. Fremont, weekended in Lafayette, Ind. in the home of Mrs. Hendrichs' parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Dietrich. Besides the family visit they enjoyed attending the Purdue-Iowa basketball game Saturday night and shared fellow Hoosiers' elation over the Purdue 47-41 victory that gave Purdue equal footing with Ohio for the Big 10 lead.

SYMPATHIES of the community go to Mrs. Walter Duda, 117 S. Windsor, on the death of her mother, Mrs. Anna R. Wangercyn of Calumet City. Mrs. Wangercyn died in her home January 15 and mass was said last Thursday in St. Victor church.

Sympathies also go to Charles Mitchell, 900 E. Dundee, and Paul Mitchell, 3220 N. Buffalo Grove, on the death of their brother, James Mitchell of Chicago, who died January 15 in Northwest Community hospital. In this area Mr. Mitchell also leaves a son, James of Buffalo Grove, and another brother, Albert of Prospect Heights. Services were held January 18 in Black's Memorial home with Rev. Robert O. Bartz officiating. Interment was in Memory Gardens cemetery.

MR. AND MRS. C. K. Godfrey, 307 S. Carlyle, returned from Tiburon, Cal. January 15, where they spent a month visiting their son and daughter-in-law, the Bradford Godfreys and their daughter, Kelly.

Mrs. Charles Barton, 321 S. Windsor, entertained at a luncheon and surprise baby shower last Thursday for Mrs. Richard Evans of Eastwood, whose infant son, William, was born December 12 in Northwest Community hospital.

Co-hostess with Mrs. Barton was Mrs. John Anderson of Arlington Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Stahnke, 110 S. Brighton, gave a party Saturday for members of the Stahnke clan. Guests included the John Stahnkes of Bellwood, the Roland Stahnkes of Downers Grove and the A. William Stahnkes of Plum Grove Woodlands.

Mrs. Thomas Hamilton and Mrs. Gale Oberlin were among the Stonegate residents attending the regional meeting of the Mt. Prospect Sweet Adelines Saturday in La Grange Park. Following the meeting and dinner, there was a novice quartet contest with Mrs. Hamilton's quartet participating. Members of Mrs. Hamilton's quartet, who call themselves the "So-Lows," include the Mrs. Charles Crooks, Mrs. Fred Garvey and Mrs. John Workum of Des Plaines.

MISS SUE BELL, 320 S. Windsor, joined two Indiana university classmates, Miss Judy Hendricks and Miss Lorna Lide of Arlington Heights, in Ladue, Mo., to spend several days visiting another classmate, Miss Ann Bucha.

Richard Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kelly, 317 Stratford, marked his sixth birthday January 15 with a party for eight guests.

Nancy Irwin celebrated her 12th birthday January 13. She was present at a surprise family dinner which included two of her closest friends who remained for a slumber party. Nancy is the daughter of the Nathaniel Irwins, 329 Stratford.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hall, 1305 Woodford, entertained at cocktails Saturday before attending their dance club at the Arlington VFW hall. Guests included the Robert Bukowskis, the Clyde Fosters, the William Francks the William Townsends, the Les Ploetzes and the James Blockis.

Some days it hardly pays to get up, and this seems to be one of those days. Can't seem to get started to write this column. So much I'd like to tell you about, but not one word will form in my "little soft brain."

Just as I said that, it came to me like a flash. Why not thank all the wonderful people who made Harris Pharmacy what it is today? You have been wonderful to Marian and me and we are both thankful and grateful to have you as our customers. For the past number of years it has been a pleasure to serve your needs. We have erred, to be sure, but then you have been patient with us, and, again, our thanks. It is our earnest desire to serve you even better in 1961 and to continue to serve you for many years to come.

There is only one thing I can say in closing, "If we have pleased you, won't you kindly tell others. If we haven't pleased you, tell us." Again, from Marian and me and our staff — THANK YOU.

'Misleading Statements' Rapped by JP Candidate

Thomas Hanlon, an independent candidate for justice of the peace in Wheeling township, told the Herald this week that he believes statements made recently by another JP candidate are misleading.

Hanlon, of 610 N. Wilshire ln., Arlington Heights, said remarks by candidate Donald L. Norman, 1840 N. Chestnut, Arlington Heights, were "undoubtedly well meant, but have resulted in some misunderstanding and confusion.

"Statements attributed to Mr. Norman on January 12 seem to imply that some sort of official Republican Party endorsement has been given the candidate and his slate. This is not the case."

HANLON SAID the Wheeling Township Republican organization did not hold a caucus and is not endorsing candidates for township office. He noted that the race for justice of the peace, "is wide open, just as it should be."

Hanlon, 29, is Republican captain of precinct eight and assistant general counsel for Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc. An active GOP worker, he is a member of both the Wheeling Township Regular Republican club and Young Republican club.

"It is important to remember that both major political parties have officially decided to stay out of the township election," Hanlon said. "There is no official Republican candidate in the race for justice of the peace or any other office."

HANLON'S remarks were prompted by a January 12 Herald article which quoted candidate Norman as saying he was organizing an "All Republican" slate to run for township offices.

In a letter to the Herald January 19, Norman clarified his comments by saying his Better Government Party "expects" its candidates will be of "Republican persuasion." (ACM

Announce Issues For Study Series

Where should excess township funds be spent? This is one of the questions raised by the League of Women Voters of Arlington Heights, reports Mrs. R. B. Yadon, president.

This and other local, state and national issues are being studied by the women in a series of unit meetings to be held this week, with Mrs. Julian How acting as local agenda chairman.

OTHER ISSUES include support of council-manager government, citizen participation in nomination of local candidates, a revenue amendment to the state constitution, the relationships between the United State economy and that of underdeveloped nations.

Also, the "inbalance of payments, promotion of U.S. private investment in developing nations and using the nation's farm surpluses to promote economic development."

Spearheading these issues in workshops and discussion were Mrs. Seth Grossman, Mrs. Louis Nye, Mrs. Marc Law Jr., Mrs. H. R. Powell, Mrs. Dennis Moore and Mrs. John Hoppe. (ACM

Editor Is Committee Chairman

Charles Mason, associate editor of Star Publications, Chicago Heights, was elected chairman of the editorial committee of the Suburban Press Foundation last Friday at a committee meeting in Arlington Heights.

Elected vice chairmen of the committee were James McCulla, editor of the Independent Register, Libertyville, and Bruce Ladd, news editor of Paddock Publications' Arlington Heights Herald.

MEMBERS of the editorial committee voted to consider problems of personnel, photography, advertising and editorial content at another meeting scheduled for February 23.

The Suburban Press Foundation, established last year, is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to further the development of suburban communities and the newspapers which serve them.

'Compact Figure' Is Goal Of YMCA Women's Course

'Compact Figure' is-3 bold ..

The word "compact" means different things to different people. Men will probably think of "compact cars," but women usually think of "compact figures."

For those gals who are longing for "compact figures," Northwest Suburban YMCA will be starting morning and evening lose-weight courses. The theme for this year's lose-weight classes is "Get a Compact Figure for a Compact Car."

Classes are scheduled for Tuesday mornings from 9:15 to 11:30 starting January 31, and Friday evenings from 7:15 to 9:15 starting February 3.

LOSING WEIGHT can be fun when it is done in a group, and it is so much easier when there is group incentive. Last year a total of 187½ pounds and 133 inches were lost by the 24 women who attended the lose-weight course.

Classes will include weighing in and measuring each week with special fun prizes going to gals making the most progress. Exercises especially designed to tighten up flabby muscles and help to properly proportion figures will also be part of the weekly routine. Discussion periods on nutrition, diet, low calorie menus and recipes, plus posture, tips on walking and body control will also be part of the course.

THE SUBURBAN newspaper is a new product — a new kind of communication going to a very special audience, declared F. J. Van Bortel, vice president of MAR PLAN division of McCann-Erickson Advertising. He addressed a market forum luncheon January 12 in the Sheraton-Blackstone hotel, Chicago. The meeting was sponsored by the Suburban Press Foundation, Inc., and attended by suburban publishers and advertising managers as well as representatives of five mid-schools of journalism.

THE GROWING importance of suburban journalism was discussed January 12 at a market forum luncheon sponsored by the Suburban Press Foundation, Inc. Pictured above are Chester K. Hayes, 605 N. Chestnut ave., Arlington Heights, executive director of the foundation; Robert Y. Paddock, foundation president and vice president of Paddock Publications, Inc.; and F.J. Van Bortel, vice president of MAR PLAN division of McCann-Erickson Advertising. Van Bortel was luncheon speaker.

What Are New Dimensions?

Suburban Press Called New Communication with Market

The suburban newspaper of today is — or should be — a "new product," declared one of the nation's top market research authorities recently.

"Is it really a new type or kind of product, with a new kind of communication going to a very special audience?" asked F. J. Van Bortel, vice president of MAR PLAN, market research division of McCann - Erickson Advertising. He was principal speaker at a market forum luncheon held January 12 in the Mayfair Room of the Sheraton-Blackstone hotel. It was sponsored by the Suburban Press Foundation, Inc.

"IF THE suburban press serves a purpose not currently served by the major metropolitan papers, then you will have to be judged and evaluated on the basis of some entirely new criterion," challenged Van Bortel. "You are going to have to tell the advertisers what these new dimensions are."

Attending the luncheon meeting were almost 100 persons, including charter members of the Foundation, suburban publishers and their marketing and advertising staffs, and representatives of seven midwest schools of journalism.

Presiding at the meeting was Robert Y. Paddock of Arlington Heights, foundation president. The speaker was introduced by Chester K. Hayes, executive director of the foundation.

DECLARED Van Bortel: "Your first step as suburban publishers is to define the role of the suburban newspapers for yourselves and then to advertisers. What is the role and function of the modern suburban newspaper? What are its responsibilities? How is it different from other media? How important are these differences?

"I believe that what advertisers would want most to know is how effective and significant is the suburban newspaper as a means of communicating with its audience. I think the advertiser will want to know what kind of significance his message will achieve in your newspapers. Will what he has to say about his product gain additional stature, appropriateness, and authority when it is seen on your pages?" asked Van Bortel.

The Suburban Press Foundation, Inc. is a non-profit, cooperative research and development organization designed to improve suburban communities and the newspapers which serve them.

IN ANOTHER address in Chicago recently, newspapers were lauded as the key to retailing success.

A leading retail spokesman told members of the Newspapers Advertising Executives association that the future growth and prosperity of American retailing is largely dependent on the growth and prosperity of the country's newspapers.

Wheelock H. Bingham, president of R. H. Macy and co., said that in the coming decade retail and newspaper industries will share the prospect of expanding business and the problem of keeping down distribution costs. He added that newspapers are a "vital element in the great American distribution system."

Bingham called for formation of a close partnership between retailers and newspaper advertising managers with a goal of increased effectiveness for retailing. (B

Lutheran Classes For Adults Slated

The third session in a public adult information course on the teachings of the Lutheran church will be held Sunday, Jan. 29, by the Lutheran Church of the Cross.

The 10-week series, which began with discussion on the church and the Bible, this week will take up "God and Human Sin," the Rev. Bruce K. Benander, pastor, said.

PASTOR Benander, whose church is an Augustana Lutheran church mission serving the south section of Arlington Heights and vicinity, is conducting the course at 3:30 p.m. each Sunday in Our Saviour's Lutheran church, 1234 N. State rd.

"These meetings are presented to the general public in order that anyone who wishes information on the various parts of the Christian faith may have the opportunity to attend," he said.

Topics to be discussed durring the remainder of the series are: Feb. 5, "The Divine Redeemer;" Feb. 12, "The Sacraments;" Feb. 19, "Evangelism and Missions;" Feb. 26, "Prayer and Lutheran Worship;" March 5, "The Lutheran Church and Other Churches;" March 12, "The Stewardship of Life;" and March 19, "The Congregation at Work."

"OPEN DISCUSSION is invited at these meetings so that all questions might be considered in the light of Biblical teachings," Pastor Benander said. He also noted that a nursery is provided for parents who wish to bring their children to the meetings.

Lutheran Church of the Cross recently purchased a site for its future sanctuary on the south side of Arlington and is using facilities made available by Our Saviour's church for the discussion series. The Augustana mission now meets in Dryden school, 750 S. Dryden, with worship at 10:45 a.m. and Sunday school at 9:30 a.m.

Wheeling Young GOP Plans Meet

The Wheeling Township Young Republican club will meet Wednesday, Feb. 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the community room of the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan association building, 25 E. Campbell st.

The film "Operation Abolition" will be shown by Herman Deisenroth, chairman of the Americanism committee of the Des Plaines Veterans of Foreign Wars post, according to Tom Houser, club president.

ALSO ON the meeting's agenda is discussion of the club's annual dance being held Saturday, March 25, and an address by Robert Bradner, chairman of the Cook County Young Republican organization.

All residents of Wheeling township are eligible for membership in the club. Further information may be obtained by phoning recording secretary Judy Heinrich at CL 9-3600. (ACM

Mardi Gras Ball Costumes Readied

Art club students at Prospect high school are busily working on huge masks and spectacular costumes for the Mardi Gras, a colorful masquerade ball which will be held at the high school from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. on March 11.

Plans have been made to transform the Prospect high cafeteria into a typical street one might find in the famous French quarter of New Orleans.

THE transformation will take place under the magic paint brush of George Fredin, art instructor, and his art club students. They will be assisted by the French and Spanish clubs of the school.

Dressed in gay costumes or grotesque masks, couples will dance to the festive music of Don Caron's band. Entertainment will also be provided by Orchesis, Prospect high's modern dance group, and by other school organizations.

THE KING and Queen of the Mardi Gras will lead the Grand March. Their court will consist of two other couples chosen for their original costumes.

Gifts for the queen will include a bouquet of long stemmed roses, dinner for two, and play tickets for two.

Jon Woods will act as Master of Ceremonies.

Officers of the Prospect High School Art Club are Jean Ward, president; Carol Schmidt, vice-president; Taffy Poulson, secretary; and Susan Turner, treasurer.

1. Look down the side of a new Pontiac
2. See how wheels and body form one line
3. That's Wide-Track balance (No other car has it)

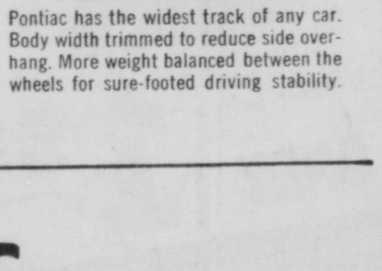
Pontiac holds, hugs and hangs on to the road like no other car. There's no outside-of-the-wheels weight to cause lean or sway. More weight is balanced between the wheels for improved stability.

Another Wide-Track advantage: There's more room between the wheels to mount the springs, shocks and control arms at more stable angles to the wheels. This prevents drifting and wandering, allows Pontiac to track flat and level as it travels around corners and curves.

New Wide-Track feels every bit as steady as it looks. Test it soon!



Pontiac has the widest track of any car. Body width trimmed to reduce side overhang. More weight balanced between the wheels for sure-footed driving stability.

Eight Scouts Receive Top Honors in First Aid Meet

Eight Boy Scouts from the Arlington Heights area won top honors Friday night in the 26th annual Blackhawk (Mt. Prospect, Arlington Heights, Prospect Heights and Elk Grove Village) First Aid competition held in Miner school, Arlington Heights.

Troop 155 of Mt. Prospect, sponsored by the Lincoln School PTA, placed two patrols in the top 11—the Cheyene and Flaming Arrow patrols.

Other troops with winning first award patrols were: Troop 32 of the First Presbyterian church of Arlington Heights, Troop 51 of St. Marks Lutheran church of Mt. Prospect, Troop 53 of the VFW post of Mt. Prospect and Troop 55 of the Holy Name society of St. Raymond's church, Mt. Prospect.

Q. Is it considered really proper to type social letters?

A. This is quite proper, and increasingly popular, too. Typed letters should be written on a single sheet, with only one side of the paper used. And be sure that your signature at the end of the letter is written by hand.

Q. What is the proper procedure in checking out of a hotel?

A. If you have luggage and need assistance, you pick up the phone and say, "I'm checking out. Will you please send a bellboy?" If you have only a small, light bag you wish to carry yourself, you carry it to the lobby and refuse the services of a bellboy while checking out at the desk.

If Elected, Party Plans To Form Advisory Group

Joseph Schneller, an announced candidate for president of the Arlington Heights board of trustees, disclosed this week his party's intentions to form an advisory citizens committee if elected.

"The Citizens Party candidates feel the need for keeping aware of the public's interests," Schneller told the Herald. "If elected, we propose to establish a committee of representatives from all village organizations to act as an advisory body to the board of trustees."

SCHNELLER, 37- year- old owner of the Schneller Furniture company in Arlington Market shopping center, said he and his running mates would plan to meet regularly with the citizens commitee to learn of village problems and sectional difficulties.

"We believe the committee would also stimulate the public's interest in village government," Schneller, of 212 S. Dwyer, pointed out. He cited the recent effectiveness of the Village Hall Citizens committee, noting the thorough and non-partisan service it performed.

Candidates for three village trustee posts under the Citizens Party banner are George T. Coker Jr., 1611 N. Ridge; Barney V. Erickson, 611 N. Dunton, and James W. Sutton Jr., 627 S. State rd. Filling out the ticket is Mrs. Howard Jarvis, 101 N. Phelps, candidate for village clerk.

CANDIDATE Coker, 30, is a products application engineer in the aviation section of the Shell Oil company. He is a member of the board of directors and district representative of the Hasbrook Civic association and a member of the Society of Automotive Engineering.

A former Eagle Boy Scout, Coker has retained his interest in youth by service as vice chairman of Boy Scout troop 34. He has been a DeMolay officer and earned three letters and served as swimming coach at Colorado School of Mines.

Coker and his wife, Ramona, have been married nine years and have two boys, ages seven and two.

Erickson, 44, is associated with the Krause and Kehe real estate firm in Arlington Heights and is owner of the Tower Cleaners in Mt. Prospect. He was formerly part owner of the hardware store now known as Bowen Hardware.

A 10-YEAR member of the Arlington Heights Lions club, Erickson is a charter member of the Arlington Elks club and a past director and treasurer of the Arlington Heights chamber of commerce. He brings a wealth of business experience to the Citizens ticket.

The Ericksons, long-time residents of the village, are the parents of two children, Deanna (Mrs. Don Butts) and James, a sophomore at Northwestern university.

Sutton, 38, a resident of Arlington Heights since 1949, is a safety engineer for the Travelers Insurance company. He is active in the United States Naval Reserve and a member of the teaching staff at the Naval Reserve Officers school in Evanston.

A graduate of the U.S. Merchant Marine academy, Sutton is a qualified inspector of the ASME and a licensed marine engineer. Sutton feels his business training has taught him to probe beneath the surface of issues and to weigh all evidence.

Sutton and his wife, Virginia, are the parents of a five-year-old daughter, Shelley.

MRS. DORIS JARVIS, candidate for village clerk, moved to Arlington Heights with her family five years ago. Her husband, Howard, works in sales promotion for United States Gypsum company.

After two years at the University of Illinois, Mrs. Jarvis enlisted in the Air Force WACS and became a captain in three years. She is the mother of two children, Howard III, 13, and Lynly, 11.

Her many activities here include three years of fund raising for the Northwest Community hospital, work in publicity and fashions for the hospital's Women's Auxiliary, service as a Cub Scout den mother and chairman of refreshments for the PTA.

Mrs. Jarvis, 40, is now serving on the nominating committee for the school board of district 25, works as a volunteer in the Northwest Community hospital pharmacy department, and assists her husband as president of the Arlington Heights Little League.

If Elected, Party Plans To Form Advisory Group

Joseph Schneller, an announced candidate for president of the Arlington Heights board of trustees, disclosed this week his party's intentions to form an advisory citizens committee if elected.

"The Citizens Party candidates feel the need for keeping aware of the public's interests," Schneller told the Herald. "If elected, we propose to establish a committee of representatives from all village organizations to act as an advisory body to the board of trustees."

SCHNELLER, 37- year- old owner of the Schneller Furniture company in Arlington Market shopping center, said he and his running mates would plan to meet regularly with the citizens commitee to learn of village problems and sectional difficulties.

"We believe the committee would also stimulate the public's interest in village government," Schneller, of 212 S. Dwyer, pointed out. He cited the recent effectiveness of the Village Hall Citizens committee, noting the thorough and non-partisan service it performed.

Candidates for three village trustee posts under the Citizens Party banner are George T. Coker Jr., 1611 N. Ridge; Barney V. Erickson, 611 N. Dunton, and James W. Sutton Jr., 627 S. State rd. Filling out the ticket is Mrs. Howard Jarvis, 101 N. Phelps, candidate for village clerk.

CANDIDATE Coker, 30, is a products application engineer in the aviation section of the Shell Oil company. He is a member of the board of directors and district representative of the Hasbrook Civic association and a member of the Society of Automotive Engineering.

A former Eagle Boy Scout, Coker has retained his interest in youth by service as vice chairman of Boy Scout troop 34. He has been a DeMolay officer and earned three letters and served as swimming coach at Colorado School of Mines.

Coker and his wife, Ramona, have been married nine years and have two boys, ages seven and two.

Erickson, 44, is associated with the Krause and Kehe real estate firm in Arlington Heights and is owner of the Tower Cleaners in Mt. Prospect. He was formerly part owner of the hardware store now known as Bowen Hardware.

A 10-YEAR member of the Arlington Heights Lions club, Erickson is a charter member of the Arlington Elks club and a past director and treasurer of the Arlington Heights chamber of commerce. He brings a wealth of business experience to the Citizens ticket.

The Ericksons, long-time residents of the village, are the parents of two children, Deanna (Mrs. Don Butts) and James, a sophomore at Northwestern university.

Sutton, 38, a resident of Arlington Heights since 1949, is a safety engineer for the Travelers Insurance company. He is active in the United States Naval Reserve and a member of the teaching staff at the Naval Reserve Officers school in Evanston.

A graduate of the U.S. Merchant Marine academy, Sutton is a qualified inspector of the ASME and a licensed marine engineer. Sutton feels his business training has taught him to probe beneath the surface of issues and to weigh all evidence.

Sutton and his wife, Virginia, are the parents of a five-year-old daughter, Shelley.

MRS. DORIS JARVIS, candidate for village clerk, moved to Arlington Heights with her family five years ago. Her husband, Howard, works in sales promotion for United States Gypsum company.

After two years at the University of Illinois, Mrs. Jarvis enlisted in the Air Force WACS and became a captain in three years. She is the mother of two children, Howard III, 13, and Lynly, 11.

Her many activities here include three years of fund raising for the Northwest Community hospital, work in publicity and fashions for the hospital's Women's Auxiliary, service as a Cub Scout den mother and chairman of refreshments for the PTA.

Mrs. Jarvis, 40, is now serving on the nominating committee for the school board of district 25, works as a volunteer in the Northwest Community hospital pharmacy department, and assists her husband as president of the Arlington Heights Little League.

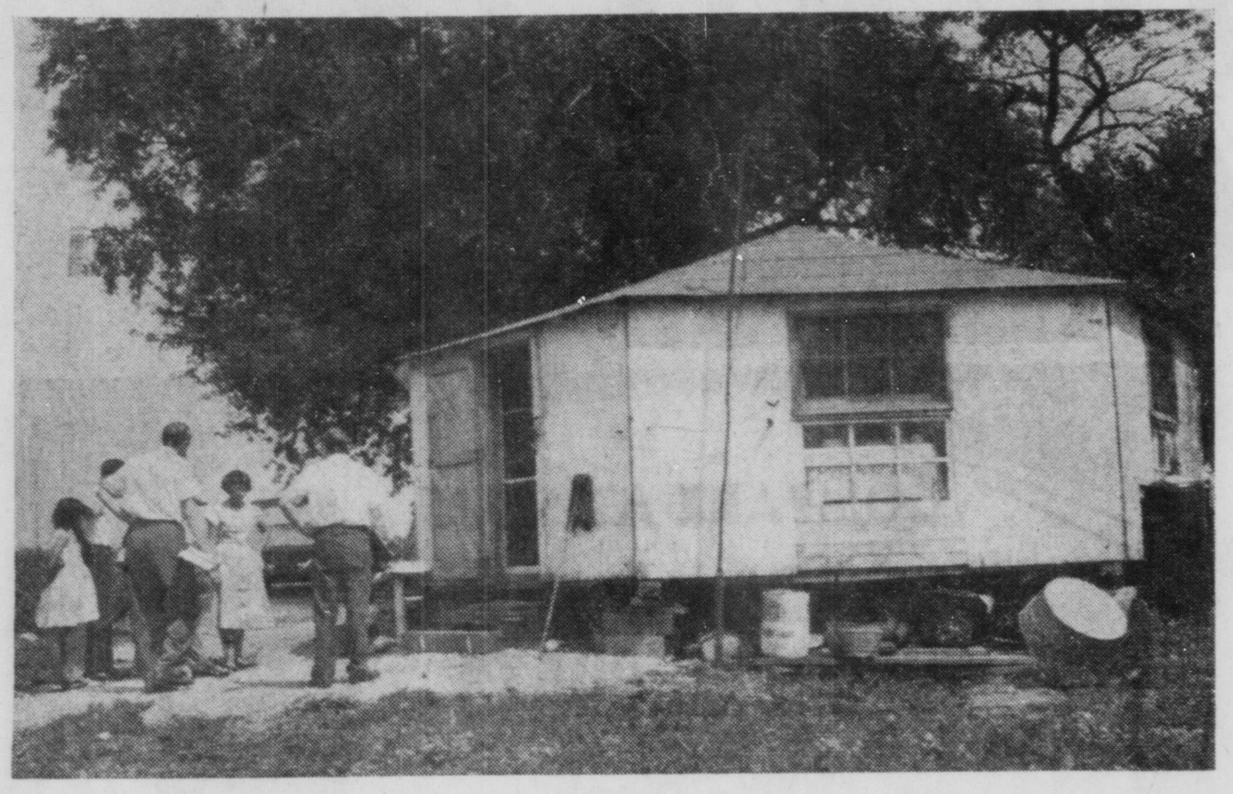
Labor Chief Bans Foreign Migratory



TYPICAL OF housing provided migratory farm workers is this converted chicken brooder shack in north Addison township, DuPage county. New regulations covering hiring of migratory workers and standards of housing for such workers were announced last week by the state labor director.

Cook County Growers Hear New Regulations

by DICK HOFFMANN

The assistant state director of labor last week stunned an assembly of northwest Cook county vegetable growers with the assertion that foreign labor to harvest crops will be banned this year.

Samuel C. Bernstein, assistant labor director and commissioner of unemployment compensation, delivered the ultimatum last Thursday before members of the Cook County Truck Gardeners' and Farmers' association.

Bernstein informed the assembly of growers that "in lieu" of the hiring of "Braceros." (Mexican national migratory workers) the Illinois Department of Labor will insist on the hiring of domestic migrants and unemployed industrial workers as one step toward combatting unemployment.

IN ADDITION, he noted, growers making application for labor through the Illinois State Employment Service will be required to attest to a statement which shows adequate housing for workers.

The labor director, speaking at a meeting marked by occasional outbursts and bitterness, also predicted passage of a minimum agricultural wage, and foresaw the elimination of Public Law 78, which regulates use of the foreign migrant labor force.

THE GROWERS, meeting in their new headquarters at 2120 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights, were also addressed by:

—the Rev. Fr. Robert A. Reicher, of the Catholic Council on Working Life, who forecast a stepping up by labor unions to organize migratory workers unless growers make improvements in housing and wages;

—Lester Hunt, assistant to the executive secretary on the Catholic Bishops' Committee for Migratory Workers, who said depressed wages of migrants throughout the country made the value of the family farmer's labor no more than 35 to 50 cents an hour;

—Charles Hayes, executive editor of Paddock Publications' 14 newspapers, who labeled the problem of adequate housing and wages for the migrant "not just a growers' problem but a problem for the community, state and nation."

Bernstein said that "we do not need in Illinois the importation of foreign workers. We only used 400 in the state last year." This compares to 2900 seasonal workers reported employed on Cook county farms last year.

HE ADDED that while there may have been some "overdramatization" of the plight of the migrant worker, "there is enough truth in these reports so that Congress will do something about it. I think you'll see action in housing for migratory workers in the Illinois legislature this year," he commented.

"We have to do this as citizens of Illinois and the nation," Bernstein stressed of the labor department's new policy. "We have a totality of obligation; we cannot isolate your problems."

Some farmers complained that blocking of the foreign labor source would mean the hiring of skid row derelicts who were unwilling and unable to do agricultural labor. "I had 400 tons of tomatoes and one picker last year, and I had to leave 100 tons in the field," one farmer claimed.

WALTER SASS, president of the truck gardeners' association, declared that "I've been preaching to get housing in shape, but we can't spend thousands getting housing in shape if we can't get any pickers." Sass said housing for migrants in this area had improved "200 per cent."

"I pay wages of $93 a week, provide electric lights, heat and all a worker can eat in vegetables in the field," Sass stated, saying this was more than employees of some department stores earned.

Richard B. Calhoun, chief of farm placement for the labor department, said: "I don't think any man lost any crops because he didn't have help." He warned farmers that they were subject to a fine in violation of Texas laws if they attempted to recruit migratory workers on their own in that state.

"I'll call Mr. Bernstein to come out and help me," cracked one grower. "It doesn't sound right to me in the United States of America to come out and dictate things like that."

CALHOUN SAID the housing statement—required with growers' requests for pickers through the state employment service—is for those who have done nothing to provide adequate shelter, who "do not put a roof on the house, and make their help walk a mile for water."

"These are the rules made by (former) Secretary (of labor) Mitchell. He's using the Wagner-Peyser Act as the basis of his directive," Calhoun explained. (The act, an extension of the Wagner Labor Relations Act, attempts to restrict the use of employment services of state and federal governments to those employers insuring suitable housing and wages.)

Fr. Reicher said he regards the farmers not as "architects of the migratory system but captives of the system." The goal of the Catholic Council on Working Life is to establish a national policy on migratory and domestic labor, he explained.

The priest said growers could "anticipate more friction and Congressional action" if wages were not improved, and he reminded his audience that national concern for the migrant reached a plateau with the television production, "Harvest of Shame," shown the day after Thanksgiving.

HUNT, investigator for the bishops' committee, told the growers that Mexico and Puerto Rico have passed laws requiring minimum wages. "The national wage average of the migrant worker is less than $1,000 on and off the farm. This compares with an annual wage of $2,225 which is estimated must be earned in this country to provide the barest necessities."

He said the earning of 35 cents an hour in Arkansas for picking cotton coupled with substandard housing is creating a public clamor of "We've got to do something about the farmers."

Hunt said 53 per cent of the country's farms did not hire help last year, and he predicted that migrant labor will become an "obsolete idea in a few short years."

WAGES OF THE farm worker were 35 per cent less than those of the factory employee, Hunt said. "This creates the movement from farms to the city." But he noted that a national minimum wage would benefit Illinois farmers since their southern competition would be forced to pay considerably more.

He also thought child labor laws affecting agriculture would be passed. "The minimum age will probably be put at 14 years of age which is still two years younger than the industrial minimum of 16," he said.

Hunt added that while the average farm income for the nation (part capital investment, part labor) is only $2,300, this included the land tilled by sharecroppers and is a misleading figure.

EDITOR HAYES said the growers have had "poor spokesmen" and have created a negative image. "With thousands of humans living in pig sties, without heat or electricity, the growers reaction has not been to say, 'Yes, it is a problem!' Instead they say the migrant people are lazy and dirty."

Hayes, past president of the Opportunity Council, said he thought the housewife would be willing to pay more for produce "rather than have this human misery." He called on growers to develop better community relations and suggested establishment of a public relations committee to work with the press and interested civic organizations.

He also proposed an annual award for good housing, noting "people don't appreciate that some growers put thousands into housing for migrants."

HE CONCEDED that some of the migrant workers and their families are illiterate. "There is a cultural lag some have to contend with, and there are those who have never been exposed to decent standards of living. There is a terrific overhead in maintaining housing for some who don't know how to use it.

"But we're talking about human beings. This is the overriding difference. You cannot ignore them."

Injured Skaters Taken to Hospital

TWO OTHER boys required stitches for cuts from ice spills Sunday. They are James Jamieson, 13, of Mt. Prospect, who received a cut over his left eye, and Craig Goldthwaite, 9, of Buffalo Grove, who cut his chin.

Daniel Lounsbury, 7, of Roselle, was brought for emergency treatment last week, after he had a tangle with a couch spring. The boy was playing when a spring popped up and went in and out of his arm. His father was unable to remove it, so he cut the spring and brought Daniel to the hospital with the spring still in the fleshy part of his arm. Staff members removed the spring and cleaned the wound.

Sheryl Seyfert, 13, of Arlington Heights, suffered a chip fracture of the middle finger of her right hand in gym class. A splint was applied.

TWO CHILDREN were brought for emergency treatment after they ate harmful substances. Carol Shearer, 18 months, of Rolling Meadows was thought to have eaten powdered bleach, and Elizebeth Ann Whelton, 3, of Roselle, had her stomach pumped after she ate an unknown quantity of baby aspirin.

Eight-year-old Robert Shropshire, of Palatine, suffered an eye injury after he ran into a barbed wire fence last week. Nancy Cavalla, 13, of Arlington Heights, suffered second degree burns on her right arm when an electric heater fell on it.

Mary Chapman, Mt. Prospect, cut her right wrist on a saucer. The wound required eight stitches. Donald Barnas, 13 months, of Forest Park, cut his right eyebrow in a fall; John MacDonald, 24, of Chicago, cut right index finger while at work; Tracy Kihn, 2, of Palatine, cut finger; Janice Elia, 10, of Mt. Prospect, cut finger on a razor blade; Constance Connery, 18 months, of Arlington Heights, cut face from a fall down basement stairs; Anthony Vivirito, 44, of Prospect Heights, cut tip of left thumb with power saw. Labor Chief Bans Foreign Migratory

TYPICAL OF housing provided migratory farm workers is this converted chicken brooder shack in north Addison township, DuPage county. New regulations covering hiring of migratory workers and standards of housing for such workers were announced last week by the state labor director.

Cook County Growers Hear New Regulations

by DICK HOFFMANN

The assistant state director of labor last week stunned an assembly of northwest Cook county vegetable growers with the assertion that foreign labor to harvest crops will be banned this year.

Samuel C. Bernstein, assistant labor director and commissioner of unemployment compensation, delivered the ultimatum last Thursday before members of the Cook County Truck Gardeners' and Farmers' association.

Bernstein informed the assembly of growers that "in lieu" of the hiring of "Braceros." (Mexican national migratory workers) the Illinois Department of Labor will insist on the hiring of domestic migrants and unemployed industrial workers as one step toward combatting unemployment.

IN ADDITION, he noted, growers making application for labor through the Illinois State Employment Service will be required to attest to a statement which shows adequate housing for workers.

The labor director, speaking at a meeting marked by occasional outbursts and bitterness, also predicted passage of a minimum agricultural wage, and foresaw the elimination of Public Law 78, which regulates use of the foreign migrant labor force.

THE GROWERS, meeting in their new headquarters at 2120 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights, were also addressed by:

—the Rev. Fr. Robert A. Reicher, of the Catholic Council on Working Life, who forecast a stepping up by labor unions to organize migratory workers unless growers make improvements in housing and wages;

—Lester Hunt, assistant to the executive secretary on the Catholic Bishops' Committee for Migratory Workers, who said depressed wages of migrants throughout the country made the value of the family farmer's labor no more than 35 to 50 cents an hour;

—Charles Hayes, executive editor of Paddock Publications' 14 newspapers, who labeled the problem of adequate housing and wages for the migrant "not just a growers' problem but a problem for the community, state and nation."

Bernstein said that "we do not need in Illinois the importation of foreign workers. We only used 400 in the state last year." This compares to 2900 seasonal workers reported employed on Cook county farms last year.

HE ADDED that while there may have been some "overdramatization" of the plight of the migrant worker, "there is enough truth in these reports so that Congress will do something about it. I think you'll see action in housing for migratory workers in the Illinois legislature this year," he commented.

"We have to do this as citizens of Illinois and the nation," Bernstein stressed of the labor department's new policy. "We have a totality of obligation; we cannot isolate your problems."

Some farmers complained that blocking of the foreign labor source would mean the hiring of skid row derelicts who were unwilling and unable to do agricultural labor. "I had 400 tons of tomatoes and one picker last year, and I had to leave 100 tons in the field," one farmer claimed.

WALTER SASS, president of the truck gardeners' association, declared that "I've been preaching to get housing in shape, but we can't spend thousands getting housing in shape if we can't get any pickers." Sass said housing for migrants in this area had improved "200 per cent."

"I pay wages of $93 a week, provide electric lights, heat and all a worker can eat in vegetables in the field," Sass stated, saying this was more than employees of some department stores earned.

Richard B. Calhoun, chief of farm placement for the labor department, said: "I don't think any man lost any crops because he didn't have help." He warned farmers that they were subject to a fine in violation of Texas laws if they attempted to recruit migratory workers on their own in that state.

"I'll call Mr. Bernstein to come out and help me," cracked one grower. "It doesn't sound right to me in the United States of America to come out and dictate things like that."

CALHOUN SAID the housing statement—required with growers' requests for pickers through the state employment service—is for those who have done nothing to provide adequate shelter, who "do not put a roof on the house, and make their help walk a mile for water."

"These are the rules made by (former) Secretary (of labor) Mitchell. He's using the Wagner-Peyser Act as the basis of his directive," Calhoun explained. (The act, an extension of the Wagner Labor Relations Act, attempts to restrict the use of employment services of state and federal governments to those employers insuring suitable housing and wages.)

Fr. Reicher said he regards the farmers not as "architects of the migratory system but captives of the system." The goal of the Catholic Council on Working Life is to establish a national policy on migratory and domestic labor, he explained.

The priest said growers could "anticipate more friction and Congressional action" if wages were not improved, and he reminded his audience that national concern for the migrant reached a plateau with the television production. "Harvest of Shame," shown the day after Thanksgiving.

HUNT, investigator for the bishops' committee, told the growers that Mexico and Puerto Rico have passed laws requiring minimum wages. "The national wage average of the migrant worker is less than $1,000 on and off the farm. This compares with an annual wage of $2,225 which is estimated must be earned in this country to provide the barest necessities."

He said the earning of 35 cents an hour in Arkansas for picking cotton coupled with substandard housing is creating a public clamor of "We've got to do something about the farmers."

Hunt said 53 per cent of the country's farms did not hire help last year, and he predicted that migrant labor will become an "obsolete idea in a few short years."

WAGES OF THE farm worker were 35 per cent less than those of the factory employee, Hunt said. "This creates the movement from farms to the city." But he noted that a national minimum wage would benefit Illinois farmers since their southern competition would be forced to pay considerably more.

He also thought child labor laws affecting agriculture would be passed. "The minimum age will probably be put at 14 years of age which is still two years younger than the industrial minimum of 16," he said.

Hunt added that while the average farm income for the nation (part capital investment, part labor) is only $2,300, this included the land tilled by sharecroppers and is a misleading figure.

EDITOR HAYES said the growers have had "poor spokesmen" and have created a negative image. "With thousands of humans living in pig sties, without heat or electricity, the growers reaction has not been to say, 'Yes, it is a problem!' Instead they say the migrant people are lazy and dirty."

Hayes, past president of the Opportunity Council, said he thought the housewife would be willing to pay more for produce "rather than have this human misery." He called on growers to develop better community relations and suggested establishment of a public relations committee to work with the press and interested civic organizations.

He also proposed an annual award for good housing, noting "people don't appreciate that some growers put thousands into housing for migrants."

HE CONCEDED that some of the migrant workers and their families are illiterate. "There is a cultural lag some have to contend with, and there are those who have never been exposed to decent standards of living. There is a terrific overhead in maintaining housing for some who don't know how to use it.

"But we're talking about human beings. This is the overriding difference. You cannot ignore them."

Injured Skaters Taken to Hospital

TWO OTHER boys required stitches for cuts from ice spills Sunday. They are James Jamieson, 13, of Mt. Prospect, who received a cut over his left eye, and Craig Goldthwaite, 9, of Buffalo Grove, who cut his chin.

Daniel Lounsbury, 7, of Roselle, was brought for emergency treatment last week, after he had a tangle with a couch spring. The boy was playing when a spring popped up and went in and out of his arm. His father was unable to remove it, so he cut the spring and brought Daniel to the hospital with the spring still in the fleshy part of his arm. Staff members removed the spring and cleaned the wound.

Sheryl Seyfert, 13, of Arlington Heights, suffered a chip fracture of the middle finger of her right hand in gym class. A splint was applied.

TWO CHILDREN were brought for emergency treatment after they ate harmful substances. Carol Shearer, 18 months, of Rolling Meadows was thought to have eaten powdered bleaeh, and Elizabeth Ann Whelton, 3, of Roselle, had her stomach pumped after she ate an unknown quantity of baby aspirin.

Eight-year-old Robert Shropshire, of Palatine, suffered an eye injury after he ran into a barbed wire fence last week. Nancy Cavalla, 13, of Arlington Heights, suffered second degree burns on her right arm when an electric heater fell on it.

Mary Chapman, Mt. Prospect, cut her right wrist on a saucer. The wound required eight stitches. Donald Barnas, 13 months, of Forest Park, cut his right eyebrow in a fall; John MacDonald, 24, of Chicago, cut right index finger while at work; Tracy Kihn, 2, of Palatine, cut finger; Janice Elia, 10, of Mt. Prospect, cut finger on a razor blade; Constance Connery, 18 months, of Arlington Heights, cut face from a fall down basement stairs; Anthony Vivirito, 44, of Prospect Heights, cut tip of left thumb with power saw. 'Coffee Break'

Coffee determines when the school children of Kona, on the island of Hawaii, have their vacations. The children help pick the crop when it reaches maturity, and school is dismissed. The "working vacation" usually starts in September and ends in January.

Ridge Park–Sherwood

FROM RIDGE PARK

Bobby Stevens was 3 Sunday. To celebrate, he invited his brother, Billy, and the following children to a luncheon: Johnny, Joey and Jimmie Lauer and Noreen Ronayne. Instead of the usual cake, Nancy served individual cupcakes with candles atop each. Bobby is the son of Nancy and Bob Stevens, 1007 N. Oakton.

The Bruno Waaras, 804 N. Ridge, feel as though they have been to South America and Europe after having Madame Maria da Silva and her son, Paulo, with them for a week. Madame da Silva, who lives in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil with her family, will be in the States for six months on a Fullbright scholarship and plans to spend six weeks of that time in Arlington Heights, studying the high school system.

A math teacher herself, she is particularly interested in teaching methods. She will be at the University of Illinois for a week and then will return here to spend some time in the slum areas of Chicago, studying the methods by which they keep children in school there.

Paulo, on summer vacation, will be with his mother until her 6-month stay in the States is up, the end of February.

She had fascinating tales to tell the Waaras about her recent trip to Europe. Having won a 6-month trip to Europe by writing a prize winning math book, she was able to study teaching methods there and will have a wealth of information to bring back to her native Brazil, when she returns. She has already left a wealth of information on teaching methods in three different continents with the Waaras.

THERE HAS been plenty of birthday celebrating at the R. A. Beckmans', 812 N. Fernandez. Mrs. Beckman had a birthday dinner for her husband Wednesday, inviting Rev. Hughes Morris, the Paul Patricks and Leta McMillan. The following day they had a surprise visit from their daughter and son-in-law, the Bob Soderborgs, who dropped by to wish Mr. Beckman a happy birthday before driving on to the Wagon Wheel for a few days. They stopped again on Saturday, on their way home. Another daughter and her family, the Jack Kielys, came for lunch the same day to wish father and grandfather a happy birthday.

Sunday, Helen Bulinski, 725 N. Kaspar, attended a bridal shower for Mary De John, who will be her sister-in-law next month. The shower was given by Helen's cousin and included members of the family.

Larry Bulinski was 15 Saturday and chose to celebrate the occasion by going to the Blackstone to see the English comedians, Flanders and Swann, in "Drop of a Hat." Helen and Dick took him to dinner before the show.

Shirley Garrison and Vivian Carson attended the United Lutheran Church Women's workshop in Chicago. Saturday at Lutheran Memorial church and, as Shirley says: "Now we have our work cut out for us for the year. Shirley is president of the guild at Our Savior Lutheran church and Vivian is vice president.

THE WEATHER didn't alter plans for Dorothy and Gene Friker and Lil and George Lurtz Friday evening. They went to the VFW hall that night for an impromptu dance party from the Coterie club and danced to records.

The welcome mat is out to Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon Larkin, who have moved to 1021 N. Patton from Covina, Cal. They arrived here three days before Christmas and Mrs. Larkin laughingly admits that she wouldn't recommend that to anyone. This is a transfer for Mr. Larkin, who is connected with Calavo Growers. The Larkins have two daughters, Joan, 15, a sophomore at Arlington High, and Lucia, 8, who is at Ridge school.

The Bill Colgroves, 811 N. Fernandez, had as house guests over the weekend Mr. and Mrs. Ted Fike and sons, Billy and Roger, and Mrs. William Fike from Miami, Ind.

After leaving the Jim Spiels' house Saturday night, Anita and Bob Balfour, 1208 Northwest hwy., spent the rest of the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fox in Schaumburg.

The party at the Spiels' was in celebration of Sheila's third birthday. She had two parties, in fact. The first one was in the afternoon and included Janice and Robbie Balfour, Tina Harrington, Karen Munsen, Janice Faitz and Sheila's sister, Susie. While the ladies were enjoying coffee in the kitchen, Jim took over the party, playing games with the children and playing records for them. He was a big hit with the children.

In the evening the family came out for a buffet supper. The Bob Balfours and the Marty Munsens also joined them for dinner. Joan and Jim Spiel and their two girls live at 730 N. Harvard.

ANN AND JERRY Mockenhaupt stayed in Chicago all last week during the National Houseware convention at McCormick Place. It wasn't all work for them however; they did manage to go to the Ice show during the week.

Saturday was Mark Kubik's day. He was 4 and had a party for 15 children, including his brother and sisters. His Chicago relatives came out Sunday for coffee and cake in the afternoon, so Mark feels well celebrated. Mark is the son of Mickey and Joe Kubik, 914 N. Kennicott.

Janice Zadwick also had two birthday parties. The daughter of the Kenneth Zadwicks was 5 on the 19th and celebrated that evening when her grandparents, an aunt, uncle and cousin came for cake and ice cream. Saturday she had a party to which the following children came: Kristi Nelson, Joey Dunne, Mark Petersen, Barbara Lumpp and Janice's brothers, Craig and David.

FROM SHERWOOD

Get well wishes are extended to Mrs. Warren Nelson, 1105 N. Patton, who has returned home from a week of hospitalization in Sherman hospital, Elgin.

The Nat Burfeinds, 1130 N. Harvard, are looking forward to having Raymond home this weekend between semesters at Westminster college in Fulton, Mo. (A

Hints To Home Owners

James Fizzell

Assistant Farm Advisor

Winter is a good time to plan for attractive home grounds. There is little that can be done outdoors now, and there is sufficient time to plan carefully before the planting season comes around.

In planning home grounds, the two primary aims to keep in mind are utility and attractiveness. Utility is the convenient layout of drives, walks and other parts of the landscape that affect the uses which the home grounds perform. Attractiveness involves the orderly arrangement of the parts into a harmonious unit.

Most homeowners consider these aims when planning their landscaping, however, a systematic course of action is not always followed. The first step in developing the home grounds is a plan. A well thought out plan not only assured continuity of design, but can save a considerable sum which would be spent in trial and error planting. It is far easier to move a plant on paper than it is to move one which has been growing in the yard.

PROPER selection and placement of plants can eliminate a good deal of work in maintaining a planting once it is established. As an example, a shrub border gives the same privacy as a closely pruned hedge, but requires far less work. Shrub borders also provide more color and interest than a trimmed hedge. Careful planning also facilitates the developing of the home plantings, one area at a time over several years rather than necessitating planting of the entire grounds in one season and at the same time keeps the grounds useful and attractive.

Before arriving at a plan, read any literature available on landscaping. Magazines and books as well as newspaper articles and circulars are excellent sources of information.

Make a scale drawing of the home and grounds as they now are. Show exact locations of each object. Divide the grounds into areas of use: service, public, and private.

The public area, lying between the street and the house, might consist of a large open lawn, a foundation planting to make the house blend with the surrounding landscape, and a few trees to provide framing and shade for the front of the house.

The lawn area provides an open vista to the house, which is the primary center of interest in the entire plan.

The service area, comprising the garage, drive, incinerator, clothes-drying area, and walk to the kitchen, is used for carrying out various duties involved in keeping the home. Since the kitchen is always the starting point for these activities, all parts of the service area should be readily accessible from the kitchen door. Usually the most appropriate location for this area is at one side of the house.

THE PRIVATE area, set aside for the personal enjoyment of the family, may be called the outdoor living room. It may include a terrace, the flower and vegetable gardens, children's play area, and a large open lawn.

Trees and shrubs are used to separate the private areas from the other areas and from neighboring properties. They will serve as a screen in addition to providing shade and color for the family's enjoyment.

With the locations of all plantings in mind select proper plants to fit the various locations. This problem is not easily solved. Use of the aforementioned literature should enable selection of plants that will provide interesting texture effects, succession of bloom, winter interest and provide the desired screening and shade.

A list of landscape bulletins, available from the Farm Adviser's Office will be sent upon request. (BB

Local florists in the neighborhood inform me that for the past several years cyclamen have been gaining popularity as Christmas and Valentine gift plants.

Cyclamen were once one of the most popular pot plants for the winter season. Increasing costs of production eventually made it unprofitable for florists to grow them, and cyclamen disappeared from the floral shops. Newly developed ways of growing these delightful plants have once again put them in the market.

Properly handled, cyclamen are one of the longest lasting flowering pot plants. A well budded plant often continues to bloom two or three months after it is purchased.

FOR AN extended color display, give it good light (although some protection from direct sun), but cool conditions - 50 degrees F. at night 60 degrees to 65 degrees F. during the day - and plenty of humidity. An ideal place is an unshaded north or east window, close to the glass.

To help maintain humidity, fill a large plate or broad, shallow pan with water. Set the cyclamen on an inverted dish, just up out of the water. The evaporating water will do a great deal towards maintaining humid air around the foilage and flowers. Check soil moisture regularly. This plant requires plenty of water and good drainage. Keep water out of the foilage crowns. Bud blasting and leaf yellowing result from a hot, dry atmosphere, lack of water, or insufficient light.

Although the cyclamen is difficult to rebloom, you will be highly rewarded if you are successful. If you decide to carry it over for another season, give it a rest period by tapering off on watering after the flowers are gone. Store cool with very little watering, if any, until warm spring weather arrives. Then replant the bulb-like structure in a well-prepared potting soil with plenty of fibrous organic matter.

ALLOW half of the "bulb" to show above the soil. Grow on in a cool, protected spot outside. Select a bright location that provides partial shade during the middle of the day. Give adequate water, syringe the foliage in the mornings, and feed periodically with a liquid fertilizer. Take the plant indoors before cold weather in the fall. Give full sun and the temperatures mentioned previously. Flowering should occur in midwinter. With luck, the same plant can be rebloomed over a period of years.

Much of the above information on cyclamen as well as similar information on other plants can be found in the bulletin "Flowering Gift Plants" available at the Farm Adviser's office, Farm Bureau building, 201 N. Dunton ave., Arlington Heights. (BB

The Sansevarias, or as they are commonly known, mother-in-law's tongue, are one of the most easily grown house plants.

Most people are familiar with the common green "Sansevaria trifasciata," but are unaware of the large number of other varieties available. There are tall and short, variegated and not variegated, spiral, novelty, and cylindrical forms.

Modern use of plants in home decorating demands use of bold striking plants. One of the sansevarias will often fill the need particularly well, because there is such a variety of forms to choose from.

SANSEVARIAS are very undemanding in their needs. They will grow in almost any household location and in any type of soil. They withstand conditions of high temperature and low humidity, but a minimum temperature of 65 degrees F. is recommended.

Although sansevarias will tolerate poor conditions and grow satisfactorily a healthy, well-grown plant requires some minimal amount of care. Any good potting soil will satisfy the needs of sansevaria if adequate drainage is provided. The fertility level should remain low, but feeding with a weak soluble fertilizer solution in spring is beneficial. Heavy fertilizing will cause the plant to grow rapidly, and soon outgrow its location. Some of the larger types if given food fertility will attain a height of five feet. Keeping the plants slightly potbound also holds them in bounds.

These plants grow best in moderate light, but will survive in dim, poorly lit places where other green plants soon die. This makes them especially valuable for use in basement dens, hotel lobbies, and store interiors which are often poorly lighted.

THE SOIL should be kept moist during bright warm weather, but slightly dry in winter. Diseases and insects are never a problem on sansevarias.

Propagation of sansevarias is very easy. Sections of the leaves stuck in moist soil or sand will soon root and new plants will develop from the bottom. Be sure the sections are stuck right side up or rooting will not take place. When new shoots appear, pot them up and move them to larger pots if necessary.

Variegated varieties propagated in this manner often lose their variegation. These varieties should be propagated by dividing the clumps.

Well-grown plants occasionally send up a spike bearing fragrant cream-white flowers. If pollinated, the flowers will seed, and although rarely practiced, propagation by this manner can produce new varieties (Fm

Village Strict On Solicitors

The village of Arlington Heights is initiating a "get tough" policy in regard to the registration of solicitors, peddlers and canvassers, according to an announcement made this week by Tom DeRiemer, village finance officer.

DeRiemer said the village clerk has been provided with metal badges to be used by those involved in soliciting, peddling or canvassing here.

"Every person wishing to take part in these activities in the village is required by ordinance to register with the village clerk," DeRiemer pointed out. "We are going to strictly enforce this ordinance and provide those we authorize with appropriate badges."

The badges will serve to advise the homeowner that the solicitor or peddler is duly registered with the village. Village inspectors needing to enter homes will also be provided with badges.

BEFORE A badge is issueed to an applicant, DeRiemer noted, he will be fingerprinted, photographed and checked with the police and Federal Bureau of Investigation. It will take about two weeks for clearance.

DeRiemer said handbill distributors are required to register and pay a $2 fee for a two-month period. He indicated handbill distributors will be given receipts for proof of registration.

Village officials intend to cause the arrest of those ignoring the registration law, DeRiemer said. He urged residents to call unregistered door-to-door callers to the village's attention.

"WE ARE starting this policy in an attempt to protect residents of the village," DeRiemer said. "We trust residents will cooperate by reporting violators to us."

FROM RIDGE PARK

Bobby Stevens was 3 Sunday. To celebrate, he invited his brother, Billy, and the following children to a luncheon: Johnny, Joey and Jimmie Lauer and Noreen Ronayne. Instead of the usual cake, Nancy served individual cupcakes with candles atop each. Bobby is the son of Nancy and Bob Stevens, 1007 N. Oakton.

The Bruno Waaras, 804 N. Ridge, feel as though they have been to South America and Europe after having Madame Maria da Silva and her son, Paulo, with them for a week. Madame da Silva, who lives in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil with her family, will be in the States for six months on a Fullbright scholarship and plans to spend six weeks of that time in Arlington Heights, studying the high school system.

A math teacher herself, she is particularly interested in teaching methods. She will be at the University of Illinois for a week and then will return here to spend some time in the slum areas of Chicago, studying the methods by which they keep children in school there.

Paulo, on summer vacation, will be with his mother until her 6-month stay in the States is up, the end of February.

She had fascinating tales to tell the Waaras about her recent trip to Europe. Having won a 6-month trip to Europe by writing a prize winning math book, she was able to study teaching methods there and will have a wealth of information to bring back to her native Brazil, when she returns. She has already left a wealth of information on teaching methods in three different continents with the Waaras.

THERE HAS been plenty of birthday celebrating at the R. A. Beckmans', 812 N. Fernandez. Mrs. Beckman had a birthday dinner for her husband Wednesday, inviting Rev. Hughes Morris, the Paul Patricks and Leta McMillan. The following day they had a surprise visit from their daughter and son-in-law, the Bob Soderborgs, who dropped by to wish Mr. Beckman a happy birthday before driving on to the Wagon Wheel for a few days. They stopped again on Saturday, on their way home. Another daughter and her family, the Jack Kielys, came for lunch the same day to wish father and grandfather a happy birthday.

Sunday, Helen Bulinski, 725 N. Kaspar, attended a bridal shower for Mary De John, who will be her sister-in-law next month. The shower was given by Helen's cousin and included members of the family.

Larry Bulinski was 15 Saturday and chose to celebrate the occasion by going to the Blackstone to see the English comedians, Flanders and Swann, in "Drop of a Hat." Helen and Dick took him to dinner before the show.

Shirley Garrison and Vivian Carson attended the United Lutheran Church Women's workshop in Chicago. Saturday at Lutheran Memorial church and, as Shirley says: "Now we have our work cut out for us for the year. Shirley is president of the guild at Our Savior Lutheran church and Vivian is vice president.

THE WEATHER didn't alter plans for Dorothy and Gene Friker and Lil and George Lurtz Friday evening. They went to the VFW hall that night for an impromptu dance party from the Coterie club and danced to records.

The welcome mat is out to Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon Larkin, who have moved to 1021 N. Patton from Covina, Cal. They arrived here three days before Christmas and Mrs. Larkin laughingly admits that she wouldn't recommend that to anyone. This is a transfer for Mr. Larkin, who is connected with Calavo Growers. The Larkins have two daughters, Joan, 15, a sophomore at Arlington High, and Lucia, 8, who is at Ridge school.

The Bill Colgroves, 811 N. Fernandez, had as house guests over the weekend Mr. and Mrs. Ted Fike and sons, Billy and Roger, and Mrs. William Fike from Miami, Ind.

After leaving the Jim Spiels' house Saturday night, Anita and Bob Balfour, 1208 Northwest hwy., spent the rest of the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fox in Schaumburg.

The party at the Spiels' was in celebration of Sheila's third birthday. She had two parties, in fact. The first one was in the afternoon and included Janice and Robbie Balfour, Tina Harrington, Karen Munsen, Janice Faitz and Sheila's sister, Susie. While the ladies were enjoying coffee in the kitchen, Jim took over the party, playing games with the children and playing records for them. He was a big hit with the children.

In the evening the family came out for a buffet supper. The Bob Balfours and the Marty Munsens also joined them for dinner. Joan and Jim Spiel and their two girls live at 730 N. Harvard.

ANN AND JERRY Mockenhaupt stayed in Chicago all last week during the National Houseware convention at McCormick Place. It wasn't all work for them however; they did manage to go to the Ice show during the week.

Saturday was Mark Kubik's day. He was 4 and had a party for 15 children, including his brother and sisters. His Chicago relatives came out Sunday for coffee and cake in the afternoon, so Mark feels well celebrated. Mark is the son of Mickey and Joe Kubik, 914 N. Kennicott.

Janice Zadwick also had two birthday parties. The daughter of the Kenneth Zadwicks was 5 on the 19th and celebrated that evening when her grandparents, an aunt, uncle and cousin came for cake and ice cream. Hints To Home Owners

James Fizzell

Assistant Farm Advisor

Winter is a good time to plan for attractive home grounds. There is little that can be done outdoors now, and there is sufficient time to plan carefully before the planting season comes around.

In planning home grounds, the two primary aims to keep in mind are utility and attractiveness. Utility is the convenient layout of drives, walks and other parts of the landscape that affect the uses which the home grounds perform. Attractiveness involves the orderly arrangement of the parts into a harmonious unit.

Most homeowners consider these aims when planning their landscaping, however, a systematic course of action is not always followed. The first step in developing the home grounds is a plan. A well thought out plan not only assured continuity of design, but can save a considerable sum which would be spent in trial and error planting. It is far easier to move a plant on paper than it is to move one which has been growing in the yard.

PROPER selection and placement of plants can eliminate a good deal of work in maintaining a planting once it is established. As an example, a shrub border gives the same privacy as a closely pruned hedge, but requires far less work. Shrub borders also provide more color and interest than a trimmed hedge. Careful planning also facilitates the developing of the home plantings, one area at a time over several years rather than necessitating planting of the entire grounds in one season and at the same time keeps the grounds useful and attractive.

Before arriving at a plan, read any literature available on landscaping. Magazines and books as well as newspaper articles and circulars are excellent sources of information.

Make a scale drawing of the home and grounds as they now are. Show exact locations of each object. Divide the grounds into areas of use: service, public, and private.

The public area, lying between the street and the house, might consist of a large open lawn, a foundation planting to make the house blend with the surrounding landscape, and a few trees to provide framing and shade for the front of the house.

The lawn area provides an open vista to the house, which is the primary center of interest in the entire plan.

The service area, comprising the garage, drive, incinerator, clothes-drying area, and walk to the kitchen, is used for carrying out various duties involved in keeping the home. Since the kitchen is always the starting point for these activities, all parts of the service area should be readily accessible from the kitchen door. Usually the most appropriate location for this area is at one side of the house.

THE PRIVATE area, set aside for the personal enjoyment of the family, may be called the outdoor living room. It may include a terrace, the flower and vegetable gardens, children's play area, and a large open lawn.

Trees and shrubs are used to separate the private areas from the other areas and from neighboring properties. They will serve as a screen in addition to providing shade and color for the family's enjoyment.

With the locations of all plantings in mind select proper plants to fit the various locations. This problem is not easily solved. Use of the aforementioned literature should enable selection of plants that will provide interesting texture effects, succession of bloom, winter interest and provide the desired screening and shade.

A list of landscape bulletins, available from the Farm Adviser's Office will be sent upon request. (BB

Local florists in the neighborhood inform me that for the past several years cyclamen have been gaining popularity as Christmas and Valentine gift plants.

Leisurely Pace for 'Hawaiian Holiday'

YOU CAN'T always tell a hula dancer by her grass skirt. In the first place, not all hula dancers wear grass skirts. Some take to sarongs, some to kikepas. Others dance in floor-length muu-muus or holokus. The Hawaiian hula is comparable to the theatre or opera of other civilizations, for the meles or songs for hula accompaniment tells tales of history, travel geneology, religion, gossip and love. (A14

One of the most attractive aspects of Paddock Publications' "Hawaiian Holiday" is the leisurely pace planned for tour members.

Scheduled tours to island attractions are alternated with nothing more strenuous than relaxing in the sun on Waikiki beach or pursuing individual interests such as golfing, fishing, swimming, or photography.

AWARE THAT a vacation can be spoiled by too rigorous a sightseeing pace, Stuart Paddock Jr., host of the tour, notes that Honolulu means "fair haven," and says:

"That's just what we want the trip to be, a haven from the exacting routine of everyday business."

He also notes the two-week tour, departing by DC-8 Jet from O'Hare field on March 12 will be a haven from Chicago's wintry weather. In fact, notes Mr. Paddock, "temperature insurance" guarantees that if over half of the vacation days in Hawaii register under 75 degrees at noon, tour members will get their money back.

THOUGH PLENTY of leisure time is scheduled for tour members, they are free to worry over transportation and accommodations, notes Mrs. Paddock, tour hostess.

She adds that Northwest Orient Airlines Royal Aloha Service, which will fly the party to Honolulu via Seattle, includes complimentary full course meals with champagne and luxurious, altitude-conditioned cabins.

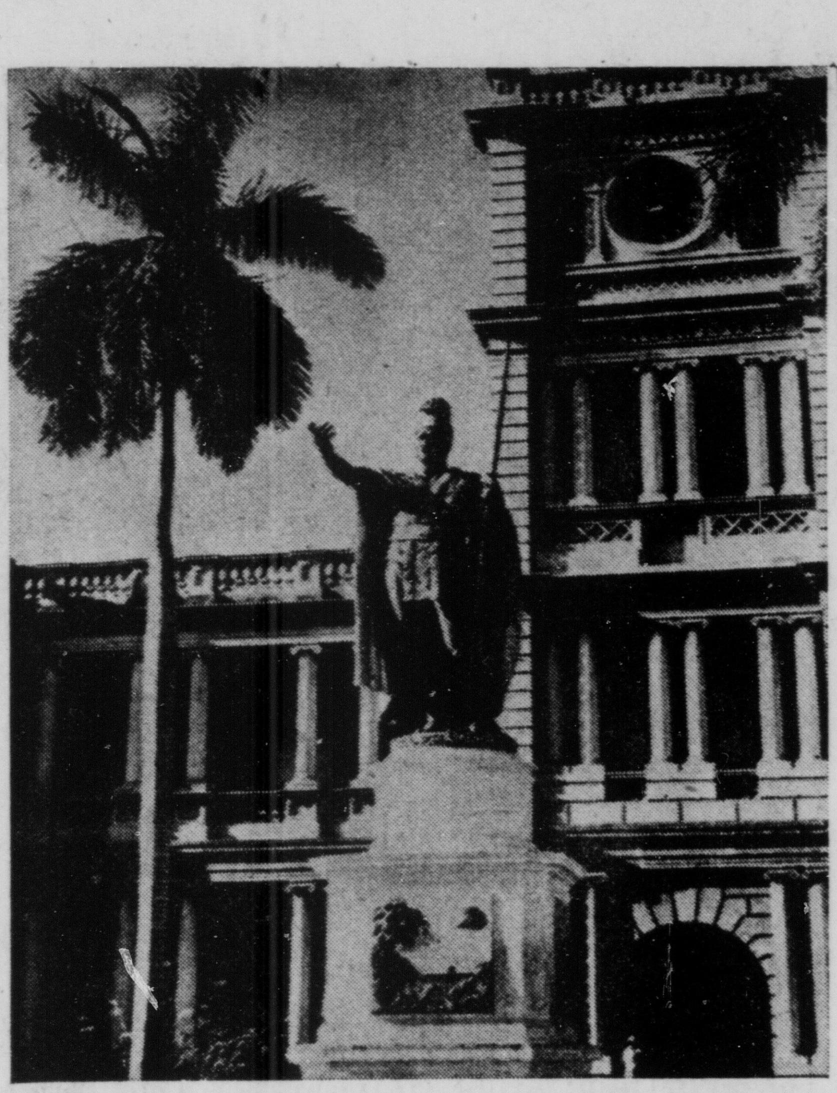
Upon landing in Aloha-land, tour members will be transferred to the Hawaiian Village Hotel, where twin-bedded rooms are reserved in the Village Tower.

THE "VILLAGE" is a resort in itself with beautiful grounds, shops, and private Waikiki beach. There are also five swimming pools from which to choose, salt water or fresh water, plus a land locked lagoon.

Activities available for those interested include sightseeing trips to majestic scenery, hula lessons, surf boarding (under a beach boy's instruction), photo trips, a traditional Hawaiian Luau (with a buried pig), and a cruise by catamaran through Pearl Harbor.

TOUR PRICE is $698 per person, including tax, with an optional tour to the "outer islands" for an additional $150. This includes transportation, hotel accommodations, sightseeing excursions, transfers, and some meals.

For further details address inquiries to "Hawaiian Holiday," % Paddock Publications, 217 W. Campbell st., Arlington Heights, Ill. (A14



FOREMOST AMONG the "must see" sights in Honolulu is the famous statue of Kamehameha I. In 1795 Kamehameha brought all the islands under his rule, launching a royal era which lasted almost a century. Iolani palace behind the statute is the only one on American soil.

Check Melanin For Tan

If you're planning a Hawaiian vacation, check your melanin. That's the advice of Northwest Orient Airlines, which will fly Paddock Publications' "Hawaiian Holiday" to Honolulu.

Melanin, NWA explains, comes from the Greek word meaning "black." It's a substance of pigmentation that protects you from heat prostration by absorbing the sun's rays before they get under the skin.

THE SUN at Waikiki and other famous Hawaiian beaches can be misleading to the newcomer. It must be taken in small doses at first, or a painful burn results. If you're a blonde it's a sign you haven't much melanin in your skin, says NWA, so take Nature's warning that you aren't meant to look like a dark-skinned Hawaiian.

If you have plenty of melanin, you'll tan easily, but for a starter you should expose yourself in the morning or late afternoon when the actinic rays are not direct.

A GOOD COAT of oil or suntan lotion is essential.

Check Out Hour Penalty Is Announced by Hospital

To bring order to a chaotic system of patients' entering and leaving at all hours of the day, Northwest Community hospital will set a "check-out hour with penalty" effective February 1.

"Most doctors and patients are pretty cooperative about admitting time," hospital administrator Alan B. Campbell said. "We like patients to come about 3 p.m. But the leaving time has become increasingly unwieldly."

"PERSONS will leave at 5, 6, and 7 at night. This makes it impossible for us to prepare rooms for new patients and get patients in for presurgical checks without wasting time and facilities," he explained.

Only patients who can present an acceptable reason will be kept later than the newly established 11 a.m. check out time.

Persons who stay after 11 a.m. and until 5 p.m. will be charged for a half-day's stay. Those staying after 5 p.m. p.m. will be charged for a full day. These charges will not be covered by hospital insurance, Campbell said.

PROPER notification will be given to the patient at the time of admission, and check-out hour signs will be distributed to each room.

The check-out hour system was recommended by the hospital's administrative staff and executive committee of the medical staff in an attempt to make the best use of hospital personnel.

The time was established after a study was made of neighboring hospitals' policies. (A14

Electronic Instrument

Jet Noise Relief Due by September

The noise from big jet transports circling over suburbs and sections of Chicago surrounding O'Hare International airport should be alleviated by September.

That's when installation of an electronic instrument landing system for the 7,400 foot long east-west runway at the airstrip is expected to be completed, according to William E. Downes, Chicago's aviation commissioner, and Marshall C. Benedict, Midwest public affairs officer of the Federal Aviation Agency.

Now, when wind conditions require a direct east or west landing approach, planes in times of bad or soupy weather must use the instrument landing system on either of the dual northwest - southeast runways to get below the clouds and then circle for a visual landing on the east-west runway.

AIRCRAFT circling at low altitudes over an area of five miles in radius from the airport has brought many complaints of noise from residents of surrounding communities.

Downes and Benedict said installation of the electronic transmitting system "will tend to reduce the noise element" because pilots will be able to make a direct approach to the east-west runway without circling.

The instrument landing system guides pilots as they come down.

The ILS provides an electronic approach track to the instrument runway and is composed of a localizer that furnishes lateral guidance, a glide scope to show the correct angle of descent, and two markers to indicate distances from the end of the runway.

IN ADDITION, the system is equipped with two compass locator homing facilities to assist pilots in making the transition en route navigational aids to the actual approach path.

"The highly precise guidance of the system not only provides increased safety for the users but expedites the movement of air traffic in and around the Chicago area," Benedict said.

Parallel ILS systems now are serving the dual northwest-southeast O'Hare runways, including the 11,000-foot jet runway.

INSTALLATION of the system on the east-west runway will make O'Hare the only airport in the nation with the ILS on three runways. The most any other has is two.

Subject to finalization of plans and the awarding of contracts, the construction of the new ILS is scheduled to begin by April and completion and commissioning of the facility by September, Benedict said.

The $200,000 cost, including construction and equipment, will be paid by the federal aviation agency. It controls all plane traffic at airports.

The third ILS is being built to reduce noise for the benefit of residents of the airport area and to increase safety for pilots. (A-14

Leisurely Pace for 'Hawaiian Holiday'

YOU CAN'T always tell a hula dancer by her grass skirt. In the first place, not all hula dancers wear grass skirts. Some take to sarongs, some to kikepas. Others dance in floor-length muu-muus or holokus. The Hawaiian hula is comparable to the theatre or opera of other civilizations, for the meles or songs for hula accompaniment tells tales of history, travel geneology, religion, gossip and love. (A14

FOREMOST AMONG the "must see" sights in Honolulu is the famous statue of Kamehameha I. In 1795 Kamehameha brought all the islands under his rule, launching a royal era which lasted almost a century. Iolani palace behind the statute is the only one on American soil.

One of the most attractive aspects of Paddock Publications' "Hawaiian Holiday" is the leisurely pace planned for tour members.

Scheduled tours to island attractions are alternated with nothing more strenuous than relaxing in the sun on Waikiki beach or pursuing individual interests such as golfing, fishing, swimming, or photography.

AWARE THAT a vacation can be spoiled by too rigorous a sightseeing pace, Stuart Paddock Jr., host of the tour, notes that Honolulu means "fair haven," and says:

"That's just what we want the trip to be, a haven from the exacting routine of everyday business."

He also notes the two-week tour, departing by DC-8 Jet from O'Hare field on March 12 will be a haven from Chicago's wintry weather. In fact, notes Mr. Paddock, "temperature insurance" guarantees that if over half of the vacation days in Hawaii register under 75 degrees at noon, tour members will get their money back.

THOUGH PLENTY of leisure time is scheduled for tour members, they are free to worry over transportation and accommodations, notes Mrs. Paddock, tour hostess.

She adds that Northwest Orient Airlines Royal Aloha Service, which will fly the party to Honolulu via Seattle, includes complimentary full course meals with champagne and luxurious, altitude-conditioned cabins.

Upon landing in Aloha-land, tour members will be transferred to the Hawaiian Village Hotel, where twin-bedded rooms are reserved in the Village Tower.

THE "VILLAGE" is a resort in itself with beautiful grounds, shops, and private Waikiki beach. There are also five swimming pools from which to choose, salt water or fresh water, plus a land locked lagoon.

Activities available for those interested include sightseeing trips to majestic scenery, hula lessons, surf boarding (under a beach boy's instruction), photo trips, a traditional Hawaiian Luau (with a buried pig), and a cruise by catamaran through Pearl Harbor.

TOUR PRICE is $698 per person, including tax, with an optional tour to the "outer islands" for an additional $150. This includes transportation, hotel accommodations, sightseeing excursions, transfers, and some meals.

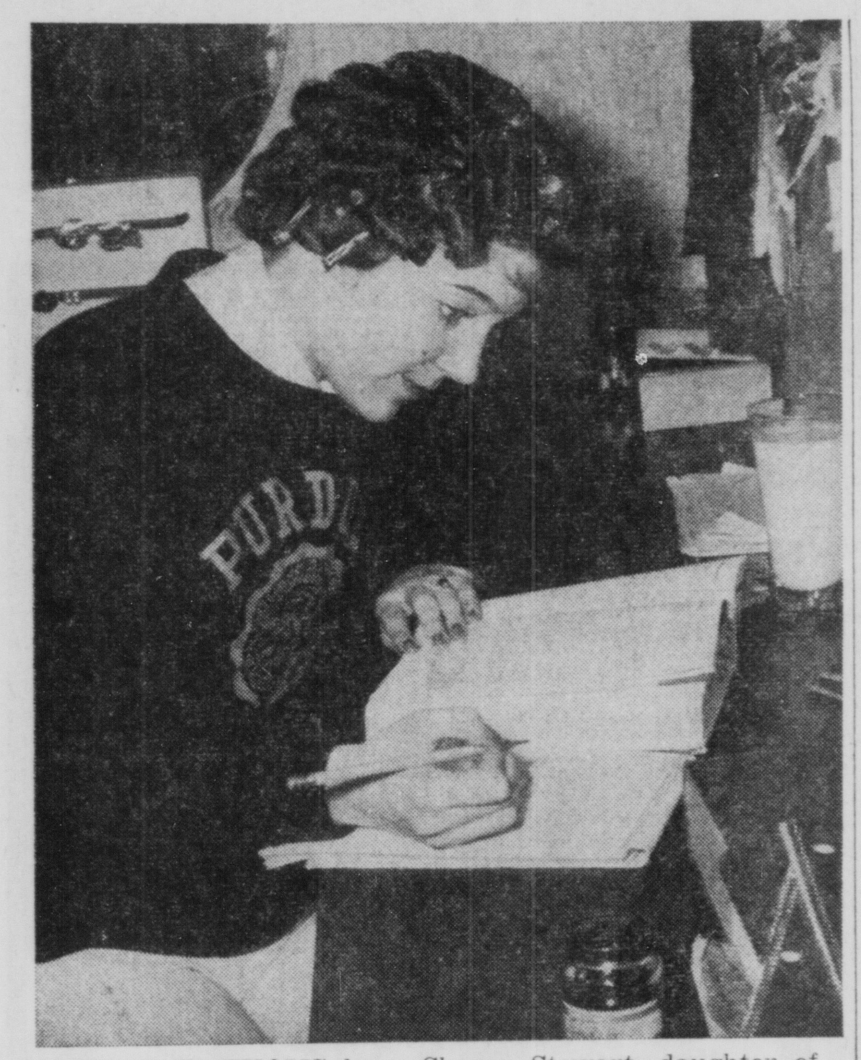
Students Moan, Cram For Semester Exams



SEMESTER EXAMS have Sharon Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Stewart, 401 N. Dryden, and other Arlington and Prospect high school students reviewing the past 18 weeks' studies. Tests were today and Friday for both schools. (ACM

The scholars' plague, semester examinations, has hit Arlington and Prospect high schools this week, and students are showing such symptoms as bleary eyes and puzzled expressions.

The "disease," however, has a short duration, the exams being scheduled for today and tomorrow, Friday. But hours of study have taken their toll, claim book-weary students.

"I guess they're worthwhile," commented Hermine Putz, Arlington senior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Putz, 18 S. Ridge, "but I don't like them. Too much studying is required."

HERMINE, who said she planned to "cram like mad" and expected trouble in bookkeeping, was joined by sophomore Ellen Everhart, who admitted "I'm scared of the results."

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Everhart, 537 S. Pine, Ellen said "I don't believe in cramming, but I do it." She had some sounder advice for the freshmen, "Start studying ahead of time, and take good notes during class."

Another student scoffed at cramming. "I go to a movie the night before an exam and then get a good night's sleep." How do you do on the tests, we asked. "Very poorly," was the reply.

ONE BRAVE Arlington scholar defended the exams as "a challenge and a great way to win sympathy from the folks."

If the students seem divided, the teachers certainly are united in opinion.

"We feel," stated Dr. Eugene Oliver, principal of Arlington high, "that semester examinations are beneficial in many ways. They force the student to review, and he should see the scope of his course more clearly than if he were tested one section at a time."

INSTRUCTORS claim that the exams are especially important to college - bound youth, who gain experience in reviewing, taking tests, and performing under pressure.

And, some teachers point out, exams are an asset in evaluating a student's achievement.

"Some students never do well on big tests," Dr. Oliver stated. "This is partly the reason why we never weight the semester exam more than one fifth the semester grade." The usual practice is to assign the first and second quarter grades 40 per cent each and the semester exam 20 per cent, when determining the final grade.

STUDENTS take no more than three exams per day, have a 70 minute study period with a lunch break, and are rewarded with early dismissal.

Teachers, who claim that the tests are as much work for them as they are for the students, spend the rest of the day grading and preparing for the next day's exams.

Monday the "overworked" students will have a day of rest, while their instructors attend a teachers' institute. (ACM

Add New Courses To Night School

Two new courses have been added to the High School District 214 evening adult education curriculum Director Tom Shirley announced this week.

A new offering, Taxation, will begin classes February 6 at 7 p.m. at Arlington high. Instructor John M. Polis, 435 S. Evergreen, Arlington Heights, informs that the spring semester will be limited to individual Federal income tax returns and related problems.

PRIME OBJECTIVE of the course will be to give the student a better understanding of the various tax forms and the proper methods of filing. Shirley points out that actual forms will be filled out by each student during the five week course, which has a tuition of $8.

Polis is a former practicing attorney and present assistant general counsel of American Photocopy Equipment company.

The other course, "Constitution Review," is designed for elementary and high school teachers planning to take the state-required Constitution examination March 4 or for anyone desiring to review this subject.

INSTRUCTOR will be Robbert Grabitz, social studies teacher at Arlington high school. The course will consist of four sessions, starting Wednesday, February 8, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Arlington high school. Tuition is $3.

Registration for either course may be done by mail or in person during the day at Arlington high, Office 101. (ACM

VIRGINIA TERRACE

A welcome is extended to Wanda and Ed Abel and their daughter, Connie, 9, who recently moved to 1200 N. Chicago, after living at Wonder Lake for several years. It is more convenient for Ed to live here, as his maintenance service business has been established in Arlington Heights for some time. Connie is becoming acquainted at Wilson school, while Wanda and Ed look forward to the warmer months, when they can enjoy their hobbies of gardening and fishing, respectively. Their spare time is spent visiting another daughter and her family in Lake Zurich. They just presented the Abels with a third grandchild.

Darlene and Bob Krug, 1212 N. Race, were guests at a surprise birthday party for Bob's father, George Krug, Chicago, last Thursday evening. The affair was highlighted by dinner in Chinatown, followed by a performance of "A Majority of One" at the Erlanger theatre, starring Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Gertrude Berg.

Friends of Marilyn and Bill Roser, 1211 N. Wilke, will be happy to learn that their son, Billie, 12, has left the hospital and is recovering nicely in the home of his paternal grandparents in Libertyville, following surgery three weeks ago for a ruptured appendix.

HECTIC, BUT fun, is the way Virginia and Dean Arnold, 1410 N. Race, describe the events connected with the National Housewares Manufacturer's association exhibit held last week at McCormick Place, Chicago, with two events in particular taking precedence over business. First was the silver anniversary cocktail-dinner party given by the Cosco Century club at the Palmer House January 15. All decorations and table service were in silver and each lady present was gifted with an orchid. The following Wednesday evening, the National Housewares banquet and ball at the Palmer House was enjoyed by the Arnolds. After dinner, the guests took delight in the antics of comic Jonathan Winters, among others; and then proceeded into the Red Lacquer room to dance amid Mardi Gras de Paris decorations.

Mrs. James Douglas, who lives with her daughter and family, the Ray Crouches, 1228 N. Chicago, entertained five long time friends, all members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion, at a luncheon-card party the afternoon of January 19.

It had been almost two years since Carol and Ron Reed, 1216 N. Race, had been together with Carol's former classmates from Austin high school, Chicago, so last Saturday night the Reeds entertained the girls and their husbands from Chicago and Norwood Park at cocktails and dinner.

MONDAY afternoon friends and neighbors of Carol's enjoyed a plastic demonstration in her home. Among those invited from the Terrace were Bernice Salzman, Marilyn Roser, Darlene Krug and Laraine Francis.

January 21 is the natal day of Chuck, son of Diane and Charles Moser, 1418 N. Illinois, and that afternoon his parents entertained at a luncheon party in honor of his 10th birthday. Present for the chuck wagon style lunch were his brothers and sisters, as well as Bruce Leckie, John Reinhardt, John Badali, Nancy Kovar and Billy Groh, Arlington Heights, and his cousin, Spike Kane, Wheeling. After the party, the youngsters were presented with favors and their cowboy place mats to take along home. Chuck's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Lauretta Moser, Chicago, brothers, Michael, "K. C." and Mark, and sisters, Valerie and Michele, wished him many happy returns at a family dinner party on Sunday.

The monotony of these cold days was broken Monday for Jerri Rix, Pat Ross, Betty Gumz, Igna Scluntz and Shirley Landes, when they departed for Chicago on an early train. After viewing the hilarious "Facts of Life" movie at the Chicago theatre, they had lunch and spent the afternoon shopping.

FRITZ, SON of Pat and Bill Cotsakis, 1232 N. Race, celebrated his ninth birthday last Saturday afternoon with Pat, John and Michael Hoover, Arlington Heights, and John Van der Merkt of the Terrace. Bill took the boys to the matinee at the Arlington theatre, after which they, together with Pat and Fritz's brother, Danny, enjoyed having dinner out. Sunday, his actual birthday, the Cotsakises entertained at a family dinner party. Present for the festivities were his brother, paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Cotsakis, Franklin Park, and godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krueger, Bensenville.

A gala fund raising event was enjoyed by the Ray Crouches, Don Kieffers, John Noerenbergs, Elm Lechelts and Bob Andersons last Saturday night, with same being highlighted by the "Penny Dinner," card games and penny penalties.

A dinner party, with the center of attraction being the birthday cake and ice cream, was the manner in which the second birthday of John, son of Susan and Scott Gilson, 1258 N. Yale, was celebrated last Sunday. Guests included his brother, Jeff, and aunt, Miss Nancy Gilson, Chicago.

Henrici's restaurant at O'Hare inn was the choice of Linda Lee, daughter of Shirlee and Hobart Scott, 1341 N. Race, as she and her parents enjoyed dinner out in celebration of her 17th birthday January 19. Last Saturday night, Linda Lee and her escort, John Passmore, Arlington Heights, and two other couples favored Hackney's, Morton Grove, for their dinner out, following which the young people returned to the Scotts' for birthday cake, ice cream, and several hours of dancing.

FRIENDS and neighbors of long time residents, Connie and Rex McBride, 1206 N. Race, and their daughter, Gail, wish them much luck and happiness in their new home, and are glad that moving day, January 21, took them only as far as Wilmette.

Karen Lynn, daughter of Joyce and Bob Anderson, 1234 N. Yale, shared her birthday Sunday at a family dinner party with her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Albert Streich, Mount Prospect. Assisting Karen, who was one January 20, and her grandmother in blowing out the candles on their cake were the Anderson children, Kris Ann and Mark, and Mr. Streich.

A combination farewell-birthday party was held Wednesday for Diane, daughter of Dorothy and Leonard Ukleja, 1421 N. Wilke, in the home of Mrs. Ann Inselberger; as Diane, who will be 9 January 30, expects to be in her new home in Dallas, Texas, by that time.

A luncheon party was held last Friday for Jill, daughter of Jerri and Bill Rix, 1224 N. Chicago. Wishing her a happy fifth birthday were Pamela and Patricia Chase, Tommy Koenig, Steven Landes and former Terrace playmate, Susan Perry, Westgate, as well as her brother, David. Due to illness, Susan Catlin was unable to attend the festivities. Jill's paternal grandmother, Mrs. William Rix, Chicago, was present, too, to lend Jerri a helping hand. That evening, Jill was guest of honor at a dinner party attended by her brother, grandmother and grandfathers, William Rix and N. Ellingsen, Niles. (A

After the party, the youngsters were presented with favors and their cowboy place mats to take along home. Chuck's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Lauretta Moser, Chicago, brothers, Michael, "K. C." and Mark, and sisters, Valerie and Michele, wished him many happy returns at a family dinner party on Sunday.

The monotony of these cold days was broken Monday for Jerri Rix, Pat Ross, Betty Gumz, Igna Scluntz and Shirley Landes, when they departed for Chicago on an early train. After viewing the hilarious "Facts of Life" movie at the Chicago theatre, they had lunch and spent the afternoon shopping.

FRITZ, SON of Pat and Bill Cotsakis, 1232 N. Race, celebrated his ninth birthday last Saturday afternoon with Pat, John and Michael Hoover, Arlington Heights, and John Van der Merkt of the Terrace. Bill took the boys to the matinee at the Arlington theatre, after which they, together with Pat and Fritz's brother, Danny, enjoyed having dinner out. Sunday, his actual birthday, the Cotsakises entertained at a family dinner party. Present for the festivities were his brother, paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Cotsakis, Franklin Park, and godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krueger, Bensenville.

A gala fund raising event was enjoyed by the Ray Crouches, Don Kieffers, John Noerenbergs, Elm Lechelts and Bob Andersons last Saturday night, with same being highlighted by the "Penny Dinner," card games and penny penalties.

A dinner party, with the center of attraction being the birthday cake and ice cream, was the manner in which the second birthday of John, son of Susan and Scott Gilson, 1258 N. Yale, was celebrated last Sunday. Guests included his brother, Jeff, and aunt, Miss Nancy Gilson, Chicago.

Henrici's restaurant at O'Hare inn was the choice of Linda Lee, daughter of Shirlee and Hobart Scott, 1341 N. Race, as she and her parents enjoyed dinner out in celebration of her 17th birthday January 19. Last Saturday night, Linda Lee and her escort, John Passmore, Arlington Heights, and two other couples favored Hackney's, Morton Grove, for their dinner out, following which the young people returned to the Scotts' for birthday cake, ice cream, and several hours of dancing.

FRIENDS and neighbors of long time residents, Connie and Rex McBride, 1206 N. Race, and their daughter, Gail, wish them much luck and happiness in their new home, and are glad that moving day, January 21, took them only as far as Wilmette.

Dorothy and Bill Henneman, until recently of 1200 N. Chicago, have become parents of their seventh child, Janet Mary, who weighed 6 pounds 7 ounces when born January 20.

Karen Lynn, daughter of Joyce and Bob Anderson, 1234 N. Yale, shared her birthday Sunday at a family dinner party with her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Albert Streich, Mount Prospect. Assisting Karen, who was one January 20, and her grandmother in blowing out the candles on their cake were the Anderson children, Kris Ann and Mark, and Mr. Streich.

A combination farewell-birthday party was held Wednesday for Diane, daughter of Dorothy and Leonard Ukleja, 1421 N. Wilke, in the home of Mrs. Ann Inselberger; as Diane, who will be 9 January 30, expects to be in her new home in Dallas, Texas, by that time.

A luncheon party was held last Friday for Jill, daughter of Jerri and Bill Rix, 1224 N. Chicago. Wishing her a happy fifth birthday were Pamela and Patricia Chase, Tommy Koenig, Steven Landes and former Terrace playmate, Susan Perry, Westgate, as well as her brother, David. Due to illness, Susan Catlin was unable to attend the festivities. Jill's paternal grandmother, Mrs. William Rix, Chicago, was present, too, to lend Jerri a helping hand. That evening, Jill was guest of honor at a dinner party attended by her brother, grandmother and grandfathers, William Rix and N. Ellingsen, Niles. (A

by JIM PHILLIPS

There are a number of comical people in Hollywood but unfortunately few of them are on the screen. One of the few is named Lemmon. Thanks to more of his antics, a lot of people are going to be entertained when they see "The Wackiest Ship in the Army."

Actually, Jack Lemmon is no longer an actor, but a comic artist of a sort. He is a smooth-faced Boy Scout version of Tom Ewell. And no matter what military uniform you put on him, he remains the modern-day poor soul designed to draw sympathy from a chuckle-drenched theater crowd. "Wackiest" is just his kind of meat and potatos; and even though the meaty-script is a little well-done and the quipped potatos a little drenched with too much "seen before" gravy, the picture still is worth its weight in happiness.

THE PLOT doesn't really appear suddenly—it grows on you. Jack was once ship-to-shore peacetimer running about the waters in a nice-looking little yacht. As luck would have it, someone decided to start a world war. Immediately, or somewhere around there, he becomes the skipper of a floating piece of steel that resembles a ship.

While this ship is floating, its crew is trying to make believe they are genuine Navy. They have to do this because they don't know the first thing about Naval routine because they aren't really—well, let's not take all the fun out of the picture! The ship is ordered to go on a little cruise around the ocean—there's only one catch—there's Japs in that there ocean—in it did I say? On it, around it, under it, over it!

In fact, before "Wackiest" is over, you'd swear the whole Lemmon expedition is part of the Japanese navy. The usual military antics prevail, such as men overboard that shouldn't have gone overboard, people firing guns at people who shouldn't have been fired on, etc.

And as long as Navyman Lemmon is allowed to squeeze out his own type of comedy, there is fine farce going—however, when the tide of dialogue turns to others in the cast, you find you'd rather have Jack back.

COLUMBIA Pictures has a fine collection of yacht-yaks in this color-cinemascope blast at military meanderings. But I can't understand why Marion Hargrove (whose story this movie is based upon) didn't get in and write the script.

Director Richard Murphy got the typing job on this screenplay, and at times, the seriousness of Murphy's previous workings sneaks through. Dick is fine when he puts together movies like "Compulsion," but when the chips are down for sheer comedy-caper writing, he is left with no trump.

This is probably the reason Jack Lemmon has to hold the picture up by himself. Marion Hargrove, as of the last few years, is best known for his TV Maverick stories—the ones which kidded other westerns; I'm sure he could have made a lot more of the characters in "Wackiest." Appearing with Jack Lemmon is Ricky Nelson, the boy wizard of Ozzie, who will no doubt get screams of delight from the younger female crowd. Giving him the part of an officer in this show is like getting Tuesday Weld to portray Queen Elizabeth.

"Wackiest Ship in the Army" will never be another "Don't Go Near the Water," but it certainly is enough of a reason to get to your nearest theater Capsule Comment: "Rub - A - Dub Dub, Lemmon's Men in a Tub!"

"Village of the Damned": Made in England, here's one MGM got sneaky with. The picture came into Chicago quite awhile ago with not much of a fanfare. Now, it's around the Paddock area and it's not one to be missed if you're a devotee of the weird-science-fiction movie.

It's about a group of children who are born in an English town, and as they grow up, appear different from the rest of the town's youngsters. With this in mind, I won't tell you much more than the following: these kids are pretty dangerous, they've got eyes that would put G. E. out of business, and they're responsible for some of the most innocently-terrifying scenes I've seen in many a year.

GEORGE Sanders stars as the principle victim of these juveniles who, by the way, are wonderful (if you have to use the term in this case!).

A fine bit of directing and some well-paced scripting make "Village of the Damned" a better than average shocker. It's black-and-white, and that was a smart decision, too. You may feel a little disappointed in the ending of the picture, however—unless, of course, you've decided beforehand that the whole thing was a little too much on the blood pressure! Capsule Comment: "Our Gang Tragedy!" Chicago Is Treasury Of Ignored Art Work

by LUCILLE ERNST

The Garrick building is to be demolished and all hope of saving the beauty of Louis Sullivan's work is gone. There is great moaning and beating of breasts. Suddenly everyone is an art lover. I'm sorry but I can't join the tearful dirge, I don't even understand it. Where have all the art lovers been hiding all these years?

In all the times I have been downtown in Chicago, I have never seen an excited group of art lovers standing smitten, open mouthed, happily exclaiming over the beauty of the Carson Pirie Scott building.

Louis Sullivan also created this building and I swear in all my life I've never seen anyone really even look at it. If we are so appreciative of Sullivan's work, why doesn't someone just look up at its magnificent decoration. It is known all over the world, yet we hurry by, just looking in the windows.

WHEN I LIVED in Chicago I was fortunate enough to have lived near Graceland cemetery. This is one of the most interesting places in the world to visit. Almost everyone who was anyone in Chicago is buried there. If you know anything about Chicago's history you would be fascinated.

One of the founders of Chicago, Kinzie, is buried there. He and his family were the only ones who escaped the Dearborn massacre and what a story that is!

There is a mausoleum designed by Louis Sullivan in Graceland. Now it is possible that art lovers were lined up, four abreast, anxiously awaiting their chance to get a glimpse of the master's work but they sure weren't there when I was. As I remember it, the only people I ever saw at Graceland were the caretakers and a few nice people visiting the dear departed. Art lovers, no. As a matter of fact, I got the distinct impression that my friends thought I was a bit of a ghoul for spending so much time in the cemetery.

WHERE WERE the art lovers in the twenties? Sullivan was internationally known and was considered in Europe, and in some parts, still is, as the one authentic artist America ever produced. I know where Sullivan was. He was quite literally starving in a sad little room on Chicago's north side. He was sick and didn't have enough to eat. Strange, isn't it? In a great city in the twentieth century, one of the greatest architects of all time was left alone, sick, and hungry.

No, I'm sorry. I can't shed any tears over the death of the Garrick. Beauty is truly in the eye of the beholder and if we don't have time to look at it, we don't deserve it.

It is just possible that the destruction of the Garrick may be the beginning of appreciation of the great architecture we have around us. The story of American architecture is the story of Chicago but this seems to have been a rather well kept secret from the ordinary taxpayer until recently.

IT IS RATHER difficult to work Louis Sullivan into the elementary or high school curriculum. He just doesn't fit in neatly. I don't think most people knew much about him unless they were a student of art or architecture.

Until we needed that parking space, no one, including art lovers, thought much about his masterpieces one way or the other. The price was awfully high but maybe it was worth it.

As I remember it, the only people I ever saw at Graceland were the caretakers and a few nice people visiting the dear departed. Art lovers, no. As a matter of fact, I got the distinct impression that my friends thought I was a bit of a ghoul for spending so much time in the cemetery.

WHERE WERE the art lovers in the twenties? Sullivan was internationally known and was considered in Europe, and in some parts, still is, as the one authentic artist America ever produced. I know where Sullivan was. He was quite literally starving in a sad little room on Chicago's north side. He was sick and didn't have enough to eat. Strange, isn't it? In a great city in the twentieth century, one of the greatest architects of all time was left alone, sick, and hungry.

No, I'm sorry. I can't shed any tears over the death of the Garrick. Beauty is truly in the eye of the beholder and if we don't have time to look at it, we don't deserve it.

It is just possible that the destruction of the Garrick may be the beginning of appreciation of the great architecture we have around us. The story of American architecture is the story of Chicago but this seems to have been a rather well kept secret from the ordinary taxpayer until recently.

IT IS RATHER difficult to work Louis Sullivan into the elementary or high school curriculum. He just doesn't fit in neatly. I don't think most people knew much about him unless they were a student of art or architecture.

Until we needed that parking space, no one, including art lovers, thought much about his masterpieces one way or the other. The price was awfully high but maybe it was worth it.

Indian Dancers Stage Annual Fete Saturday

Indian dancers from Cook, DuPage and Lake counties will gather at Palatine high school Saturday for the second annual "Wachi-wa," sponsored by the Nanahbuzh, a Northwest suburban Indian dance tribe.

Members of the Nanahbuzh are teen-age boys and girls whose hobbies are based on Indian lore. Purpose of their annual Wachi-Wa or Snow Dance is to interest others in Indians and give demonstrations of their ability and accomplishments.

THIS YEAR'S powwow is an all-day affair to which the public is invited at any time. Contests will begin at 2 p.m. and run continuously until 10:30 p.m. Dance leader Earl Past, Barrington, said that best visiting times will be between 2 and 5 and 7 and 9:30 p.m. During these hours the program has been arranged with dances most interesting to those who are unfamiliar with Indian lore.

Each performance is based upon authentic customs and traditions of the American Indian, emphasizing tribes' social activities. During the powwow Indian lore groups from the three counties will perform dances of the Woodland, Plains, and Southwestern Indian tribes.

They also do championship dances, of which the "Hoop Dance" is an example. In addition, group members will have a trading session when parts of costumes, raw materials, and beading will pass from hand to hand. Handicraft exhibits and displays are also part of the powwows.

THE WACHI-WA was named in honor of the Indian method of keeping time. Based on the phases of the moon, Indian months were named in accordance with physical changes of nature. January was their snow moon. Since the Wachi-Wa is given in January, it was given the name meaning Snow Dance.

MEMBERS OF the Nanahbuzh tribe of Palatine are shown rehearsing for the "Basket Dance," one of several they will perform Saturday at Palatine high school. The dance is a fertility rite of the Cochiti tribe of southwestern United States. Indian dance groups from three counties will entertain and compete in the Nanahbuzh's annual Wachi-Wa. (A14

The Nanahbuzh tribe which was officially christened at an Indian ceremonial naming rite after last year's Wachi-Wa, is an outgrowth of the Explorer Scouting program in Palatine and Arlington Heights.

Two leaders were interested in providing a more comprehensive Indian lore program for their Scouts. Enthusiasm was so great that the men decided to leave Scouting and start another group that would open membership to girls as well as well as boys and to youngsters younger than 14.

OFFICERS of the Nanahbuzh tribal council are a chief, dog soldier chief (vice president), wampum keeper (treasurer) and sandpainter (secretary). A dance chief and dance princess to take charge of dance teams are also elected.

Members of the Nanahbuzh solved their transportation problems by buying a used school bus to get to performances and activities. They also have their own camping equipment and five authentic type tepees painted in the Indian manner.

The tepees house six persons and when camping out, each crew assigned to a teepee is responsible for planning and cooking meals.

Each member of the Nanahbuzh is required to make his own costume and do his beadwork and handicraft. Many older and more advanced members have expensive, elaborate, and colorful costumes. Newer members usually have a basic Indian costume which will improve with its owner's experience and advancement in dancing proficiency. All feathers used in Nanahbuzh costumes are real eagle, owl, or hawk feathers imported from Alaska.

CO-LEADER with Past is Frank W. Webster, Arlington Heights, who became acquainted with Indian lore while living in Lac Du Flambeau, Wis., heart of the Lac Du Flambeau Indian reservation. He is interested in the Chippewa and other Woodland tribes who made their home in the midwestern states. Webster is associated with Indians of Chicago as a member of the Longhouse. He is also a member of the Mascoutin society executive board and is past chief of that society.

Past's special interest is the costume traditions of the Sioux and Plains Indians. He is a member of the Mascoutin society's powwow committee.

Mrs. Mildred Stroud, Palatine, is advisor and counselor to Nanahbuzh girls. (A14

'61 License Deadline Is February 15

With only three weeks remaining before the February 15 deadline for displaying 1961 motor vehicle license plates, registrations have reached about the half-way mark, Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier said Thursday.

At the close of business last week, a little more than two million applications had been received, he said. Registration is expected to total about four million.

SECRETARY Carpentier urged motorists who plan to submit their applications by mail to do so within the next week in order to be sure of having their plates in time for the deadline. He emphasized that February 15 is a display deadline, not merely an application deadline.

Persons not having their plates on the vehicle by February 15 will have to discontinue using their cars or run the risk of arrest for failure to display current plates, Carpentier said. (A14

Growers Study Vegetable Spray Menace

by STEVE FRANZMEIER

Some 100 Cook county vegetable farmers in business suits gathered last Thursday morning in Arlington Heights to learn how they can avoid contaminating their vegetables with the residue from insecticides and fungicides they use to kill insects and organic substances.

The man responsible for prosecuting them if they intentionally market contaminated vegetables was there to offer suggestions. He is John H. Guill, district director of the United States Food and Drug administration in Chicago.

The occasion was the Cook county vegetable growers school in the Cook County Truck Gardeners and Farmers association building at 2120 E. Northwest highway. January 19 was the third and final day of the school.

"WITH SO many new insecticides and fungicides on the market we want to know what residues they leave and if vegetables are safe for public consumption after they are sprayed," said Carl Mees, Cook county farm advisor, in introducing Guill.

Later, in explaining that certain weed and insect killers are more toxic to some people than others, Guill referred to the death of Ernesto Perez, 2, last July on a farm operated by Peter Panagiotaros west of Roselle in DuPage county. The boy was the son of migrant workers living on Panagiotaros' farm.

Dr. Kenneth DuBois, pharmacology professor at the University of Chicago, said that the boy most likely died of poisoning by an organic phosphate used to spray vegetable plants.

Panagiotaros was present at the meeting.

Farmers showed by their questions that they were aware of the concern demonstrated by the public in recent months over contaminated food. A best-selling book, "The Poisons In Our Food," and resultant widespread discussion, have focused public attention on the subject.

But the farmers pointed the finger of responsibility at others, too. Township, county and state road crews spray weeds alongside roads. Occasionally, on windy days, this weed killing spray drifts onto vegetable fields, they said.

WALTER SASS of Chicago, president of the vegetable growers association, said that farmers "definitely can stop spraying on the highway if the wind is blowing the spray on vegetables."

Weed killer sprayed by railroad crews on weeds on railroad rights of way was another source of possible contamination cited by one farmer. He recently lost a court case in which he sought to recover damages from a railroad. He claimed that the spray killed some of his vegetables.

Recent announcement that forest preserves may be sprayed from airplanes with a substance designed to combat Dutch elm disease elicited a cry of alarm from still another farmer. He termed the possibility that the spray would drift onto vegetables a "serious danger."

GUILL TOLD the assembled vegetable growers that he believes they could satisfy their legal and moral obligations to market only non-contaminated vegetables by following closely directions on the cans and bottles containing insecticides and fungicides.

This includes noting the safety period which must be allowed between spraying and marketing. And it includes noting the variation from county to county in recommended procedures for application of the spray.

Charles Benc, a Will county truck gardener, mentioned the abruptness with which A & P supermarkets stop buying vegetables from any grower whose produce has been sampled by Food and Drug administration inspectors. A & P, he said, will not begin buying again until the sample has been certified as being uncontaminated.

Others agreed with him that the alleged delay of as much as 10 days between sampling and report by Food and Drug authorities can cause financial disaster since vegetables are highly perishable.

Guill pointed out the difference between investigative and official samples taken by inspectors. The Food and Drug laboratories reach a decision on contamination of official samples within 24 hours, he said. But, it may be four days before the laboratory receives a sample, said Guill.

He explained the function of the Food and Drug administration—mainly a law enforcement agency—and described its operations. He said that the federal food, drug and cosmetic act prohibits interstate shipment of items misbranded, altered or adulterated.

THE FACT that the administration can only prosecute if it can prove interstate movement of an item hinders enforcement, said Guill. Inspectors can inspect each retail and wholesale firm once every four and a half years, he said.

However, previous violators and those under suspicion—including vegetable growers—will be inspected more frequently. Other farmers to be inspected are chosen by lot.

Guill said that the Food and Drug administration often learns of possible contamination of vegetables from alert neighbors.

In all the inspections of 40 types of food and drugs the rate of violations discovered is five to 10 per cent, said Guill.

Guill's parting advice to the farmers: "If you have a question, ask us. We may not be able to answer it, but ask us anyway. We might."

Most Grass, Legume Seed Supplies Ample

by L. R. SIMERL

Supplies of legume and grass seeds are about the same as they were a year ago and are generally adequate for 1961 needs. Supplies of most kinds are smaller than average, but farmers' needs are smaller too, since they are gradually reducing their use of rotation hay and pasture. Furthermore, substantial amounts of some kinds of legume and grass seeds will be imported to meet the needs.

The supply of alfalfa seed is estimated at 171 million pounds, down 7 per cent from a year ago and down 27 per cent from the 10-year, 1949-58, average. Producers sold their 1960 crop of alfalfa seed for prices averaging about $27.50 a hundred pounds, or $1.80 less than the year before.

The supply of red clover seed, 120 million pounds, is 10 per cent above last year and 5 per cent above average. Producers received $21.10 a hundred pounds for their crop, $5.00 less than the year before.

LESPEDEZA supplies are estimated at 102 million pounds. This is 27 per cent short of last year and 37 per cent short of average. This shortage is not expected to be made up by imports. Farmers were paid $12.20 a hundred pounds, $2.28 more than the year before.

The supply of sweet clover seed is figured at 46 million pounds, 9 per cent less than a year ago and 25 per cent less than the average of 10 years. Imports will add to supplies. United States producers were paid about $61.60 a hundred pounds for their 1960 crop, $2.10 less than the price received for the previous crop.

The alsike clover seed supply totals 11 million pounds, off 14 per cent from the year before and off 30 per cent from the average. This supply will be supplemented by imports. Farmers got $16.50 a hundred for their 1960 crop, $2.10 less than for the 1959 crop.

The supply of Ladino clover is 6 million pounds. It is about the same as last year and is considered to be adequate. Producers received $60 a hundred pounds, $10 more than a year before.

A SUPPLY of 60 million pounds of timothy is 28 per cent more than last year and 18 per cent more than average. The 1960 crop was sold by farmers for $5.86 a hundred pounds, $5.00 less than they received for the previous crop.

The supply of tall fescues (Alta and Kentucky 31) is 33 million pounds. This is 18 per cent less than a year ago, but 16 per cent more than average. Farmers sold their seed for $11.30 a hundred pounds, $5.30 less than the year before.

The supply of 18 million pounds of smooth bromegrass is a bit less than a year ago, but 22 per cent more than the 10-year average. The price received by farmers was $9.45 a hundred pounds, $5.85 less than the previous year.

Of orchardgrass seed we have 16 million pounds, which is up 18 per cent from a year ago and is about an average supply. Farmers sold their 1960 crop for $15.60 a hundred pounds, down $7.40 from a year before. (FM

DuPage Dairy Day Held January 25

DuPage county held its annual Dairy Day January 25 in the 4-H Building at the county fair grounds west of Wheaton.

Dairy Day is sponsored by the Farm Bureau, the Pure Milk association, the County Health Department, the Dairy Herd Improvement association and the University of Illinois extension service.

The program was designed to help dairy producers, dairy plant operators and distributors keep up with the complex problems of a safe milk supply.

DR. J. R. PICKARD, D.V.M., extension veterinarian of the University of Illinois spoke on "Keeping Cows Healthy for Greater Production." The second morning speaker was Tim Mogan, director of membership, Pure Milk association and will discuss "Adjusting Production for Greater Return."

The afternoon session was a discussion of the "1960 DuPage County Milk Survey" by L. R. Davenport, D.V.M., chief division of milk control and veterinary public health. Illinois department of public health. (Fm

Confinement Hog Production Needs Careful Planning

Confinement production of hogs involves a lot more than just locking them up in the old horse barn, says Roy Van Arsdall, U.S.D.A. economist at the University of Illinois.

A confinement system should be designed for labor efficiency. Van Arsdall emphasizes the importance of mechanical means of handling feed and water as well as equipment for handling manure.

FOR MOST efficient feed conversion, temperatures should be kept at a moderate level within the house, Van Arsdall said. A closed house must be properly ventilated to control moisture.

Van Arsdall figures that a good, fully equipped farrowing house costs about $300 per sow space. On the basis of about four litters a year with an average of 7½ pigs per litter, this cost amounts to about $10 per market hog produced per year.

A FINISHING house costs about $10 per market hog produced per year. This cost is figured by assigning a cost of $2.50 per square foot and allotting 10 square feet per hog and allowing four and a half to five months to finish a bunch of hogs.

A farmer can expect to invest about $10,000 if he produces 500 hogs per year. This figure includes the cost of self-feeders and waterers.

If the houses and equipment are bought new, the costs will be slightly more than for pasture production. However, Van Arsdall says that depreciation is greater with portable housing and partly compensates for this difference.

A confinement system can free land for more intensive cropping. The system can reduce labor needs and make it possible to distribute labor more evenly throughout the year, Van Arsdall said.

ANOTHER advantage of this setup is that pigs are easier to handle, sort and vaccinate.

Handling manure is the main disadvantage of a confinement system, according to Van Arsdall. Also, because the hogs are unable to supplement their diet as they would on pasture, a farmer with a confinement system must thoroughly understand the nutritional requirements of hogs. And diseases can cause havoc if good sanitation practices aren't followed, Van Arsdall warned.

Van Arsdall thinks there is a definite trend toward confinement production of livestock in Illinois. (Fm

Illinois Corn Acreage Hits 60-Year Peak

Television and radio did not produce all the corn last year, for the state agricultural department this week reported the largest corn acreage in 60 years in Illinois.

Illinois produced 697 million bushels of corn in 1960 with an average yield of 68 bushels per acre, only one bushel below the all-time average record established in 1958.

The year end report, part of the Illinois Annual Crop Summary prepared by the Illinois Cooperative, Crop Reporting Service, sponsored by the Illinois and the United States Departments of Agriculture, also recorded a soybean acreage of 4,973,000 acres under cultivation in 1960, second only to the 1958 acreage of 4,973,000 acres under cultivation in 1960, second only to the 1958 acreage of 5,066,000 acres.

Soybean harvest totaled 129 million bushels, averaging 26.0 bushels per acre. Highest average yield was recorded in 1956 with 28.5 bushels.

Production of wheat was estimated at 46.2 million bushels, compared with 43.2 million bushels last season and with a 10-year average of 45.7 million bushels. The yield per acre, 29.0 bushels, was considerably below the 37.5 bushels top record of 1956. Yields were generally good, but rust and smut infestation caused some drops around the state.

OATS YIELDED an average 51 bushels per acre in 1960, compared to the record yield of 56 bushels in 1955. The 1.8 million acres of oats harvested in 1955. The 1.8 million acres of oats harvested in 1960 was the lowest since 1877.

Money Management Just as Important

Poor money management can be the stumbling block in good farm organization and operation, a University of Illinois agricultural economist points out.

A. G. Mueller says that money management for farm families differs from that for city families because business and family money matters are combined.

HE MAKES these suggestions for controlling and managing farm family financial affairs:

1. Keep track of the flow of dollars in and out of your bank account. Use farm and home account record books to see where the money comes from and where it goes.

2. Keep a record of farm inventory values ana depreciation to supplement records of sales and expenses.

3. Calculate your net worth at least once a year. A regular net worth statement helps to measure financial progress. Net worth is simply the total value of all that you own after subtracting all that you owe.

4. Set up a spending plan or budget to make sure that you will have the money when you need it.

5. Protect yourself against risks. Fire, casualty and liability insurance are important. Keep debts in line with your net worth and capacity to repay. (Fm

Growers Study Vegetable Spray Menace

by STEVE FRANZMEIER

Some 100 Cook county vegetable farmers in business suits gathered last Thursday morning in Arlington Heights to learn how they can avoid contaminating their vegetables with the residue from insecticides and fungicides they use to kill insects and organic substances.

The man responsible for prosecuting them if they intentionally market contaminated vegetables was there to offer suggestions. He is John H. Guill, district director of the United States Food and Drug administration in Chicago.

The occasion was the Cook county vegetable growers school in the Cook County Truck Gardeners and Farmers association building at 2120 E. Northwest highway. January 19 was the third and final day of the school.

"WITH SO many new insecticides and fungicides on the market we want to know what residues they leave and if vegetables are safe for public consumption after they are sprayed," said Carl Mees, Cook county farm advisor, in introducing Guill.

Later, in explaining that certain weed and insect killers are more toxic to some people than others, Guill referred to the death of Ernesto Perez, 2, last July on a farm operated by Peter Panagiotaros west of Roselle in DuPage county. The boy was the son of migrant workers living on Panagiotaros' farm.

Dr. Kenneth DuBois, pharmacology professor at the University of Chicago, said that the boy most likely died of poisoning by an organic phosphate used to spray vegetable plants.

Panagiotaros was present at the meeting.

Farmers showed by their questions that they were aware of the concern demonstrated by the public in recent months over contaminated food. A best-selling book, "The Poisons In Our Food," and resultant widespread discussion, have focused public attention on the subject.

But the farmers pointed the finger of responsibility at others, too. Township, county and state road crews spray weeds alongside roads. Occasionally, on windy days, this weed killing spray drifts onto vegetable fields, they said.

WALTER SASS of Chicago, president of the vegetable growers association, said that farmers "definitely can stop spraying on the highway if the wind is blowing the spray on vegetables."

Production of wheat was estimated at 46.2 million bushels, compared with 43.2 million bushels last season and with a 10-year average of 45.7 million bushels. The yield per acre, 29.0 bushels, was considerably below the 37.5 bushels top record of 1956. Yields were generally good, but rust and smut infestation caused some drops around the state.

OATS YIELDED an average 51 bushels per acre in 1960, compared to the record yield of 56 bushels in 1955. The 1.8 million acres of oats harvested in 1955. The 1.8 million acres of oats harvested in 1960 was the lowest since 1877.

Hay production attained a record high averaging 2.08 tons per acre, for 4,568,000 tons from 2,193,000 acres under cultivation.

Money Management Just as Important

Poor money management can be the stumbling block in good farm organization and operation, a University of Illinois agricultural economist points out.

A. G. Mueller says that money management for farm families differs from that for city families because business and family money matters are combined.

HE MAKES these suggestions for controlling and managing farm family financial affairs:

1. Keep track of the flow of dollars in and out of your bank account. Use farm and home account record books to see where the money comes from and where it goes.

2. Keep a record of farm inventory values and depreciation to supplement records of sales and expenses.

3. Calculate your net worth at least once a year. A regular net worth statement helps to measure financial progress. Net worth is simply the total value of all that you own after subtracting all that you owe.

4. Set up a spending plan or budget to make sure that you will have the money when you need it.

5. Protect yourself against risks. Fire, casualty and liability insurance are important. Keep debts in line with your net worth and capacity to repay. (Fm

The

By Rev. Don L. Jone Pastor, The Christian Church of Arlington Heights

Is the church really worth it? Does it have a really vital function in human life? Perhaps the church is like a tonsil, an organ which once served an important purpose; but which, having lost its original usefulness, has become nothing more than a pain in the neck. If this is so, the sooner we discover it the better.

But those who are closest to the Christian community discover that, in spite of its faults, the church is not useless but indeed an indispensable organ in the life of civilization. You can make that discovery, too. If you identify yourself with the church and commit yourself to its mission, the value of the church will become clear, and you will find joy in its fellowship.

Join us this Sunday at Miner Junior High School, Miner and Dryden. Church school 9:45 a.m., Worship 10:45 a.m.

The Christian Way

By Rev.
Don L. Jones
Pastor, The Christian
Arlington
Heights

Is the church really worth it? Does it have a really vital function in human life? Perhaps the church is like a tonsil, an organ which once served an important purpose; but which, having lost its original usefulness, has become nothing more than a pain in the neck. If this is so, the sooner we discover it the better.

But those who are closest to the Christian community discover that, in spite of its faults, the church is not useless but indeed an indispensable organ in the life of civilization. You can make that discovery, too. If you identify yourself with the church and commit yourself to its mission, the value of the church will become clear, and you will find joy in its fellowship.

Three Gals Register 600s with 611 High!

Individual performances -- three 600 series -- rather than team performances stole the spotlight this week in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling bowling league.

All this was accomplished Saturday night at River-Rand Bowl in Des Plaines despite the fact that two of the six teams, Steve's Restaurant of Wheeling and Northfield Bowl, postponed their match.

Captain Joan Lindahl of the Morton Pontiac team and Arlington Heights, paced all individuals with a 611 series. She posted games of 196, 171, and 244, the 244 being high game for the night. Even so, her Morton Pontiac team dropped two games to second place Vernon Hills Restaurant of Lake Zurich.

ALICE ULRICH of Chicago bowled games of 214, 174 and 218 for a 606 series to pace league-leading River-Rand to two victories and a 5-1 second half record.

The third good score was an even 600 by Bonnie Kuhn of Mundelein. Bonnie rolled games of 228, 162, and 210.

Aside from these three girls, the rest of the league had a rough night. Only two girls, Vi Douglas of Palatine with 552 and Pat Proebstle of Arlington Heights with 509, were in the 500's. Every other bowler was in the 400's.

Three Gals Register 600s with 611 High!

Individual performances -- three 600 series -- rather than team performances stole the spotlight this week in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling bowling league.

All this was accomplished Saturday night at River-Rand Bowl in Des Plaines despite the fact that two of the six teams, Steve's Restaurant of Wheeling and Northfield Bowl, postponed their match.

Captain Joan Lindahl of the Morton Pontiac team and Arlington Heights, paced all individuals with a 611 series. She posted games of 196, 171, and 244, the 244 being high game for the night. Even so, her Morton Pontiac team dropped two games to second place Vernon Hills Restaurant of Lake Zurich.

ALICE ULRICH of Chicago bowled games of 214, 174 and 218 for a 606 series to pace league-leading River-Rand to two victories and a 5-1 second half record.

The third good score was an even 600 by Bonnie Kuhn of Mundelein. Bonnie rolled games of 228, 162, and 210.

Aside from these three girls, the rest of the league had a rough night. Only two girls, Vi Douglas of Palatine with 552 and Pat Proebstle of Arlington Heights with 509, were in the 500's. Every other bowler was in the 400's.

Knights Seek 18th Straight Victory

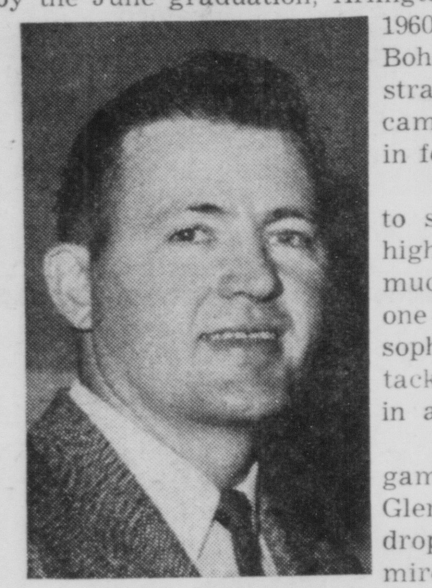
KICKIN' IT AROUND

by BOB FRISK

LAST WINTER ARLINGTON high's basketball Cardinals sporting a mediocre 6-8 standard in West Suburban play, vaulted into hardwood prominence with a smashing triumph in the regional tournament and finalist berth in the sectional.

The Cards were in the news. They won six of their last seven games in that 1959-60 campaign and dumped two conference champions en route to the sectional finale.

Although the roster was stripped of seasoned performers by the June graduation, Arlington still started off fast in the 1960-61 schedule. Coach Frank Bohac's outfit rolled to three straight wins at the outset of the campaign and claimed victories in four of their first five outings.



FRANK BOHAC

But the inevitable was due to set in for this inexperienced high school quintet. It was pretty much to expect a club with only one letterman back and with two sophomores engineering the attack to continue to set a fast pace in area hardwood circles.

Arlington has won only one game since a Dec. 3 victory over Glenbrook. The squad now has dropped seven straight and is mired in the cellar with Riverside.

But there's basis for some optimism when you examine the record following those three straight victories. How many times has Arlington been thoroughly out-classed in a game? Once. Two weeks ago Hinsdale piled up a 15-point lead at halftime and breezed in by 21.

Now let's examine the rest of those defeats. In the first meeting with Downers Grove the Cards only lost by four and were down by two with 53 seconds remaining. In a 15-point loss to LaGrange, Arlington only trailed by four with 4:09 remaining. The Cards trailed Glenbard West by four with 4:30 remaining before falling by 12.

In the Niles pre-holiday tournament Bohac's crew experienced three frustrating evenings. They were within six of East Leyden midway in the fourth period before dropping a 63-51 decision. They shot close to 60 per cent against North Chicago and still suffered a four-point loss. They headed Niles by 11 before falling by one.

Things didn't change when action resumed in the West Suburban conference. The Cards held the upperhand on York for a majority of the contest before falling by two, 57-55. They gave Maine East's conference leaders a good battle but dropped an eight-point decision. Last Friday they held a one-point lead with 20 seconds left but lost by one.

The Cards are becoming conditioned to playing close games, an item that may pay off before the season terminates. But they want to start winning.

One of these days Arlington is going to open up and shock some unsuspecting quintet. The Cards are no longer inexperienced on a varsity level. They've got 15 games behind them; they've got good shots on the squad; the sophs are taking charge; and they'll shortly have the use once again of 6-5 Bob Jacobsen who has been sidelined with pneumonia.

"We're hoping Jake (Jacobsen) can come back and play some steady ball," Bohac pointed out Monday. "He shot a little last week but should get in his first full practices this week." Jacobsen was the squad's second leading scorer and was averaging close to ten points a game when he was sidelined.

The emergence of sophs Chuck Close and Gary Brodnan as dependable scorers and back-court performers has been an encouraging item in the Cards' play.

Close ranks as the squad's second leading scorer this season with 123 markers and an 8.2 ppg. In the four tilts since the holiday break Chuck has popped in 54 markers or just 15 less than he netted through his first eleven games this season. Brodnan has 43 in those same four games. Gary had just 49 in his first eleven encounters!

If the sophs continue to show well, if Jim Clabaugh continues to peck away with his current 17.4 scoring average, and if Jacobsen, Ross Retterer, Skip Witt, and Don Kolstad can turn in steady performances, Arlington could start to roll.

We're dealing with a lot of "ifs," but one thing is certain. The Cards need that one big win that will snap that seven game losing streak. When they get past that hurdle, they could start making up for lost time.

Only time will tell.

Sportsarama At Arlington High Saturday

The Cardinals Booster Club of Arlington high school will present its second Sportsarama in the school's gymnasium this Saturday, Jan. 28, at 8 p.m.

All nine competitive sports will be represented. Some acts will be educational, some will be humorous, and all will be entertaining.

An added attraction will be an appearance by the school's popular German band.

Paul Michaels, Booster member and a well-known local humorist, will be Master of Ceremonies. Max Friedlander, Ways and Means chairman of the club, is in charge of all arrangements.

Admission charges will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Tickets may be purchased from Booster Club members, in the high school's administrative office or at the door the night of the show.

The program will appeal to all ages as an attempt will be made to acquaint parents, friends and students with all phases of sports activities at the high school.

Cards to Host Lions Friday In WSC Tilt

The Cards want this one Friday.

Saddled with seven straight defeats, Arlington high's varsity basketball representative is ready and willing to move back into the win column and initiate a late-season spurt.

Whether or not the Cardinals are able will be answered in part Friday evening when they entertain a rapidly-improving LaGrange quintet.

The Lions, victor in three of their last four outings, will carry an 8-4 overall mark and third place ranking in the West Suburban into Friday's fray.

THE HARDWOOD festivities will be kicked off by a frosh-soph game at 7 p. m. as Ken Schaller's Cards seek to upset a strong LaGrange outfit.

Arlington's varsity aggregation hasn't registered a victory since Dec. 16 and has been bounced in every outing at home since a Dec. 3 conquest of Glenbrook.

In most instances, the Cardinals haven't been losing by much. But they've been losing and are now tagged with 5-10 overall standard.

COACH FRANK Bohac's outfit is capable of erupting at any time and Friday evening would be a good time to start that revival. LaGrange won the first meeting between the two schools but had to battle all the way.

Bohac hopes to have 6-5 Bob Jacobsen back in the alignment Friday as the senior has been on the sidelines with pneumonia since the final game of the Niles holiday tourney. Jacobsen popped in 15 markers against LaGrange in the initial tilt and would be a welcome addition.

Junior Don Kolstad is a probable starter for tomorrow's game and the 6-1 performer has been turning in some strong performances in recent affairs. Don has dropped in 20 points in three games in which he's seen extensive action and has been a standout rebounder.

EITHER ROSS Retterer or Jacobsen will handle the other forward slot opposite Kolstad with Jim Clabaugh and sophs Charlie Close and Gary Brodnan rounding out the starting five.

Clabaugh is well out in front of the individual scoring parade for Arlington this season with 261 markers in the 15 games. Close moved into the runnerup slot last weekend when he popped in 14 against Downers Grove. Chuck now has 123 over the campaign.

LaGRANGE WILL bring two of the conference's top scorers into Friday's contest in 5-10 Dick Ruggles and 6-5 Fred Chana. Ruggles has 149 in eight WSC tilts and Chana boasts 127.

The Lions boast a 5-3 West Suburban record and handled Arlington 62-47 in the first meeting with Ruggles contributing 25 points and Chana 14.

Prospect High Wrestlers in 1st Place Tie

Capturing seven decisions and a tie, Prospect high's varsity wrestlers remained in a first place deadlock in the Interim league title chase with an impressive 23-14 victory over Glenbard East last Friday evening.

Coach Dick Mudge's Knights boast a 5-1 loop mark and are currently tied with Glenbrook for the Interim lead.

Prospect moved out to an early 3-0 lead thanks to dependable Del Blakely and after Glenbard copped the next two bouts, the locals counted again on an 11-1 decision by Capt. Bob Trausch.

WAYNE ZAEHLER and Doug Vaughan collected successive decisions and Ed Pederson gave the Knights three more markers with a 7-3 conquest at 145.

Mike Dawson was involved in an 8-8 tie at 154 but Ron Aukamp claimed a 4-2 decision at 165.

Heavyweight Jim Minikel worked in the varsity alignment for the first time this season and easily blanked Glenbard's Ed Gordon, 8-0.

The summaries:

Wheaton's Tigers To Test Prospect

—by BOB FRISK

The state's second-ranked high school basketball outfit moves into the second round of Interim league play Friday evening when it hosts a rangy and dangerous Wheaton quintet.

Prospect high school's unbeaten Knights will shoot for their 18th straight triumph and seventh straight in loop competition in a battle that is expected to pack the Foundry rd. fieldhouse.

Although Coach Dick Kinneman's flashy crew buried the Tigers in a December get-together, it took an impressive display of offensive power and defensive skill to turn the trick.

GEORGE POMEY popped in 32 markers for a school record, Fred Empkie was brilliant with some fancy outshooting, and two other boys hit in double figures in a 78-61 rout. The Knights were hot and it paid off.

Whether or not Prospect can give Wheaton another sample of this impressive prep basketball remains to be seen. Kinneman knows that the Tigers have the guns for an explosion of their own and is preparing his Knights for another rough test.

Every club is shooting for Prospect's unbeaten squad and Wheaton is no exception. Coach Al Duhm has a big club and this Interim loop entry picked off both the Joliet and Naperville holiday tourney titles in an impressive display of hardwood prowess.

At Prospect

	Prospect		Wheaton
6-4	Pomey	F	Hutchinson	6-6
6-4	Zadel	F	Tichava	6-4
6-5	Palmer	C	Jones	6-5

6-0	Empkie	G	Lange	5-10

TIME:

Prospect, Dick Kinneman; Wheaton, Al Duhm
Gene Kelly and Glen Van Proyen

JOHNNY PFUND, a sharp-shooting 6-1 guard, and Jack Hutchinson, a 6-6 senior, have been the key figures offensively in six league encounters, but 6-5 Jimmy Jones showed last Saturday that he's ready for some consistent help with a 22-point barrage in the Tigers' 80-79 loss to Batavia.

Joining these three talented performers in the probable Wheaton alignment Friday will be 5-10 Al Lange and 6-4 Art Tichava. Tom Fitzsimmons, a 6-4 senior, and Dick Kee, a 5-8 junior, should also see extensive action.

WHEATON exhibited some fine balance in the first meeting with Prospect with the five starters hitting in double figures. Pfund headed the losers with 15 and Jones chipped in with 11.

The Wheaton battle is the first of two "must" games for Prospect if the latter entertains any hope of annexing a clear-cut Interim championship. Next Friday evening, Feb. 3, the Knights journey to East Leyden to face one of the hottest quintets in the Chicago area.

Prospect played in streaks against Proviso West last weekend and still came out on top by 16 points but will have to be ready for Wheaton.

EIGHT BOYS broke into the scoring column against the Panthers with Pomey netting 19 and holding his second place slot in the Interim scoring chase.

Although Pomey and 6-4 Bill Zadel have been the Knights' top performers on offense thus far in the campaign, Wheaton will have a special eye out for Empkie, the 6-0 guard.

Empkie is noted for his defensive ability but in three varsity meetings against Wheaton in the past two years Fred has drilled 45 points for an even 15.0 average.

Burm's Pin Does It!

Arlington Wrestlers Stop Downers Grove

Arlington high's varsity wrestlers put on quite a show for the home folks last Saturday afternoon as they fashioned an impressive 26-21 victory over previously unbeaten Downers Grove.

Bob Burm's pin in 3:49 of an exciting heavyweight match gave the Cardinals the triumph and sent the visiting Trojans reeling to their first defeat after 11 straight dual meet conquests.

For Coach Bob Emmons' Cards it was their fifth conference decision and boosted them into a tie for first in the West Suburban title chase. Arlington now owns a 5-1 league mark and 6-3 overall slate with a key test Friday at LaGrange and quad Saturday at Willowbrook.

Quad Saturday

Arlington's varsity wrestlers will engage in a quad at Willowbrook high school Saturday with first round matches getting underway at 10 a. m. The second round will open at approximately 12:30 p. m. Joining the Cards and the host school will be Glenbard West and York.

TRAILING 21-13 with three bouts remaining, the Cards put on a decisive rush. Soph Hal Selleck moved out to a 5-2 lead after two periods at 165 and added two more points in the third period of an 8-2 win over highly-regarded Ed Janoski. The victory was Selleck's eighth of the 1960-61 campaign.

Senior Rich Edelblute added another impressive performance to his growling list with a pin at 180 to knot the count at 21-all. Edelblute, who boasts six pins on the mat this winter, now owns an impressive 11-1 standard.

BUT IT WAS that heavyweight bout which brought the crowd around the mat in one of the most dramatic finishes of any athletic event at Arlington high in recent years.

Burm carried only a 2-7 mark into the meet and had been pinned on five occasions. But the determined junior came through when it counted.

A take-down and near-fall put the Cards' performer down 5-0 after one period, but Bob rebounded with a reversal at the outset of the second period. That's when it happened. With 3:49 gone in the bout Burm put the clincher on to decide the bitterly-contest WSC meet.

BURM was the hero of the day but Arlington had several other important figures in its impressive victory.

Soph Denny Fitz-Patrick gave the Cards three points with his sixth decision of the season at 95 pounds, a 3-0 victory.

Downers rebounded with a decision at 103 but senior Tim Smith kept his unbeaten league slate intact with a pin in 5:30 of the 112-pound test. The pin was Tim's first in his high school career and set his season slate at 7-4-1.

A Big Win!

Arlington 26, Downers Grove 21
95 pounds—Fitz-Patrick (A) beat Elliott (DG), 3-0
103—Bochar (DG) beat Hoehle (A), 6-0
112—Smith (A) pinned Briner (DG), 5:30
120—Kerchner (DG) pinned Anderson (A), 3:55
127—Tamburrino (DG) beat Adams (A), 6-1
133—Mejdrich (DG) pinned O'Gorman (A), 3:35
138—Koenig (A) beat Sitton (DG), 5-3
145—Woodruff (A) tied Rossi (DG), 1-1
154—Ganer (DG) beat Gorman (A), 5-1
165—Selleck (A) beat Janoski (DG), 8-2
180—Edelblute (A) pinned Trumbull (DG), 1:33
Heavyweight — Burm (A) pinned Crane (DG), 3:49

THE TROJANS took a 16-8 lead with two pins and a decision in the next three bouts, but Arlington's Mike Koenig claimed an impressive 5-3 win at 138 to cut the visitors' lead to 16-11.

Junior Roy Woodruff battled Downers' Rossi to a 1-1 tie at 145, but the Trojans went ahead 21-13 at 154 on a 5-1 decision. That's when Selleck, Edelblute, and Burm went to work!

Senior Tim O'Gorman suffered his first conference loss of the season when he was pinned at 133. The defeat was only Tim's second in 12 outings this winter.

Prospect's Gym Outfit Handles Proviso, 91-41

Prospect claimed the top slot in each event and had little trouble rolling past Proviso West's varsity gymnasts last Friday evening, 91-41.

Coach Rick Farris' Knights registered sweeps on the Trampoline, rings, and in tumbling as they picked up their third victory of the campaign.

Dave Price copped both the parallel bars and high bar for 14 team points. Other individual winners for the Knights were Ray Strobel on the Trampoline, Rick Stubenrauch on the side horse, Dan Malloy on the still rings, and Jim Oldham in tumbling.

Picking up seconds for Prospect were Paul Shaw on the Tramp, Warren VanDerVoort on the high bar, Dick Liebenow on the still rings, and Dave Leekley in tumbling.

Cards' JVs Top Downers For 6th Win

Bob Laughlin and Vince Furlong each collected 14 points to spark Arlington high's junior-varsity basketball team to a 43-30 victory over Downers Grove last Saturday morning.

Coach Norm Patberg's Cards recovered from a 13-12 halftime deficit to explode in the final two periods and wrap up their sixth victory of the 1960-61 season.

In addition to the offensive efforts of Laughlin and Furlong, John Burgermeister chipped in with six points and Dennis Koeppen added five. Ray Miller rounded out Arlington's scoring with four.

Prospect High Wrestlers in 1st Place Tie

Capturing seven decisions and a tie, Prospect high's varsity wrestlers remained in a first place deadlock in the Interim league title chase with an impressive 23-14 victory over Glenbard East last Friday evening.

Coach Dick Mudge's Knights boast a 5-1 loop mark and are currently tied with Glenbrook for the Interim lead.

Prospect moved out to an early 3-0 lead thanks to dependable Del Blakely and after Glenbard copped the next two bouts, the locals counted again on an 11-1 decision by Capt. Bob Trausch.

WAYNE ZAEHLER and Doug Vaughan collected successive decisions and Ed Pederson gave the Knights three more markers with a 7-3 conquest at 145.

Mike Dawson was involved in an 8-8 tie at 154 but Ron Aukamp claimed a 4-2 decision at 165.

Sportsarama At Arlington High Saturday

The Cardinals Booster Club of Arlington high school will present its second Sportsarama in the school's gymnasium this Saturday, Jan. 28, at 8 p.m.

All nine competitive sports will be represented. Some acts will be educational, some will be humorous, and all will be entertaining.

An added attraction will be an appearance by the school's popular German band.

Paul Michaels, Booster member and a well-known local humorist, will be Master of Ceremonies. Max Friedlander, Ways and Means chairman of the club, is in charge of all arrangements.

Admission charges will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Tickets may be purchased from Booster Club members, in the high school's administrative office or at the door the night of the show.

The program will appeal to all ages as an attempt will be made to acquaint parents, friends and students with all phases of sports activities at the high school.

Varieties of Tea

It isn't as simple as black, green, and orange pekoe. One American importer alone offers 30 variations of Chinese tea, and several flavors in Japanese.

PUMPING IN TWO of his 18 points last Friday evening is Arlington high's Jim Clabaugh. Clabaugh gets off his shot despite the efforts of Downers Grove's Wynn Miller (45). Downers edged the Cardinals 58-57 in the West Suburban battle.

Wheaton's Tigers To Test Prospect

by BOB FRISK

The state's second-ranked high school basketball outfit moves into the second round of Interim league play Friday evening when it hosts a rangy and dangerous Wheaton quintet.

Prospect high school's unbeaten Knights will shoot for their 18th straight triumph and seventh straight in loop competition in a battle that is expected to pack the Foundry rd. fieldhouse.

At Prospect

Prospect			Wheaton
6-4	Pomey	F	Hutchinson	6-6
6-4	Zadel	F	Tichava	6-4
6-5	Palmer	C	Jones	6-5
5-9	Lussow	G	Pfund	6-1
6-0	Empkie	G	Lange	5-10

TIME:
J - V game, 7 p.m., Friday
PLACE:
Prospect, Dick Kinneman; Wheaton, Al Duhm
Gene Kelly and Glen Van Proyen

Although Coach Dick Kinneman's flashy crew buried the Tigers in a December get-together, it took an impressive display of offensive power and defensive skill to turn the trick.

GEORGE POMEY popped in 32 markers for a school record, Fred Empkie was brilliant with some fancy outshooting, and two other boys hit in double figures in a 78-61 rout. The Knights were hot and it paid off.

Whether or not Prospect can give Wheaton another sample of this impressive prep basketball remains to be seen. Kinneman knows that the Tigers have the guns for an explosion of their own and is preparing his Knights for another rough test.

Every club is shooting for Prospect's unbeaten squad and Wheaton is no exception. Coach Al Duhm has a big club and this Interim loop entry picked off both the Joliet and Naperville holiday tourney titles in an impressive display of hardwood prowess.

JOHNNY PFUND, a sharpshooting 6-1 guard, and Jack Hutchinson, a 6-6 senior, have been the key figures offensively in six league encounters, but 6-5 Jimmy Jones showed last Saturday that he's ready for some consistent help with a 22-point barrage in the Tigers' 80-79 loss to Batavia.

Joining these three talented performers in the probable Wheaton alignment Friday will be 5-10 Al Lange and 6-4 Art Tichava. Tom Fitzsimmons, a 6-4 senior, and Dick Kee, a 5-8 junior, should also see extensive action.

WHEATON exhibited some fine balance in the first meeting with Prospect with the five starters hitting in double figures. Pfund headed the losers with 15 and Jones chipped in with 11.

The Wheaton battle is the first of two "must" games for Prospect if the latter entertains any hope of annexing a clear-cut Interim championship. Next Friday evening, Feb. 3, the Knights journey to East Leyden to face one of the hottest quintets in the Chicago area.

Prospect played in streaks against Proviso West last weekend and still came out on top by 16 points but will have to be ready for Wheaton.

EIGHT BOYS broke into the scoring column against the Panthers with Pomey netting 19 and holding his second place slot in the Interim scoring chase.

Although Pomey and 6-4 Bill Zadel have been the Knights' top performers on offense thus far in the campaign, Wheaton will have a special eye out for Empkie, the 6-0 guard.

Empkie is noted for his defensive ability but in three varsity meetings against Wheaton in the past two years Fred has drilled 45 points for an even 15.0 average.

Burm's Pin Does It!

Arlington Wrestlers Stop Downers Grove

Arlington high's varsity wrestlers put on quite a show for the home folks last Saturday afternoon as they fashioned an impressive 26-21 victory over previously unbeaten Downers Grove.

Bob Burm's pin in 3:49 of an exciting heavyweight match gave the Cardinals the triumph and sent the visiting Trojans reeling to their first defeat after 11 straight dual meet conquests.

For Coach Bob Emmons' Cards it was their fifth conference decision and boosted them into a tie for first in the West Suburban title chase. Arlington now owns a 5-1 league mark and 6-3 overall slate with a key test Friday at LaGrange and quad Saturday at Willowbrook.

Quad Saturday

Arlington's varsity wrestlers will engage in a quad at Willowbrook high school Saturday with first round matches getting underway at 10 a. m. The second round will open at approximately 12:30 p. m. Joining the Cards and the host school will be Glenbard West and York.

TRAILING 21-13 with three bouts remaining, the Cards put on a decisive rush. Soph Hal Selleck moved out to a 5-2 lead after two periods at 165 and added two more points in the third period of an 8-2 win over highly-regarded Ed Janoski. The victory was Selleck's eighth of the 1960-61 campaign.

Senior Rich Edelblute added another impressive performance to his growling list with a pin at 180 to knot the count at 21-all. Edelblute, who boasts six pins on the mat this winter, now owns an impressive 11-1 standard.

BUT IT WAS that heavyweight bout which brought the crowd around the mat in one of the most dramatic finishes of any athletic event at Arlington high in recent years.

Burm carried only a 2-7 mark into the meet and had been pinned on five occasions. But the determined junior came through when it counted.

A take-down and near-fall put the Cards' performer down 5-0 after one period, but Bob rebounded with a reversal at the outset of the second period. That's when it happened. With 3:49 gone in the bout Burm put the clincher on to decide the bitterly-contest WSC meet.

BURM was the hero of the day but Arlington had several other important figures in its impressive victory.

Soph Denny Fitz-Patrick gave the Cards three points with his sixth decision of the season at 95 pounds, a 3-0 victory.

Downers rebounded with a decision at 103 but senior Tim Smith kept his unbeaten league slate intact with a pin in 5:30 of the 112-pound test. The pin was Tim's first in his high school career and set his season slate at 7-4-1.

A Big Win!

180—Edelblute (A) pinned Trumbull (DG), 1:33
Heavyweight — Burm (A) pinned Crane (DG), 3:49

THE TROJANS took a 16-8 lead with two pins and a decision in the next three bouts, but Arlington's Mike Koenig claimed an impressive 5-3 win at 138 to cut the visitors' lead to 16-11.

Junior Roy Woodruff battled Downers' Rossi to a 1-1 tie at 145, but the Trojans went ahead 21-13 at 154 on a 5-1 decision. That's when Selleck, Edelblute, and Burm went to work!

Senior Tim O'Gorman suffered his first conference loss of the season when he was pinned at 133. The defeat was only Tim's second in 12 outings this winter.

Prospect's Gym Outfit Handles Proviso, 91-41

Prospect claimed the top slot in each event and had little trouble rolling past Proviso West's varsity gymnasts last Friday evening, 91-41.

Coach Rick Farris' Knights registered sweeps on the Trampoline, rings, and in tumbling as they picked up their third victory of the campaign.

Dave Price copped both the parallel bars and high bar for 14 team points. Other individual winners for the Knights were Ray Strobel on the Trampoline, Rick Stubenrauch on the side horse, Dan Malloy on the still rings, and Jim Oldham in tumbling.

MAC SAYS

by G. A. McELROY

A NEW SUBURBAN conference at the south end of the area is being formed as announced at the Association of Suburban Conferences meeting last week. Included are the two Thornton Fractional schools, Crete-Monee, Bradley, and some others not affiliated with suburban leagues. The Association has set the boundaries of the area in which conferences are to be considered for membership in the association. The Wisconsin state line is the north boundary and the south is the city limits of Kankakee. Limits to the west run north and south through Sycamore, the far west member of the Little Seven.

The Association was originally formed more than 10 years ago for the purpose of bringing about realignment. The Association meets three times a year and realignment is only one of many fields in which the suburban schools function as a unit.

Harold Richards, Superintendent of Blue Island, has served as president since the organization was formed. Superintendent Albert Dittman of Antioch has been the secretary the past five years. Each conference has a member on the executive board which plans the meetings, considers changes in the bylaws of the Association, and brings timely issues before the membership.

WHEN NEW TRIER hosted Evanston in swimming last Friday the most unusual meet in the history of prep swimming in this country took place. Evanston's string of 84 straight dual wins was broken. The winner in every event on the program and in many cases the second place winner broke the state record. Two national swim marks were also broken. Then on Saturday, in the Indian Relays at the New Trier pool, New Trier set two more national records. Coaches of college swimming teams from all over the midwest were on hand to watch Evanston and New Trier athletes perform. It was the consensus that few university swimming teams could have beaten New Trier the past weekend.

Andy Olytan fashioned his 16th victory of the season when he dumped sophomore Wayne Zaehler 5-0 and unbeaten Brad McCreery edged Prospect's Doug Vaughan 4-2 at 133. McCreery, a definite state threat, now stands 18-0 this season.

Jumping off to a 5-0 lead in the first period and adding three more points in the concluding stanza, Palatine's Kar Knowles, bumped Prospect's Chuck Halverson 8-0 for his 12th victory of the 1960-61 campaign.

Knights Win, 63-47

Prospect Hot, Cold In Bumping Panthers

by TOM MCSHANE

The Prospect Knights shuffled past Proviso West's Panthers 63-47 Friday night in Hillside to record their 17th win without defeat and their sixth Interim association victory of the season.

The Knights, ranked second in the latest statewide poll and dubbed a "Cinderella" squad by downstate crystal-gazers, blew hot and cold against the Panthers, who now have won two and dropped four of their league contests.

Prospect started strongly, building a big 16-4 lead in the first six and a half minutes. Guard Fred Lussow led the Knight opening with two fast break layups and a 20-foot push shot. The Panthers scored a basket and a free throw and Prospect's George Pomey hit a push shot before the quarter ended with the Knights leading 18-7.

PROSPECT continued to hit with its lightning quick power plays in the second period. Of the nine baskets scored in this quarter by the Knights, seven came on either drive shots, easy layups, or tip-ins. Prospect built its lead to 26-10, and then the Panthers played Coach Dick Kinneman's boys even down to the intermission buzzer.

Something strange happened to the Knights in the third quarter. Riding the fat lead, they suddenly lost their touch. For the first minute and a half, Proviso West held them scoreless. Dick Palmer broke the spell momentarily with a free throw. Then gloom descended once more for a full three minutes and 20 seconds until Keith Grams cashed in a second charity toss. Two minutes and 12 seconds were left in the quarter when Bob Glaser scored from 15 feet to break the field goal spell.

MEANWHILE, Proviso West was chipping away at the Knight lead. The Panthers had scored nine points, closing the gap to 39-29 before Glaser hit. Baskets by Grams and Zadel in the closing minute offset another Panther score, however, and gave Prospect a comfortable 45-31 edge at the buzzer.

The nine-point quarter was the lowest the Knights have experienced this year and marked the first time they have been outscored in the third period.

The cold spell seemed to have a good effect on Kinneman's lads in the fourth period.

THE QUARTER opened with Palmer hitting a free toss and Harold Stott cashing in a 20-footer for Proviso. Then Pomey took off on a spree that netted the Knights 10 straight points and a 56-33 lead in less than three minutes. Graceful George popped one from the corner, added a tip, went the length of the floor on a fast break, and canned two free throws during his exhibition. Interspersed was a fast break two-pointer by Fred Empkie.

Kinneman pulled his starters after this windfall, and the second stringers played out the remainder of the game, giving the Panthers their final 14 points while scoring seven of their own.

A NEW SUBURBAN conference at the south end of the area is being formed as announced at the Association of Suburban Conferences meeting last week. Included are the two Thornton Fractional schools, Crete-Monee, Bradley, and some others not affiliated with suburban leagues. The Association has set the boundaries of the area in which conferences are to be considered for membership in the association. The Wisconsin state line is the north boundary and the south is the city limits of Kankakee. Limits to the west run north and south through Sycamore, the far west member of the Little Seven.

The Association was originally formed more than 10 years ago for the purpose of bringing about realignment. The Association meets three times a year and realignment is only one of many fields in which the suburban schools function as a unit.

Harold Richards, Superintendent of Blue Island, has served as president since the organization was formed. Superintendent Albert Dittman of Antioch has been the secretary the past five years. Each conference has a member on the executive board which plans the meetings, considers changes in the bylaws of the Association, and brings timely issues before the membership.

WHEN NEW TRIER hosted Evanston in swimming last Friday the most unusual meet in the history of prep swimming in this country took place. Evanston's string of 84 straight dual wins was broken. The winner in every event on the program and in many cases the second place winner broke the state record. Two national swim marks were also broken. Then on Saturday, in the Indian Relays at the New Trier pool, New Trier set two more national records. Coaches of college swimming teams from all over the midwest were on hand to watch Evanston and New Trier athletes perform. It was the consensus that few university swimming teams could have beaten New Trier the past weekend.

Palatine beat Northbrook 43-22 varsity and 47-9 lightweight to make it 7 conference victories in a row for both teams. Bob Howes scored 20 and Bucky Harris 16 for the lights while Hildebrandt tallied 14 for the varsity. Northbrook varsity lost 6 players on fouls due to over aggressiveness and the strict officiating of Kouzmanoff and Showley. . . One more victory clinches Palatine's second straight cage championship. . . . Woodstock just about sewed up the Northeast Conference race with a 40-39 win over Leyden as Seagrist scored 20. Libertyville came from behind to nip Arlington 39-34. Mueller and Millay were Cardinal standouts. . . . Jack Thomas scored 15 for the Bisons but Bensenville lost 33-21 to Barrington. Ed Hahnfeldt of Palatine, who set U.S. Naval Academy records in shot, discus, and javelin last year, has been elected track captain.

10 YEARS AGO

Bensenville is coming strong with another victory this week as they beat a good Grant five 42-40. Jerry Daly scored 15 points. . . . Palatine took Ela-Vernon into camp 49-40 as Ray Sievers scored 11 and Don Buenzow 15. Cuscaden had 16 for Ela. . . . Arlington crushed Schurz of Chicago 54-30. Evans scored 16 and Clark 13 for the Cardinals . . . Barrington continues to roll on to a championship season beating Wauconda 75-50 and Marmion 62-57 (non-Conf.). Roake, Osinski, Heckmiller, Pederson, Cochran, Paulson, and Schwemm are the boys the Barrington fans love to watch this season as they win for Coach Les Harmon. . . . Basketball is being started on a team basis in the Palatine 7th and 8th grades for the first time in many years.

Palatine's Grapplers Tip Knights

Palatine high's varsity wrestling squad, boasting an impressive 11-2 dual meet record this season, rolled to its ninth straight victory last Saturday afternoon with a 24-16 conquest of Prospect.

The host Pirates trailed on only one occasion in the meet and piled up a 24-6 advantage before the Knights put together successive pins at 180 and heavyweight.

Prospect took a 3-0 lead when Del Blakely turned in his ninth victory of the season at 95 pounds, but Palatine bounced back with two straight decisions by Soph Jim Nordin and junior Larry Travis.

THE KNIGHTS' Bob Trausch had little trouble disposing of Johnny Anderson at 120, but Palatine regained the lead at 127 and never trailed after that.

Andy Olytan fashioned his 16th victory of the season when he dumped sophomore Wayne Zaehler 5-0 and unbeaten Brad McCreery edged Prospect's Doug Vaughan 4-2 at 133. McCreery, a definite state threat, now stands 18-0 this season.

Jumping off to a 5-0 lead in the first period and adding three more points in the concluding stanza, Palatine's Kar Knowles, bumped Prospect's Chuck Halverson 8-0 for his 12th victory of the 1960-61 campaign.

NORM SCHUETTNER and soph George McCreery gave John Ellis' Pirates six more points with decisions at 145 and 154 although Schuettner had to go all out to handle Prospect's sophomore Mike Dawson, 4-2. McCreery is unbeaten in eleven matches and Schuettner has only dropped one in 14 outings.

Claiming Palatine's final points was Bill Schuh with a 6-2 victory over Ron Christensen at 165.

Prospect moved back into the scoring column when Mike Hogarty pinned Art Abbs in 5:53 at 180 and Darryl Phillips pinned Bill Smith in 4:45 at heavyweight. Hogarty was trailing 8-0 when he put on his clincher.

Knights Win, 63-47

Prospect Hot, Cold In Bumping Panthers

by TOM MCSHANE

KEITH GRAMS

The Prospect Knights shuffled past Proviso West's Panthers 63-47 Friday night in Hillside to record their 17th win without defeat and their sixth Interim association victory of the season.

The Knights, ranked second in the latest statewide poll and dubbed a "Cinderella" squad by downstate crystal-gazers, blew hot and cold against the Panthers, who now have won two and dropped four of their league contests.

Prospect started strongly, building a big 16-4 lead in the first six and a half minutes. Guard Fred Lussow led the Knight opening with two fast break layups and a 20-foot push shot. The Panthers scored a basket and a free throw and Prospect's George Pomey hit a push shot before the quarter ended with the Knights leading 18-7.

PROSPECT continued to hit with its lightning quick power plays in the second period. Of the nine baskets scored in this quarter by the Knights, seven came on either drive shots, easy layups, or tip-ins. Prospect built its lead to 26-10, and then the Panthers played Coach Dick Kinneman's boys even down to the intermission buzzer.

Something strange happened to the Knights in the third quarter. Riding the fat lead, they suddenly lost their touch. For the first minute and a half, Proviso West held them scoreless. Dick Palmer broke the spell momentarily with a free throw. Then gloom descended once more for a full three minutes and 20 seconds until Keith Grams cashed in a second charity toss. Geils Funeral Home Cops Women's Title

Places 3rd In All-Star Competition

Shirley Garms of Palatine, after holding a brief lead, fell to third place in the final standings of the All-Star Women's Bowling championships concluded recently at San Bernadino, Calif.

Mrs. Garms, who made her ninth All-Star appearance, trailed champion Phyllis Notaro of Brant, N.Y. by 1.99 points and runner-up Hope Riccilli of Downey, Calif., by .98 of a point.

This year's tourney marked the sixth occasion that Mrs. Garms has reached the finals. Her best showing was in 1952 when she placed second.

Other area entrants failed to finish among the leaders in either the men's or the women's divisions.

Champions Gross 2680 for Victory

With two shifts remaining Sunday evening in the Paddock women's bowling tournament Rein Tile of the Beverly Lanes Ladies Classic league held a comfortable 41-pin lead over runnerup Cass Steel.

The Beverly Lanes entry, rolling in the first shift the first day, had registered a creditable 2672 effort and just had to hope its standard would hold up through the concluding sessions at Hi-Way Recreation.

It didn't.

Hot-shootin' Geils Funeral Home of the Tuesday night ladies league at Bensenville Bowl, sporting a 394 handicap, went to work in the third shift Sunday and came in with a fancy 2680 gross, eight pins on top of Rein Tile and good enough for the 1961 women's crown.

NO TEAM in the terminating shift was able to match the Geils gals and the team title went south after spending the past year at Tire Terminal, Inc.

Heading the Geils entry was, appropriately enough, Blanche Geils who rolled games of 141, 184, and 181 for a fine 506 standard. Lending support to the champions were Edna Runge with a 494, Jean Dohe with a 473, Blanche Piotrowski with a 412, and Mildred Ebert with a 401. Edna's 206 was the top individual game for the titlists.

A BIG 603 series by Marie Kropp paved the way for the contending Rein Tile squad with Winnie Lohse backing the squad's pace-setter with a fine 528. Marie finished with a 237 as the Beverly Lanes Classic squad rolled a 908 in its third set.

Bertha Butler hit 496 and Dorothy McGraw came home with a 478.

TWO TEAMS tied for fourth place money. The Dog Robbers of the V.F.W. Auxiliary No. 2149 division at Bensenville Bowl and Wrens of the Early Birds loop at Hi-Way both recorded 2620 gross to top fifth place Stop Inn Niles by seven points.

Top performer for the Dog Robbers was Shirley Soden with a 483 on games of 193, 156, and 134. Eleanor Anderson rolled a 503 series with a 200 middle game for the Wrens.

Rounding out the prize winners were Stop Inn Niles in sixth with a 2613 gross, Lohr's Pharmacy in seventh with a 2602 gross, Vivian's Hair Stylist in eighth with a 2596, and Mel's Market in ninth with a 2593.

HIGH SINGLE game out of the money went to Sanitary Market of the Jinx loop at Hi-Way with an 815.

Geils Funeral Home will receive $120.75 for its efforts with the Rein Tile squad garnering $80.50.

All of these results are unofficial, pending verification of averages. Red tape of checking handicaps, etc., of both men's and women's tournament will consume about two weeks, after which prize checks will go in the mail.

Geils Funeral Home Cops Women's Title

Places 3rd In All-Star Competition

Shirley Garms of Palatine, after holding a brief lead, fell to third place in the final standings of the All-Star Women's Bowling championships concluded recently at San Bernadino, Calif.

Mrs. Garms, who made her ninth All-Star appearance, trailed champion Phyllis Notaro of Brant, N.Y. by 1.99 points and runner-up Hope Riccilli of Downey, Calif., by .98 of a point.

This year's tourney marked the sixth occasion that Mrs. Garms has reached the finals. Her best showing was in 1952 when she placed second.

Other area entrants failed to finish among the leaders in either the men's or the women's divisions.

Champions Gross 2680 for Victory

With two shifts remaining Sunday evening in the Paddock women's bowling tournament Rein Tile of the Beverly Lanes Ladies Classic league held a comfortable 41-pin lead over runnerup Cass Steel.

The Beverly Lanes entry, rolling in the first shift the first day, had registered a creditable 2672 effort and just had to hope its standard would hold up through the concluding sessions at Hi-Way Recreation.

It didn't.

Hot-shootin' Geils Funeral Home of the Tuesday night ladies league at Bensenville Bowl, sporting a 394 handicap, went to work in the third shift Sunday and came in with a fancy 2680 gross, eight pins on top of Rein Tile and good enough for the 1961 women's crown.

NO TEAM in the terminating shift was able to match the Geils gals and the team title went south after spending the past year at Tire Terminal, Inc.

Heading the Geils entry was, appropriately enough, Blanche Geils who rolled games of 141, 184, and 181 for a fine 506 standard. Lending support to the champions were Edna Runge with a 494, Jean Dohe with a 473, Blanche Piotrowski with a 412, and Mildred Ebert with a 401. Edna's 206 was the top individual game for the titlists.

A BIG 603 series by Marie Kropp paved the way for the contending Rein Tile squad with Winnie Lohse backing the squad's pace-setter with a fine 528. Marie finished with a 237 as the Beverly Lanes Classic squad rolled a 908 in its third set.

Bertha Butler hit 496 and Dorothy McGraw came home with a 478.

TWO TEAMS tied for fourth place money. The Dog Robbers of the V.F.W. Auxiliary No. 2149 division at Bensenville Bowl and Wrens of the Early Birds loop at Hi-Way both recorded 2620 gross to top fifth place Stop Inn Niles by seven points.

Top performer for the Dog Robbers was Shirley Soden with a 483 on games of 193, 156, and 134. Eleanor Anderson rolled a 503 series with a 200 middle game for the Wrens.

Rounding out the prize winners were Stop Inn Niles in sixth with a 2613 gross, Lohr's Pharmacy in seventh with a 2602 gross, Vivian's Hair Stylist in eighth with a 2596, and Mel's Market in ninth with a 2593.

HIGH SINGLE game out of the money went to Sanitary Market of the Jinx loop at Hi-Way with an 815.

Geils Funeral Home will receive $120.75 for its efforts with the Rein Tile squad garnering $80.50.

All of these results are unofficial, pending verification of averages. Red tape of checking handicaps, etc., of both men's and women's tournament will consume about two weeks, after which prize checks will go in the mail.

Jeffery Lanes vs. Moyle Construction
Casablanca vs. Bill Bond's Mens Wear
Timroth Plumbing vs. Cook County Mobile Homes
Bill Cook Buick vs. Pro Sport Center

Tommy Thomas' Casablanca five took sole possession of first place in the Paddock Classic Traveling League Saturday night by taking two of three games from Cook County Mobile Homes, the loop's high average team.

Jeffery Lanes, the team with which Casablanca was tied last week as the second round opened, fell twice to Pro Sport Center and slipped into a three-way tie for second place.

Meanwhile, at the other end of the standings, Bill Cook Buick, first half champions, lost three more games to extend its losing streak to six without victory in the second half.

PERFORMING the trick was Moyle Construction of Barrington, first half cellar dweller, which had its best night of the season with its high team game of 1083 and high series of 3003 after 20 weeks of competition.

This enabled Moyle, which bowls out of Ten Pin in Barrington, to move into second place tied with Jeffery Lanes of Wheeling and Bill Bond's Mens Wear of Rolling Meadows who won two games for the second week in succession.

Cook County Mobile Homes, which represents River-Rand in Des Plaines, came close to losing all three games to Casablanca, averting a shut out by capturing the middle game by three pins, 951-948, behind a 216 effort by Tonny Sasso of Des Plaines.

RON FOGARETT of Palatine rolled 231 to lead Casablanca to a 969-921 first game triumph and then Herb Engstrom of Elgin sported an anchor 213 to give Casablanca, which represents Hi-Way Recreation in Palatine, the final game, 934-902. Sasso had the top series among those bowling on the two teams with a 597 total. Karl Von Huben had one pin less for Casablanca.

Moyle Construction was superb all night, Bill Cook Buick's only chance coming in the second game which it lost by 15 pins. The opening game was all Moyle as it blasted the pins for a 1083 total, led by Bob Moyle of Barrington with a 267 game, high in the Classic for the night.

LeRoy Papineau of Lake-in-the-Hills tapped the pins for 237 in Moyle's second win and Don Bacon of Crystal Lake hit 229 in the final as the Constructionmen won handily. Moyle had high series for the league as well as his team with 649. Papineau posted 621 and Bacon had a 596 total. Pat Gavigan of Waukegan was high for Bill Cook, based at Bowlway in Elgin, with 558.

GEORGE RADKE of Mundelein with a 620 triplicate and Earl Nichols of Arlington Heights with 611 paced Bill Bond's, bowling out of Country Lanes in Lake Zurich, to two wins over Timroth Plumbing of Des Plaines.

Nichols had 239 and Radke 223 in the opener and Radke 217 and Nichols 215 in the final game. In the middle game when neither could get above 180, Lee Adams of Mt. Prospect came through with a 218 effort to give Timroth its lone triumph. Bill Radunz, who just returned from the All-Star in San Bernardino, Cal., was high for Timroth with 619.

With every man bowling in the 500's, Jeffery could win cnly one game from Pro Sport Center of Mt. Prospect, that the opener when Ed Melton of Northbrook hit 213, the only 200 game for Jeffery Saturday night.

THEN ED DUFF of Niles caught fire for the Gunnell's based team. He rolled 227 in the second game and 236 in the final for a 626 series as he evened Pro Sport Center's record at 3-3.

Radunz took over individual leadership of the Paddock Classic by maintaining his 200 average and adding a few pins insurance with a 619 series.

However, two other leaders had a disastrous night. The previous leader, Tom Kouros of Barrington Woods with a 200 average, hit only 479 to drop his average to 198, and Bob Rogers of Des Plaines totaled just 471 to slump from 199 to 195. Radke on his 620 series moved into second place, just three pins short of a 199 averag

Downers Grove's Sophs Top Cards

Downers Grove recovered from a slow start with an explosive second half last Friday evening and rolled past Arlington high's frosh-soph basketball Cardinals 41-29.

A 62-35 victor over the young Cards in the first meeting this season, Downers only held a 13-11 halftime lead Friday.

Neither team could collect a point for almost three minutes of the first period and only nine markers were recorded in a slow second quarter.

Downers gradually pulled away in the third period, opening the gap to 23-14 with 4:12 remaining. The Trojans held a 29-14 lead at the end of three quarters with the Cards collecting only three points in those frustrating seven minutes.

Tom Wilmotte and Ken Wessling shared scoring honors for Ken Schaller's Cardinals with seven points each. It was the third straight game that Wilmotte had topped Arlington's point production.

Greg Buczynski and Jim Murray each chipped in with seven points to spark Arlington's offensive efforts.

Trojans Edge Cards In Closing Seconds

by BOB FRISK

A boy who didn't score a point against Arlington in an earlier meeting this season cashed in with the deciding tallies last Friday evening as Downers Grove slipped by the host Cardinals, 58-57, in a conference cliff-hanger.

Tom Martinek, a 6-0 senior who saw limited action when the Trojans bumped Arlington by four in December, dropped in two free throws with five seconds remaining to give Downers its fourth league win and tag the Cards with their seventh straight loss.

Until Martinek's clutch effort it appeared that Arlington's Gary Brodnan would be the man of the hour. With 20 seconds remaining Brodnan had pushed the Cardinals into a one-point lead with two successful charity tosses.

DOWNERS GROVE called a time out after Brodnan's work but could only keep the ball in play for eleven seconds before Mike Hogrefe was tied up by the Cards' Jim Clabaugh.

Coach Guy Wellman's Trojans claimed the tip and that's when disaster set in for the local five. With five seconds showing on the clock Martinek was fouled (???), and the visitors' forward calmly pumped in the two crucial points.

In an attempt to set up one final shot an Arlington pass was picked off with three seconds remaining and that settled the issue. It was a discouraging loss for a Cardinal five that was so close to victory.

THE LEAD changed hands ten times in this hectic West Suburban battle, but it was that final period which brought the crowd to its feet.

Chuck Close's jumper from the side gave the Cards a 44-all tie in the early moments of the final stanza, and it was the sophomore again from the side for a 46-44 Arlington lead.

Hogrefe slipped in for an easy layup but Don Kolstad banged home a jump and Arlington again held the lead. With 5:59 remaining in the game Wynn Miller hit from out front to knot the count at 48-all.

CLOSE NETTED a turnaround jump but Dave Wotring matched the Cards' sophomore with a fancy drive and it was 50-all with 5:03 left. Kolstad's free throw put Arlington on top, 51-50.

Downers collected a string of five straight points on a tip by Hogrefe, jump shot by Wotring, and free throw by Hogrefe but Arlington wasn't through yet. A steal and basket by Brodnan with 2:29 remaining moved the Cards within two.

Hogrefe continued to harass the hosts when he popped in a free throw that gave Downers a 56-53 lead, and the Trojans had a chance to add to their margin but Martinek blew a layup with one minute remaining.

CLABAUGH, the Cards' top point-producer with 18 points, kept Arlington in contention when he rimmed a two-pointer with 53 seconds to go, and the locals got their big chance when Downers' Bill Gurican missed a free throw at the 33-second mark.

Coach Frank Bohac's crew capitalized on this break and Brodnan was equal to the occasion with the two key free throws that gave Arlington its 57-56 lead.

DOWNERS had jumped off to a quick 6-0 lead in the first period before Arlington could initiate its rush. Then the Cards caught fire and climbed to a 14-9 lead with 2:10 remaining.

The Trojans took charge at the outset of the second period, recovering from a two-point deficit at the break, and Miller's jumper gave them a four-point advantage, 23-19.

Arlington forged ahead at 29-27 on Clabaugh's three-point effort, but Hogrefe's basket just before the intermission knotted the count at 29-all.

THE CARDS started fast in the third period, then slacked off and saw Downers regain the lead again with 4:10 remaining in the segment. Neither team could pull ahead to a comfortable margin in the closing minutes of the third period and Wotring's drive gave Downers a 44-42 lead going into tnat explosive final quarter.

Casablanca Gains Top Slot In Paddock Traveling Loop

Tommy Thomas' Casablanca five took sole possession of first place in the Paddock Classic Traveling League Saturday night by taking two of three games from Cook County Mobile Homes, the loop's high average team.

Jeffery Lanes, the team with which Casablanca was tied last week as the second round opened, fell twice to Pro Sport Center and slipped into a three-way tie for second place.

Meanwhile, at the other end of the standings, Bill Cook Buick, first half champions, lost three more games to extend its losing streak to six without victory in the second half.

PERFORMING the trick was Moyle Construction of Barrington, first half cellar dweller, which had its best night of the season with its high team game of 1083 and high series of 3003 after 20 weeks of competition.

This enabled Moyle, which bowls out of Ten Pin in Barrington, to move into second place tied with Jeffery Lanes of Wheeling and Bill Bond's Mens Wear of Rolling Meadows who won two games for the second week in succession.

Cook County Mobile Homes, which represents River-Rand in Des Plaines, came close to losing all three games to Casablanca, averting a shut out by capturing the middle game by three pins, 951-948, behind a 216 effort by Tonny Sasso of Des Plaines.

RON FOGARETT of Palatine rolled 231 to lead Casablanca to a 969-921 first game triumph and then Herb Engstrom of Elgin sported an anchor 213 to give Casablanca, which represents Hi-Way Recreation in Palatine, the final game, 934-902. Sasso had the top series among those bowling on the two teams with a 597 total. Karl Von Huben had one pin less for Casablanca.

Moyle Construction was superb all night, Bill Cook Buick's only chance coming in the second game which it lost by 15 pins. The opening game was all Moyle as it blasted the pins for a 1083 total, led by Bob Moyle of Barrington with a 267 game, high in the Classic for the night.

LeRoy Papineau of Lake-in-the-Hills tapped the pins for 237 in Moyle's second win and Don Bacon of Crystal Lake hit 229 in the final as the Constructionmen won handily. Moyle had high series for the league as well as his team with 649. Papineau posted 621 and Bacon had a 596 total. Pat Gavigan of Waukegan was high for Bill Cook, based at Bowlway in Elgin, with 558.

GEORGE RADKE of Mundeiein with a 620 triplicate and Earl Nichols of Arlington Heights with 611 paced Bill Bond's, bowling out of Country Lanes in Lake Zurich, to two wins over Timroth Plumbing of Des Plaines.

Nichols had 239 and Radke 223 in the opener and Radke 217 and Nichols 215 in the final game. In the middle game when neither could get above 180, Lee Adams of Mt. Prospect came through with a 218 effort to give Timroth its lone triumph. Bill Radunz, who just returned from the All-Star in San Bernardino, Cal., was high for Timroth with 619.

With every man bowling in the 500's, Jeffery could win cnly one game from Pro Sport Center of Mt. Prospect, that the opener when Ed Melton of Northbrook hit 213, the only 200 game for Jeffery Saturday night.

THEN ED DUFF of Niles caught fire for the Gunnell's based team. He rolled 227 in the second game and 236 in the final for a 626 series as he evened Pro Sport Center's record at 3-3.

Radunz took over individual leadership of the Paddock Classic by maintaining his 200 average and adding a few pins insurance with a 619 series.

However, two other leaders had a disastrous night. The previous leader, Tom Kouros of Barrington Woods with a 200 average, hit only 479 to drop his average to 198, and Bob Rogers of Des Plaines totaled just 471 to slump from 199 to 195. Radke on his 620 series moved into second place, just three pins short of a 199 averag

DOWNERS had jumped off to a quick 6-0 lead in the first period before Arlington could initiate its rush. Then the Cards caught fire and climbed to a 14-9 lead with 2:10 remaining.

Arlington forged ahead at 29-27 on Clabaugh's three-point effort, but Hogrefe's basket just before the intermission knotted the count at 29-all.

THE CARDS started fast in the third period, then slacked off and saw Downers regain the lead again with 4:10 remaining in the segment. Neither team could pull ahead to a comfortable margin in the closing minutes of the third period and Wotring's drive gave Downers a 44-42 lead going into tnat explosive final quarter.

One hundred and fifty-four downstate and suburban high schools are entered in the 1961 wrestling tournament series, it was announced recently by the Illinois high school assn.

A series of district tourneys will again be a part of this year's eliminations with two districts subsidiary to each of the seven sectional centers. The winners of the first four places in each weight classification will advance to sectional competition.

Busy Weekend Again For Area's Skaters

The Mount Prospect Skating Club members had a busy weekend and took home their share of medals and ribbons in the various competitive meets entered.

On Friday night, Jan. 20, the once-postponed 15th Annual Peirce Western Open Speed Skating Championship was held at Northbrook in near-zero weather. Helen Lutsch, coach of the Mount Prospect club, took 2nd and 3rd place medals in the 880 yard and ¾ mile events while Tom Haenisch won a 4th place medal in the ¾ mile event in the strong Junior Boys division.

Last Saturday afternoon, Jan. 21, the Prospect squad went to the Tribune Silver Skates Derby at the Waveland rink. In the Midget Girls division, Linne Lindstrom, Linda Sommers and Norine Lutsch won their heats and Mary Lou Haenisch got a second. In the semi-finals Norine was 2nd and Mary Lou third. In the finals Norine won the 5th place medal, her first in Silver Skates competition.

IN THE MIDGET Boys division, John Tangney won his heat and came in second in the quarter-finals. Greg Grippentrog ahd a seond and Dick Solley, Bob McMillan, Ronnie Baker and Billy Grady had thirds in the heats.

In Juvenile Boys, Bob Grady qualified in all heats and went into the finals, winning a 5th place medal. Bill Leonard placed 2nd in the heats and had a 4th in the quarter-finals. Mike Bickler placed 3rd in his heat.

In Junior Boys, Tom Haenisch and Jim Rybarczyk won their initial heats while Jerry Haenisch had a 2nd. Jim took a second in the semi-finals but fell in the finals and failed to score. Last year, Jim just barely missed winning the Juvenile Boys division of the Silver Skates championship, but took a 2nd place in the finals and the coveted pair of bronze skates.

WHILE THE more experienced registered members of the club participated in these meets, some of the newer members were making a name for themselves in local novice meets.

Last Saturday, Kim Dowling took a 2nd place ribbon for the 11-12 year old group in the Arlington Heights Novice Meet. On Sunday, the Winder family dominated the events at the novice meet held at West Side Park in Des Plaines.

Tony Winder, although only 5 years old, won the event for boys up to 8 years of age. Mary Joan Winder, 11, won the Women and Girls' Novice Open while Barbara Winder also took first in the event for girls up to 8 years of age.

NEXT WEEKEND promises more exciting competition for the club, Helen Lutsch and Bob Grady will travel to Minneapolis for the National Outdoor Speed Skating Championships to be held on Jan. 28 and 29.

Other Prospect club members will either journey to Waupaca, Wis., for the Waupaca Open championships or enter the C.Y.O. championships which will probably be held at the Waveland rink on Sunday, Jan. 29.

St. Mell PTA Group Holds Teen Series

The third in the series on "What Makes Teens Tick?" will be presented at the St. Mel High school auditorium, 4322 W. Madison st., Wednesday, Feb. 1, at 8:15 p.m., when Brother James Luke, F.S.C., M.A., addresses parents, educators, and youth workers. He will discuss the battle for the mind of modern youth in the topic "Teenage Education: The Impact of Communication Media." The Faculty, Alumni association, and Parent-Teacher groups of St. Mel will be hosts to the gathering, in cooperation with the Christian Brothers Boys association which is presenting the series.

THE PARENTS Forum series is a program of cooperative planning between the faculties and alumni of the Chicagoland Christian Brother schools. Stated CBBA President Al J. Wilkins: "This PTA series is an answer to requests from parents for 'right answers and methods' in the solution of today's youth problems and development. In providing this series, the CBBA seeks to provide parents and youth leaders with basic working principles, and to alert them to the dangers threatening the moral life of teenage youngsters - and how they may be met. Brother James Luke's address on the communication arts holds a key role in the series, because the situation in these areas is extremely critical."

The forum is open to the public free of charge.

Area residents who are on the committee for the forum include M. Cooney, 901 E. Olive st.; George A. Moser, 713 N. Pine st., and Ray Munro, 542 S. Mitchell, all of Arlington Heights; G. F. Koch, 408 S. Emerson, Moun Prospect, Dick Motzny, 23 W. 561 Bryn Mawr and John F. Padula, 105 Maple dr both of Roselle. (BB

Socialist Trend

Warn Businessmen Of 'Big Government'

Storm warnings of big government, a trend toward socialism and excessive government spending were sounded last week by Marc A. Buettell, president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

Buettell, president of Ideal Industries, Inc., Sycamore, was main speaker at a member report dinner meeting attended by more than 300 businessmen from the north-northwest suburban area in the Glen View club at Golf.

He denounced what he termed a tendency to run to the central government with problems and to invest the government with supreme authority. He cited the Tennessee Valley Authority and social security as two programs which have gone beyond their original scope and tend toward socialism.

IN ASSAILING "big government," Buettell challenged businessmen to educate their friends and employees to the threat of "unbridled" government spending. He also urged businessmen to make their opinions known to their Congressmen.

"It is time to start selling the economic facts of government to our employees and others who really pay the bill so they understand how spending affects their paychecks," he said.

Buettell listed monopoly power of labor unions and foreign competition -- both interrelated -- as other critical problems facing the nation today.

The meeting was one of a series of 19 being held by the State Chamber as part of a continuing program to better acquaint Illinois businessmen with current state and national economic and legislative issues.

Appearing on the program also was Ormond F. Lyman, 626 Mayfair, Arlington Heights, the state chamber's executive vice president. Lyman moderated a unique panel discussion by several chamber staff members of important issues affecting Illinois businessmen.

State chamber staff members participating in the question-and-answer phase of the program included: Ralph G. Smith, manager, labor relations department; George J. Lawrence, manager, tax department; Kermit E. Johnson, manager, Social Security department; Vernon G. Wahlberg, manager, legislative department; John G. Ronchetto, manager, organization service department; and James W. Harris, 1010 N. Race, Arlington Heights, legislative services editor.

Discussions focused on such pertinent subjects as federal, state and local taxation, public aid, education, labor relations, social security and unemployment compensation, agriculture - business relations, water resources, and businessmen in politics. Special attention was given to major issues facing the legislative sessions in Springfield and Washington.

PRESIDING at the affair was Thomas G. Murdough, president, American Hospital Supply corporation, Evanston, who is a director of the statewide business organization. Assisting Murdough with arrangements were: Paul E. Collins, president, Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Association, Arlington Heights; G. Preston Kendall, executive vice president and secretary, Washington National Insurance co., Evanston; W. H. Pagenkopf, vice president, Teletype corporation, Skokie; Karl V. Rohlen, president, Crane Packing company, Morton Grove, also a state chamber director; and M. P. Venema, president, Universal Oil Products company, Des Plaines.

Communities represented included Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Evanston, Glencoe, Glenview, Kenilworth, Kenilworth, Lincolnwood, Morton Grove, Mt. Prospect, Niles, Northbrook, Northfield, ing Meadows, Skokie, Wilmette, Winnetka, and Chicago's far north side. (BB

Home Appraisals Are Needed By Every Property Owner

How much is my home worth? - Shall I locate my business on the North Shore? What should my real estate taxes be? - How much fire insurance should I carry? These questions and many others are asked daily by your neighbors and mine, states an executive of Mid-American Appraisal Corp. of Chicago.

The answers are relatively simple to find, he says -- "hire an appraiser."

WITH 100 million births anticipated within the next 20 years, we are confronted with an exploding population which will require space for homes, businesses, industries, highways, public transportation, schools and recreational facilities, he states. The appraiser will be charged with the task of estimating value and economic requirements necessary to fulfill the needs of the community and to assimilate the new masses of population into our neighborhoods.

"Today, with the devaluation of the dollar, appraisals are an absolute must. Very few transactions are negotiated without an appraisal by either the buyer or seller. No property owner can live or die without one, because upon death, appraisals must be made for inheritance and income tax purposes," said the executive.

An appraisal is an estimate of value. Market value is the price as estimated in terms of money which a given buyer is willing to pay to a willing seller for property within a reasonable period of time. The appraiser lists the following information about how and why appraisals are made.

Property is appraised generally by using three combined approaches: (1) The replacement cost new, less depreciation, or cost approach. (2) The income or economic approach based on the capitalization of net income. (3) The market approach, comparing similar types of properties in a given area.

The appraisal process is not a mystery, though its componant parts must be evaluated with care and responsibility. An appraiser is hired for his unbiased opinion of value.

DURING THE last several decades, the appraisal field has reached new heights of recognized codes of ethics and procedures instituted by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and the Society of Residential Appraisers, as well as by several other organizations. For the most part, its memberships are made up of professional appraisers who spend all, or nearly all, of their time in appraisal work.

Economists tell us that the home is probably the greatest single investment that the average man makes during his lifetime. After its purchase, we seem to forget that economic factors continually affect the value of our homes. An increase or decrease in the cost of replacement must be reflected in the amounts of fire insurance being carried.

The appraisal of real and personal property for fire insurance purposes differs from market reports, since the appraiser must reflect the continually fluctuating costs of labor and material. For example, if one had purchased a twenty year old house 10 years ago for $30,000.00, he might find that its net value today might be $35,000.00 and that, after considering land value, excludable items and physical deterioration, its insurable value today would be $40,000.00. On the other hand, one may have purchased a new home 10 years ago for $30,000.00 and find that, today, its market value may be $37,500.00 and its insurable value $30,000.00. It is the task of the professional appraiser to estimate these values. Not only does this apply to residential properties but also to business and industrial establishments.

Businesses and industries have moved from central urban centers to suburban communities because of the rapid "flight of families from the cities" and because of the new peripheral labor and consumers' markets. It is estimated that throughout the country, 3,000 acres of countryside per day are being bulldozed under for housing.

Consequently, surveys for industrial, service, retail and professional establishments must be made by the appraiser.

FEDERAL Government planners have estimated that virtually all towns or cities with a population of 10,000 or more, have some form of urban blight or decay in their centers. Hence, before this cancerous growth spreads, it is necessary to plan and redevelop areas of blight, usually the older sections of town and central business districts. The role of the appraiser in urban redevelopment is essential both from local government requirements and also for private investors' needs.

There are many other services which only the professional appraiser can furnish relative to assessed valuation, taxation, collateral for financing and credit; mergers, reorganizations, bankruptcies and liquidations; location surveys, site analyses, highest and best use, and many others.

It is significant that the number of qualified professional appraisers is small, but the field is vast, and with the complexities of today's economy, an appraisal is a basic necessity for anyone who owns either real or personal property. (BB

Employment Expands

Business, Industry Moving to Suburbs

Suburban business and industry empolyed 553,184 persons in 1960, a gain of almost 140,000 jobs since 1955.

Much of the increase has been at the expense of job opportunities in Chicago, according to Dr. Leon T. Kendall, United States Savings and Loan league economist.

He reported Tuesday that more than 125 Chicago plants have relocated in the suburbs in the last four years, while only two plants have moved from the suburbs to the city.

LAST YEAR, 1,321,960 persons held jobs in Chicago, a drop of almost 22,000 since 1955, he said.

Speaking at a luncheon of the Cook County Council of Insured Savings Associations in downtown Chicago, Kendall noted:

—Cicero still ranks as the suburb with the most jobs even though its total employment of 64,716 last year declined 2.1 per cent from the 1955 total of 66,112.

—Franklin Park scored the greatest increase (7,860) in number of jobs added in the period covered, with 13,383 last year compared with 5,523 in 1955.

—Park Forest rang up the biggest percentage increase on the basis of 1,713 jobs last year compared with only 372 in 1955, a gain of 360.5 per cent.

AMONG NORTHWEST suburbs along the Chicago and North Western commuter line, Des Plaines is the leading employment center. The number of jobs in Des Plaines almost doubled in the period.

Arlington Heights and Park Ridge also have more people working right in town.

Other northwest suburbs served by railroads also scored gains in jobs, including Elmwood Park and Addison.

Here's a comparison of the employment picture for area towns listed in Kendall's report:

	Jobs, 1955	1960	Gain	Pct. Change
Arlington Heights	1,755	4,227	2,472	140.9
Des Plaines	5,967	10,127	4,160	69.7
Park Ridge	2,212	4,064	1,852	83.7
Elmwood Park	7,952	9,397	1,445	18.2
River Grove	976	2,568	1,592	163.1
Franklin Park	5,523	13,383	7,860	142.3
Addison	939	2,559	1,620	172.5

Kendall envisioned a future Chicago as a central city "housing core activities such as headquarter offices, wholesale markets, banks and specialized financial institutions, newspapers, radio and television stations, specialized schools and museums." He added:

"Surrounding the central city will be a series of satellite towns containing the factories, warehouses, homes, workshops, and retail shopping centers of the future.

"Such trends have a sound economic basis. American industry's search for space can be answered in the suburbs. Furthermore, the industrial structures of yesterday are no longer the right type for the competitive technology of today."

MANY FIRMS, for example, find it impossible to keep costs down and compete when housed in multi-story, factory-loft buildings, he said.

The shape of the modern factory is wrapped around the assembly and processing line and in the suburbs the firm has freedom required to gain this efficiency, he said.

"The final factor shaping the location of industry is transportation," Kendall said. "The trek to the suburbs enables American industry to sever its ties to the rail and water arteries so important to its efficiency in the past and to realize the new-found freedom which the motor truck and our expressway systems provide.

"It may be that the expressways and toll roads of today will affect industrial development and location as the great rivers of our nation did in the past. One has only to travel the suburban periphery of Chicago to see this coming to pass." (BB

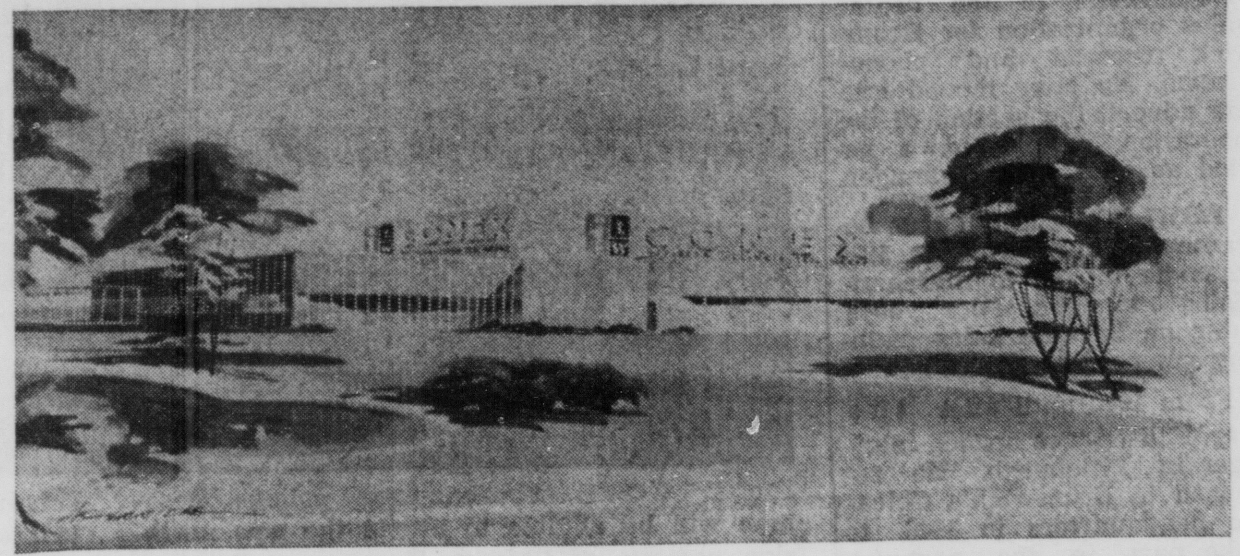
Conex Division, Illinois Tool To Move Into New Plant In Des Plaines Next Month



CONSTRUCTION is completed, equipment is being installed, and personnel is beginning to occupy this new plant (architect's photograph) erected at 1901 S. Mt. Prospect rd., Des Plaines, by Illinois Tool Works to house its Conex division. This 76,000 square foot facility is expected to be in full operation by February 1, 1961.

Construction, which began last summer, is now complete on the plant erected at 1901 S. Mt. Prospect rd. by Illinois Tool Works as the new home for its Conex Division. Conex manufactures and markets plastic containers and packaging products for the vending, dairy products, beverage and food industries. Installation of office furnishings and manufacturing equipment will soon be completed, and the new facility is expected to be in full production by February 1, 1961, according to W. J. Simons, Arlington Heights, Conex' general manager.

CONEX' PRODUCT line, developed entirely by Illinois Tool research, presently includes plastic hot drink vending cups, food containers for dairy products, and plastic Hi-Cone carriers for the brewery, canned beverage and canned food industries. The new plant and facilities will make it possible to accelerate the development of new items for the Conex line.

The 76,000 square foot plant, engineered and constructed by the Austin Company, is modern in every respect. Its outer walls consist of aluminum, steel, and porcelainized panelling arranged in an attractive color pattern. Manufacturing layout will permit maximum functional efficiency in production, material handling, finished product storage and shipping. Centralized equipment for temperature and humidity control will assure a high sanitation factor, maximum workability of material, and employee comfort on a year round basis. The plant site, at the corner of Mount Prospect rd. and Howard st., will be attractively landscaped, including parking facilities for employees and visitors and a 2,000,000 gallon capacity flash pond to impound surface drainage water and eliminate the use of municipal water for many in-plant uses.

Other executive personnel of the Conex division are: Frank J. Machac, Park Ridge, manager of manufacturing; Donald S. Welshon, Elmhurst, manager of product development; and William C. Coffman, Rolling Meadows, personnel manager. (BB

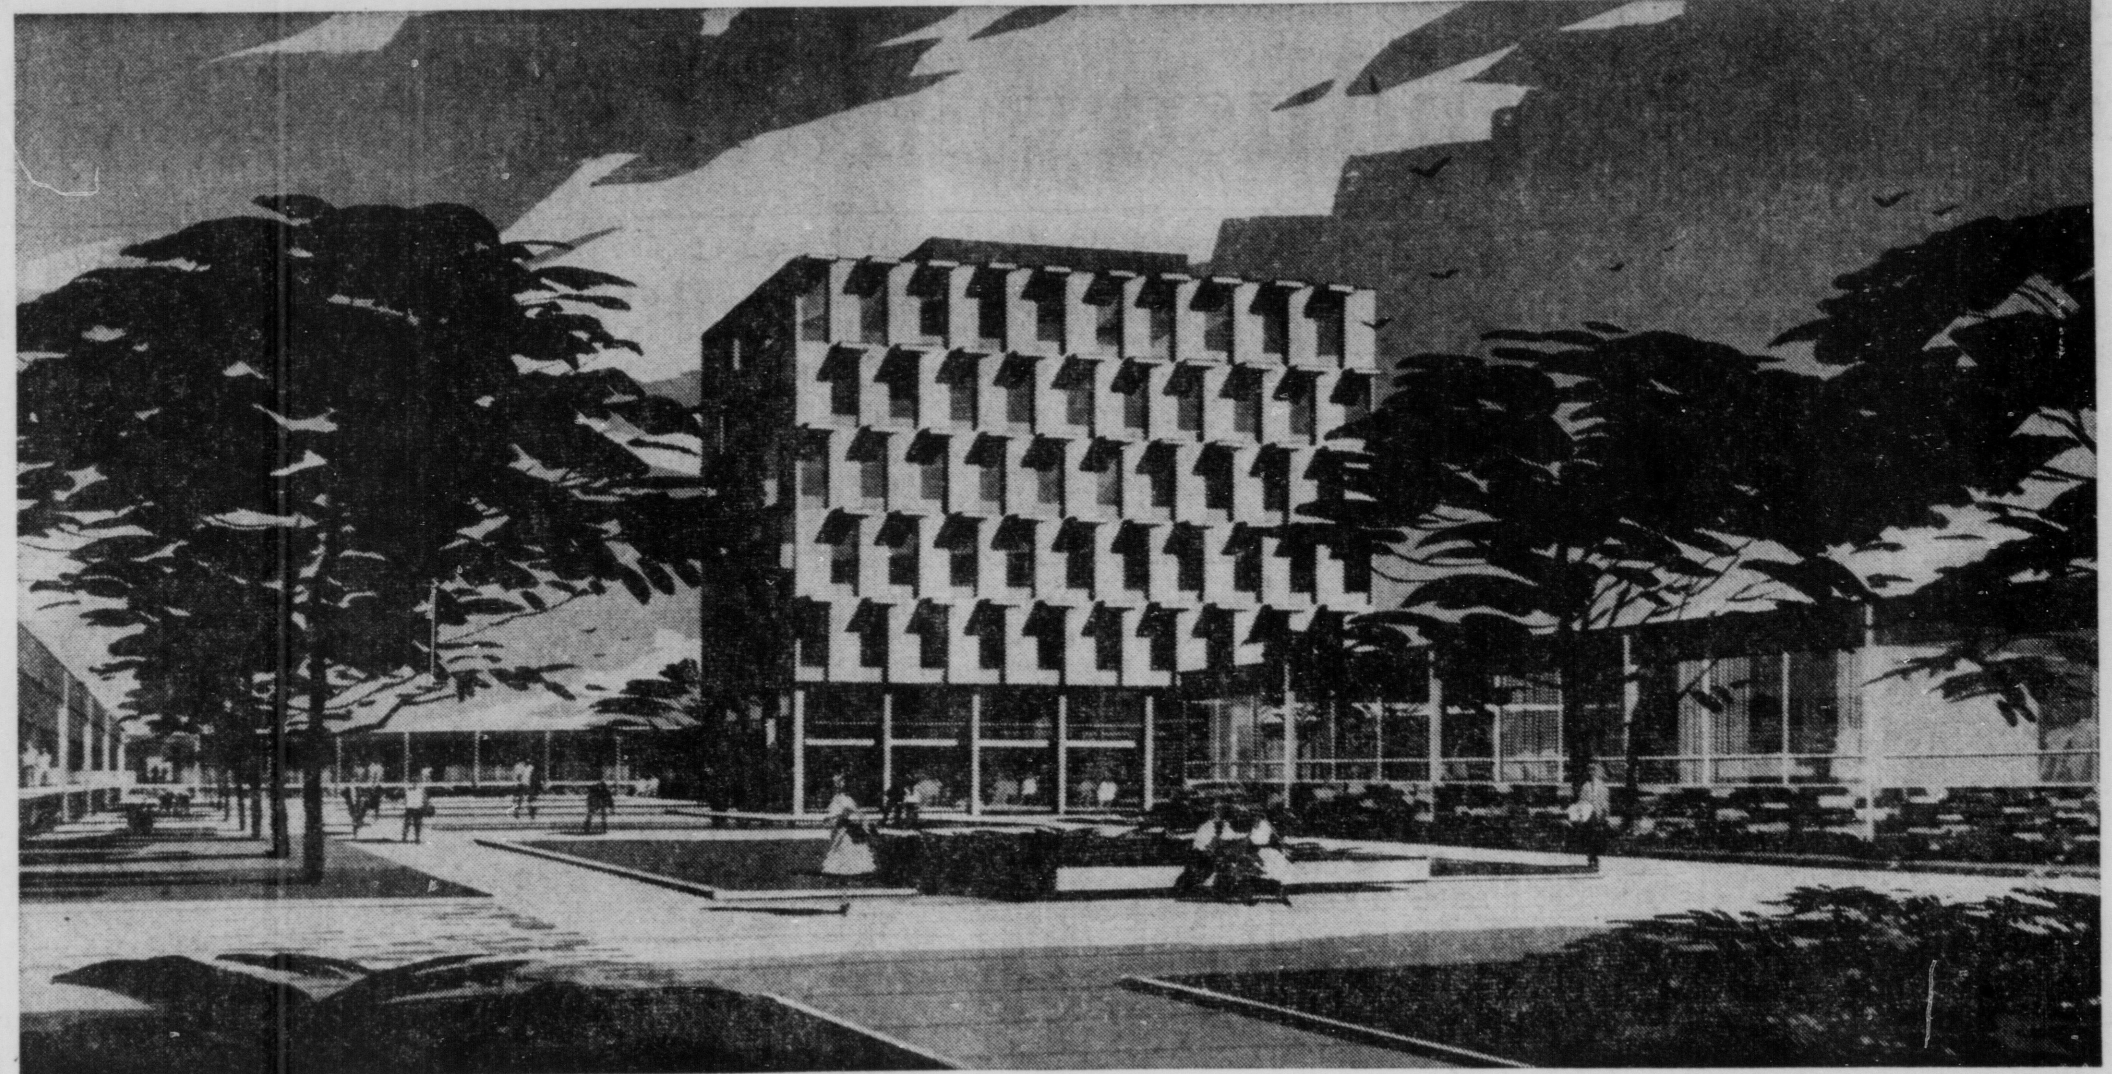
Cliff Ellison, 205 E. Moehling dr., Mount Prosect, dealer sales manager for the Brunswick Bowling division, retired after completing 34 years of service in various marketing positions within the firm.

Ellison began his Brunswick career in 1927 as head of a division in the dealer sales organization for Brunswick records and phonographs. He later moved into the advertising section of the operation, serving for a period as advertising manager.

BOWLING and billiards became his life's work in 1934 when he moved to merchandising manager. Four years later he became sales training supervisor.

From 1940 until after the war, Ellison was branch manager in Pittsburgh. He returned to Brunswick's Chicago headquarters in 1946 to take part in the post-war planning of the firm's expanding product lines. One year later, he assumed the position of dealer sales manager, heading an organization which now numbers over 725 dealers throughout the country. (BB



PROSPECTIVE suburban-area college freshmen will be eligible to attend the new northside campus of Chicago Teachers college. A team of architectural specialists and curriculum experts from all over the country first met as consultants early in December, 1957, under a Ford Foundation grant. Their recommendations were submitted to Dr. Willis for study, and incorporated into what is now believed to be the most forward plan for teacher education in the country and provide the most modern of physical facilities. Under construction at Bryn Mawr and St. Louis avenues, the new teachers college will begin classes in September, 1961, with an anticipated enrollment of approximately 1000 students. Educating teachers for the kindergarten and elementary grades is the prime goal of the teacher college's program of education, with the curriculum emphasizing liberal arts, as conceived by its dean, Dr. Roy N. Jervis of 2101 Wing, Rolling Meadows. Dean Jervis was formerly on the faculty of East Texas State college, as director of special program for science and mathematics teachers and director of the division of earth sciences. Interested high school seniors may write to Admissions Services, Northside Chicago Teachers College, at its temporary office, 4626 North Knox Avenue, Chicago 30, Illinois for additional information, beginning February 20.

Radar, Unmarked Cars Are Slated for Toll Highways

Traffic enforcement on the Illinois Tollway will utilize unmarked police cars and radar equipment for the first time.

This was announced Friday by Charles L. Dearing, executive director of the Illinois State Toll Highway Commission, who said that radar enforcement of speed restrictions would begin as soon as signs can be erected along the tollway.

Use of unmarked police cars in patrolling will begin within the next few days, he said. All arrests for speeding violations will be made by troopers in full uniform, whether in marked or unmarked cars.

CHARLES M. Burgess, chairman, said that the members of the commission had approved the use of unmarked cars and radar on the basis of staff recommendation.

Dearing said that the tollway would use every means known to science to maintain the tollway's high safety record of the past two years.

"Safety achievements on the Illinois tollway to date have been due largely to the safety features designed into construction, the high maintenance standards, and the density and efficiency of patrolling which is much more intensive than on other roads.

"Maintenance and dense patrolling are costly," the executive director said. "With large increases in traffic volume during the past year and anticipated increases next year, we are taking additional measures to maintain the best safety record possible.

"Radar previously has been used on the tollway only to accumulate traffic data and establish the reasonableness of the speed limits. Use of unmarked cars and radar in traffic enforcement now will substantially increase the efficiency of the Illinois Tollway patrol, the special state police detachment assigned to the tollway, without the heavy cost of additional manpower."

MAJOR ALBERT S. Hinds, commanding officer of the Tollway patrol, said that one of the principal uses for unmarked cars and radar will be to enforce speeding regulations on the tollway.

"Actually," Hinds said, "motorists traveling at excessively high speeds constitute less than five per cent of the total traffic. Yet their potential for causing serious and fatal accidents is very great. These additional means of controlling speeding will be a substantial contribution to improved safer travel on the tollway.

"Of this five per cent, the deliberate violator is able to take advantage of the openness and long sight distances on the tollway to spot marked patrol cars before they are in position to check his speed. Use of unmarked cars and radar increases the effectiveness of the patrol and reduces the danger inherent in high speed chases."

Approximately 100 signs bearing the legend, "SPEED RADAR TIMED" will be erected in the near future at all tollway entrances and at various points on the main (BB

Centex Story Told At Industrial Meet

Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler, Chicago, was a principal luncheon speaker before 300 members of the Great Lakes States Industrial Development council at its Ninth annual conference held in Milwaukee.

The conference, conducted at Brooks Memorial union on the campus of Marquette university, was attended by the Honorable Gaylord A. Nelson, Governor of Wisconsin, as well as representatives from the states of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin.

FOLLOWING this year's theme, "A Key To Industrial Growth," Bennett chose as his subject, "The Centex Story." In his 45-minute illustrated talk he unfolded step by step the phenomenal three-year growth of Centex Industrial park, of which his firm is exclusive agent.

"The success of both," said Bennett, "consists of starting from scratch with raw land, of planning the community before it's started, then building according to that plan. The result is a coordinated community of homes, stores and industry where rapid growth can be handled with ease." (BB

Down On The Farm

with Your Farm Adviser

At our Vegetable Growers School, Hugh Muncy, executive vice president, Illinois Retail Merchant association, discussed public relations.

He stated that for the past 30 years much had been said about public relations. In the early days many definitions were given. Many people thought that good public relations consisted of supplying the newspapers with floods of releases concerning relationship and for the executives in the field to have an unlimited bank account to entertain people and take them out to lunch and dinner.

AFTER A few years, companies that had such programs found they were not producing the results they desired. So in recent years a research study was made to see what a good public relations program might consist of and what a good definition might be. The study came up with this definition. "Public relations is our relation with the public." The definition though very simple has never been refuted. Study it. It has a lot of meaning.

The farm segment of our society has been concerned for quite some time about agriculture; public relations with the rest of the economy and society. Our vegetable growers especially are concerned because they say many news releases indicate that farmers are well off financially and are drawing a "fat" subsidy check each month from the government, and that the taxpayer is providing the money for the subsidy.

Vegetable growers do not attempt to speak for all segments of agriculture, but they have never operated on a subsidized program. The vegetable growers operate on a free market. All that I have talked with, want it to continue. If you think the vegetable growers receive a subsidy, you do not have all the facts. They do not. When you purchase your fresh vegetables at the store, remember there are many added costs between what the farmer receives for his produce and what we, as consumers, pay at the retail store.

I ATTENDED the 17th Annual Rural-Urban Banquet at Chicago Heights on January 18. About 425 men and women were present for this fine occasion. I thought this was public relations in action. There were both rural and urban people present. Each person paid for his own meal. There was a fine spirit of brotherhood and fellowship noticeable at the meeting. If more of such events were planned and executed, our public relations could not help but improve.

Congratulations to the committee that planned the program in Chicago Heights for this fine event. (Fm

Radar, Unmarked Cars Are Slated for Toll Highways

Traffic enforcement on the Illinois Tollway will utilize unmarked police cars and radar equipment for the first time.

This was announced Friday by Charles L. Dearing, executive director of the Illinois State Toll Highway Commission, who said that radar enforcement of speed restrictions would begin as soon as signs can be erected along the tollway.

Use of unmarked police cars in patrolling will begin within the next few days, he said. All arrests for speeding violations will be made by troopers in full uniform, whether in marked or unmarked cars.

CHARLES M. Burgess, chairman, said that the members of the commission had approved the use of unmarked cars and radar on the basis of staff recommendation.

Dearing said that the tollway would use every means known to science to maintain the tollway's high safety record of the past two years.

"Safety achievements on the Illinois tollway to date have been due largely to the safety features designed into construction, the high maintenance standards, and the density and efficiency of patrolling which is much more intensive than on other roads.

"Maintenance and dense patrolling are costly," the executive director said. "With large increases in traffic volume during the past year and anticipated increases next year, we are taking additional measures to maintain the best safety record possible.

"Radar previously has been used on the tollway only to accumulate traffic data and establish the reasonableness of the speed limits. Use of unmarked cars and radar in traffic enforcement now will substantially increase the efficiency of the Illinois Tollway patrol, the special state police detachment assigned to the tollway, without the heavy cost of additional manpower."

MAJOR ALBERT S. Hinds, commanding officer of the Tollway patrol, said that one of the principal uses for unmarked cars and radar will be to enforce speeding regulations on the tollway.

"Actually," Hinds said, "motorists traveling at excessively high speeds constitute less than five per cent of the total traffic. Yet their potential for causing serious and fatal accidents is very great. These additional means of controlling speeding will be a substantial contribution to improved safer travel on the tollway.

"Of this five per cent, the deliberate violator is able to take advantage of the openness and long sight distances on the tollway to spot marked patrol cars before they are in position to check his speed. Use of unmarked cars and radar increases the effectiveness of the patrol and reduces the danger inherent in high speed chases."

Approximately 100 signs bearing the legend, "SPEED RADAR TIMED" will be erected in the near future at all tollway entrances and at various points on the main (BB

Centex Story Told At Industrial Meet

Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler, Chicago, was a principal luncheon speaker before 300 members of the Great Lakes States Industrial Development council at its Ninth annual conference held in Milwaukee.

The conference, conducted at Brooks Memorial union on the campus of Marquette university, was attended by the Honorable Gaylord A. Nelson, Governor of Wisconsin, as well as representatives from the states of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin.

FOLLOWING this year's theme, "A Key To Industrial Growth," Bennett chose as his subject, "The Centex Story." In his 45-minute illustrated talk he unfolded step by step the phenomenal three-year growth of Centex Industrial park, of which his firm is exclusive agent.

"The success of both," said Bennett, "consists of starting from scratch with raw land, of planning the community before it's started, then building according to that plan. The result is a coordinated community of homes, stores and industry where rapid growth can be handled with ease." (BB

CARL F. MEES

At our Vegetable Growers School, Hugh Muncy, executive vice president, Illinois Retail Merchant association, discussed public relations.

He stated that for the past 30 years much had been said about public relations. In the early days many definitions were given. Many people thought that good public relations consisted of supplying the newspapers with floods of releases concerning relationship and for the executives in the field to have an unlimited bank account to entertain people and take them out to lunch and dinner.

AFTER A few years, companies that had such programs found they were not producing the results they desired. So in recent years a research study was made to see what a good public relations program might consist of and what a good definition might be. The study came up with this definition. "Public relations is our relation with the public." The definition though very simple has never been refuted. Study it. It has a lot of meaning.

The farm segment of our society has been concerned for quite some time about agriculture; public relations with the rest of the economy and society. Our vegetable growers especially are concerned because they say many news releases indicate that farmers are well off financially and are drawing a "fat" subsidy check each month from the government, and that the taxpayer is providing the money for the subsidy.

Vegetable growers do not attempt to speak for all segments of agriculture, but they have never operated on a subsidized program. The vegetable growers operate on a free market. All that I have talked with, want it to continue. If you think the vegetable growers receive a subsidy, you do not have all the facts. They do not. When you purchase your fresh vegetables at the store, remember there are many added costs between what the farmer receives for his produce and what we, as consumers, pay at the retail store.

I ATTENDED the 17th Annual Rural-Urban Banquet at Chicago Heights on January 18. About 425 men and women were present for this fine occasion. I thought this was public relations in action. There were both rural and urban people present. Each person paid for his own meal. There was a fine spirit of brotherhood and fellowship noticeable at the meeting. If more of such events were planned and executed, our public relations could not help but improve.

Congratulations to the committee that planned the program in Chicago Heights for this fine event. (Fm

Radar, Unmarked Cars Are Slated for Toll Highways

Traffic enforcement on the Illinois Tollway will utilize unmarked police cars and radar equipment for the first time.

This was announced Friday by Charles L. Dearing, executive director of the Illinois State Toll Highway Commission, who said that radar enforcement of speed restrictions would begin as soon as signs can be erected along the tollway.

Use of unmarked police cars in patrolling will begin within the next few days, he said. All arrests for speeding violations will be made by troopers in full uniform, whether in marked or unmarked cars.

CHARLES M. Burgess, chairman, said that the members of the commission had approved the use of unmarked cars and radar on the basis of staff recommendation.

Dearing said that the tollway would use every means known to science to maintain the tollway's high safety record of the past two years.

"Safety achievements on the Illinois tollway to date have been due largely to the safety features designed into construction, the high maintenance standards, and the density and efficiency of patrolling which is much more intensive than on other roads.

"Maintenance and dense patrolling are costly," the executive director said. "With large increases in traffic volume during the past year and anticipated increases next year, we are taking additional measures to maintain the best safety record possible.

"Radar previously has been used on the tollway only to accumulate traffic data and establish the reasonableness of the speed limits. Use of unmarked cars and radar in traffic enforcement now will substantially increase the efficiency of the Illinois Tollway patrol, the special state police detachment assigned to the tollway, without the heavy cost of additional manpower."

MAJOR ALBERT S. Hinds, commanding officer of the Tollway patrol, said that one of the principal uses for unmarked cars and radar will be to enforce speeding regulations on the tollway.

"Actually," Hinds said, "motorists traveling at excessively high speeds constitute less than five per cent of the total traffic. Yet their potential for causing serious and fatal accidents is very great. These additional means of controlling speeding will be a substantial contribution to improved safer travel on the tollway.

"Of this five per cent, the deliberate violator is able to take advantage of the openness and long sight distances on the tollway to spot marked patrol cars before they are in position to check his speed. Use of unmarked cars and radar increases the effectiveness of the patrol and reduces the danger inherent in high speed chases."

Approximately 100 signs bearing the legend, "SPEED RADAR TIMED" will be erected in the near future at all tollway entrances and at various points on the main (BB

Centex Story Told At Industrial Meet

Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler, Chicago, was a principal luncheon speaker before 300 members of the Great Lakes States Industrial Development council at its Ninth annual conference held in Milwaukee.

The conference, conducted at Brooks Memorial union on the campus of Marquette university, was attended by the Honorable Gaylord A. Nelson, Governor of Wisconsin, as well as representatives from the states of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin.

FOLLOWING this year's theme, "A Key To Industrial Growth," Bennett chose as his subject, "The Centex Story." In his 45-minute illustrated talk he unfolded step by step the phenomenal three-year growth of Centex Industrial park, of which his firm is exclusive agent.

"The success of both," said Bennett, "consists of starting from scratch with raw land, of planning the community before it's started, then building according to that plan. The result is a coordinated community of homes, stores and industry where rapid growth can be handled with ease." (BB

with Your Farm Adviser

At our Vegetable Growers School, Hugh Muncy, executive vice president, Illinois Retail Merchant association, discussed public relations.

He stated that for the past 30 years much had been said about public relations. In the early days many definitions were given. Many people thought that good public relations consisted of supplying the newspapers with floods of releases concerning relationship and for the executives in the field to have an unlimited bank account to entertain people and take them out to lunch and dinner.

AFTER A few years, companies that had such programs found they were not producing the results they desired. So in recent years a research study was made to see what a good public relations program might consist of and what a good definition might be. The study came up with this definition. "Public relations is our relation with the public." The definition though very simple has never been refuted. Study it. It has a lot of meaning.

The farm segment of our society has been concerned for quite some time about agriculture; public relations with the rest of the economy and society. Our vegetable growers especially are concerned because they say many news releases indicate that farmers are well off financially and are drawing a "fat" subsidy check each month from the government, and that the taxpayer is providing the money for the subsidy.

Vegetable growers do not attempt to speak for all segments of agriculture, but they have never operated on a subsidized program. The vegetable growers operate on a free market. All that I have talked with, want it to continue. If you think the vegetable growers receive a subsidy, you do not have all the facts. They do not. When you purchase your fresh vegetables at the store, remember there are many added costs between what the farmer receives for his produce and what we, as consumers, pay at the retail store.

I ATTENDED the 17th Annual Rural-Urban Banquet at Chicago Heights on January 18. About 425 men and women were present for this fine occasion. I thought this was public relations in action. There were both rural and urban people present. Each person paid for his own meal. There was a fine spirit of brotherhood and fellowship noticeable at the meeting. If more of such events were planned and executed, our public relations could not help but improve.

Beauticians Plan Glamorous Coiffure and Fashion Show

THERE'S NOTHING like a new hair-do to to lift the spirits of a woman or even a little girl. Creating a new coiffure for Cheryl Footitt, left, is Donna Marchetta. The girls, both of Mt. Prospect, will be the children's models for the February 13 hairdressers' fashion show to be held in the Villa Venice. The show will begin with luncheon and will feature the latest spring and cruise fashions from Beatrice Dorsay and the newest in spring coiffures as done by area beauty operators, sponsors of the show. Tickets are available at local beauty shops. (S

One of this spring's very first fashion shows for women of the northwest suburbs is all set for Monday, Feb. 13, and will be held at the Villa Venice beginning with a cocktail hour and one o'clock luncheon.

The show, sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Hairdressers and Cosmetologist s association, will feature the latest spring, summer and cruise wear from the Beatrice Dorsay shop in Dundee, plus the latest spring coiffures and make up as executed by local beauticians. The affair is being held in conjunction with National Beauty Salon week.

BRIGHTENING the winter scene will be pastel and vivid hued ensembles designed by famous American designers and modeled by Beatrice Dorsay models. The coiffures, described as "most exciting" by the beauticians, will include "seasonal fantasies," the new "bunny hug" and other versions of popular and traditional styles. Models for the coiffures will be area women.

Tickets, at $4, are available at all beauty shops in the area. Local beauty operators are hoping that all their customers and their friends will be in attendance at the show, proceeds of which will go to the Kidney Disease foundation.

THE ASSOCIATION includes beauty shops in the entire Paddock area as well as shops from Park Ridge to Lake Zurich. There are more than 700 units in the national organization.

Members of the hairdressers' northwest suburban group, unit 47, will meet Wednesday, Feb. 11 at 8 p.m. at Browns Northern Light, Barrington, where final plans for the show will be reviewed. Guest artist at this meeting will be John Ippolitto, hair stylist from Chicago. (S

Inaugural Held, Minus Mrs. O'Neill

Instead of spending last Friday in Washington, D. C. at the inaugural with political bigwigs, Mrs. P. Francis O'Neill spent the day in her Mt. Prospect home with the flu! This would have been Mrs. O'Neills third inaugural, as she attended both the Eisenhower inaugurals in '53 and '57.

Mrs. O'Neill, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. Frank C. Kethcart on Ojibwa trail, received her engraved invitation last week by virtue of her friendship with the Kennedy family. This friendship developed when Mrs. O'Neill spent considerable time each year in the Washington, D. C. area with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Crouch. AAUW to Feature Sun-Times Reporter

Dick Lewis, Chicago Sun-Times reporter, will speak at the annual luncheon and guest day of the Northwest Suburban branch of the American Association of University Women Saturday, January 28. It will be held at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Des Plaines, at 12:45 p.m.

The affair traditionally attracts many new and old members and teachers in the surrounding suburbs, and particularly this year is expected to do so because of the subject Mr. Lewis has chosen: "Welfare Problems Facing the State Legislature."

MR. LEWIS, 20 years a reporter and for the last 10 with the Sun-Times, in his talk will cover state taxes as relating to public welfare, education, financial problems, and why Illinois has failed to come up to standards of many states, such as Kansas and Indiana, in mental health.

Mr. Lewis is the author of "The Other Child," which deals with the subject of managing and educating the child who has had brain damage, published by Grune and Stratton, 1952. The book has become a reference text in special education. A revised edition appeared in 1960. He also has been one of a team of newsapermen reporting on the progress of physical sciences on the Antarctica research program and only recently returned from the South Pole.

A red and white color scheme in keeping with the holiday season highlighted the January 7 wedding of Lucena Ann Baker of Palatine and John Thomas Sujack of Arlington Heights. The couple was united in marriage by Father Lane in St. James Catholic church, Arlington Heights, at one o'clock.

Wearing red velvet sheath dresses and carrying colonial bouquets of white carnations and roses were four bridal attendants and the bride's sister, Barbara, who was flower girl. Maid of honor Janet Cloud of Arlington Heights carried a bouquet of white carnations and white roses; bridesmaids Joy Ness and Lucille Donahoe, both of Palatine, and Suella McLean of Hammond, Ind., carried bouquets of white carnations and red roses.

The flower girl wore white organdy trimmed in red velvet and carried a basket of rose petals.

THE BRIDE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Baker, 117 Briarwood lane, Palatine, was given in marriage by her father. She chose a light ivory bridal gown with a fitted bodice and full skirt ending in a chapel train. The long sleeves and neckline were edged with pearls and lace and over the gown fell a 3-tiered veil, held in place by a pearl crown. The bride's bouquet was of white fugi mums and roses.

The setting for the double ring ceremony included two large baskets and two altar vases of white gladioli and snapdragons.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Charlotte Sujack, 623 N. State rd., Arlington Heights. His best man was Wayne Haemker of Arlington Heights, and ushers were Douglas Winkelman and Frank Krettler, both of Mount Prospect, and Kenneth Baker, the bride's brother.

FOR HER daughter's wedding Mrs. Baker wore pale green satin with matching accessories and had a corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother chose beige lace and chiffon with beige accessories, and her corsage was identical to the bride's mother's.

Also present from the immediate family were the bridegroom's sister, Audrey Sujack, and grandmothers of the couple, Mrs. Charles Gluck of Rochester, N.Y., and Mrs. W. E. Scales of Arlington Heights.

A reception for 100 guests was held later in the day in the home of the bride's parents.

The couple left January 13 for Compton, Cal., where they will make their home while the bridegroom attends school. He is a graduate of Arlington high school and attended Indiana university prior to working at the post office in Mount Prospect.

The bride is a graduate of Palatine high school and was employed at Busse Buick in Mount Prospect before her marriage.

A Visit to Art Shop

Dear Peg:

Don't let these cold dreary winter days get you down — go over to the Vallez Studio-Gallery and spend some money (this always helps to raise your spirits!) or if money is your problem too, just drop in and browse — the proprietors are always happy to see you whether you're a buyer or a looker.

You may recall my telling you about this charming antique, art and picture framing shop while it was being completed. The last time I was there, Jay was busy painting the little room which now has shelves of beautiful glassware and Ginny and I stepped over and around pieces still to be marked as we toured the converted and redecorated old house. Today each room has its own special interest, whether it's the quiet room with the loveliest antiques, or the back room with the larger pieces of furniture including two very old Boston rockers, or the room now displaying the delightful, airy water colors of David Burnside, or the country-store room where you can buy penny candy and sarsaparilla, or even the framing room in which you can look through a table of water colors, prints etc. or decide on a suitable frame for one of your own pictures from the many samples shown.

Upstairs there is a room of original etchings — among them some very nice works of dogs' and cats' heads.

I was about to leave, the other day, when I saw a sign that read "This way to our dirty basement" and another with an arrow pointing "Down these dirty steps." At the top of the steps a sign read "Trash and Treasures." Intrigued I followed the arrows and in the basement found old pieces of furniture, mirrors and tables that with some work could be handsome pieces. I also discovered a table with little pieces of antique glass and china which because of cracks and chips were very inexpensive. I couldn't resist the little lacy-dressed white bisque figure of a golden haired girl with pale blue shoes. She is standing beside a hollow white tree trunk, in which a few rose buds are going to look lovely this summer.

I hope you have a chance to run over to the studio soon (it's on Waukegan road near Lake avenue) there's something for everyone and who knows you might even run into Jay Andres, Carmelita Pope or Jerry Vallez — they work there . . .

My love,
Patty

7th District Juniors Study School Needs

One hundred members of the Seventh district Junior Womans clubs, affiliated with the Illinois Federation of Womens clubs, including Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Northwest, Rolling Meadows, Des Plaines and Wheeling Juniors, met January 19 at the Bank of Rolling Meadows to hear Dr. Harold Phelps, director of special education at Illinois State Normal university, discuss the basic idea and areas of special education.

As he outlined the preparation of teachers for special children, Dr. Phelps pointed out that the demand for these teachers far exceeds the supply and emphasized the importance of scholarships established by the Junior Womans clubs of Illinois for the education of special teachers. In the past eight years the Illinois Juniors have given more than $45,000 to 164 students in grants ranging from $100 to $600. These grants have been instrumental in assuring the education of future teachers of exceptional children.

IN LINE with the main speaker, the Juniors heard Mr. Walsh, treasurer of Clearbrook School for Retarded Children in Rolling Meadows, tell of the school's need for funds for expansion and operation. Clearbrook school is a special interest of the Seventh district Juniors who are having a fund-raising hat show in February to benefit the school.

Among the special guests at the meeting were Mrs. Ben Carns, presidnet of the Arlington Heights Womans club, and Mrs. C. A. Hendrickson of Arlington Heights, president of the Seventh district.

Got a Match, Buddy?

CALLING ALL PYROMANIACS. I have found your Utopia and it is right here on earth. You may have to wear knee britches and turbans, but you can burst into flame to your little heart's contents.

I was in a famous room the other night and found out just how unsophisticated I really am. I mean I was impressed. You would have thought my eyes were on swivels the way they were snapping around as things kept bursting into flames. As I am not a flame swallower, I was hard put to know what to order that wouldn't go up in smoke. They must recruit their waiters from old flame thrower divisions.

Everywhere you looked there were telephones. Outside of the telephone company, which has a goodly number, I have never seen so many phones in one spot. I kept having the itch to call someone but really had nothing of import to say. It seemed a little silly to call one of the neighbors just to say, "Guess where I am" because they all knew where I was.

I have never seen ice cubes and butter planked down in front of me with such a flourish. One would have thought these knee-britched boys were serving humming birds tongues to Cleopatra. I kept saying thank you like a good little girl but really thought I should curtsey or salaam.

Neither gesture seemed exactly appropriate considering the way I was dressed. I was wondering why they had put me more or less back in an inconspicuous corner until I saw how people out in the great big city were dressing these days. There I was in my good little homemade suit with my usual pot cover hat with country girl written all over my under made-up face.

I have discovered the hard way that if one's eyes are not lined, slanted, eye-shadowed, mascaraed, heavy eyebrowed one is old hat and looks a little undressed. I looked a little undressed. And, I was glad to be put back in the corner.

In fact, from now on when I make a sortie out into the big outside world, just look for me in the most out of the way spot. Shyly retiring. (Soc

Beauticians Plan Glamorous Coiffure and Fashion Show

THERE'S NOTHING like a new hair-do to to lift the spirits of a woman or even a little girl. Creating a new coiffure for Cheryl Footitt, left, is Donna Marchetta. The girls, both of Mt. Prospect, will be the children's models for the February 13 hairdressers' fashion show to be held in the Villa Venice. The show will begin with luncheon and will feature the latest spring and cruise fashions from Beatrice Dorsay and the newest in spring coiffures as done by area beauty operators, sponsors of the show. Tickets are available at local beauty shops. (S

One of this spring's very first fashion shows for women of the northwest suburbs is all set for Monday, Feb. 13, and will be held at the Villa Venice beginning with a cocktail hour and one o'clock luncheon.

The show, sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Hairdressers and Cosmetologist s association, will feature the latest spring, summer and cruise wear from the Beatrice Dorsay shop in Dundee, plus the latest spring coiffures and make up as executed by local beauticians. The affair is being held in conjunction with National Beauty Salon week.

BRIGHTENING the winter scene will be pastel and vivid hued ensembles designed by famous American designers and modeled by Beatrice Dorsay models. The coiffures, described as "most exciting" by the beauticians, will include "seasonal fantasies," the new "bunny hug" and other versions of popular and traditional styles. Models for the coiffures will be area women.

Tickets, at $4, are available at all beauty shops in the area. Local beauty operators are hoping that all their customers and their friends will be in attendance at the show, proceeds of which will go to the Kidney Disease foundation.

THE ASSOCIATION includes beauty shops in the entire Paddock area as well as shops from Park Ridge to Lake Zurich. There are more than 700 units in the national organization.

Members of the hairdressers' northwest suburban group, unit 47, will meet Wednesday, Feb. 11 at 8 p.m. at Browns Northern Light, Barrington, where final plans for the show will be reviewed. Guest artist at this meeting will be John Ippolitto, hair stylist from Chicago. (S

Instead of spending last Friday in Washington, D. C. at the inaugural with political bigwigs, Mrs. P. Francis O'Neill spent the day in her Mt. Prospect home with the flu! This would have been Mrs. O'Neill's third inaugural, as she attended both the Eisenhower inaugurals in '53 and '57.

Mrs. O'Neill, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. Frank C. Kethcart on Ojibwa trail, received her engraved invitation last week by virtue of her friendship with the Kennedy family. This friendship developed when Mrs. O'Neill spent considerable time each year in the Washington, D. C. area with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Crouch. Mr. Crouch, now widowed, is the eastern field representative for MGM and Lowes theatres in Washington, D. C. (S

AAUW to Feature Sun-Times Reporter

Dick Lewis, Chicago Sun-Times reporter, will speak at the annual luncheon and guest day of the Northwest Suburban branch of the American Association of University Women Saturday, January 28. It will be held at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Des Plaines, at 12:45 p.m.

The affair traditionally attracts many new and old members and teachers in the surrounding suburbs, and particularly this year is expected to do so because of the subject Mr. Lewis has chosen: "Welfare Problems Facing the State Legislature."

MR. LEWIS, 20 years a reporter and for the last 10 with the Sun-Times, in his talk will cover state taxes as relating to public welfare, education, financial problems, and why Illinois has failed to come up to standards of many states, such as Kansas and Indiana, in mental health.

Mr. Lewis is the author of "The Other Child," which deals with the subject of managing and educating the child who has had brain damage, published by Grune and Stratton, 1952. The book has become a reference text in special education. A revised edition appeared in 1960. He also has been one of a team of newsapermen reporting on the progress of physical sciences on the Antarctica research program and only recently returned from the South Pole.

A WINTER scene highlighting snowmen has been worked out for table decorations by a committee which include Mrs. L. G. Westermeier of Prospect Heights and Mrs. J. F. Welsh of Arlington Heights. (S

Mrs. Frank N. Precilio, 739 S. Dunton, is chairman of the party and Mrs. George Sieben, 607 Ironwood, is co-chairman of the table committee. (S

Offer Household Tips To Aid Cardiac Moms

To a cardiac mother, a baby can be something like a yacht; it isn't the initial investment, in terms of energy, as much as the maintenance that proves difficult to handle.

Doctors agree that most mothers with heart trouble, given adequate medical care, can bear children safely.

BUT RAISING them is often a taxing chore. Many women who had no trouble with their hearts during pregnancy and delivery discover that the long hours and hard work of bringing up a new baby combine to produce constant fatigue.

In pregnancy, the mother-to-be usually has plenty of help around the house from her husband. After the baby is born, however, it is easy for fathers to forget that the event has signalled the start of a generation's care.

The Chicago Heart association has this word of warning for cardiac mothers: follow your doctor's advice about your level of activity—motherhood's tasks continue for many years.

The association conducts "Heart of the Home" classes, not only for cardiac women but for any housewife wishing to simplify her household tasks. Many things can be done to lighten the homemaker's burden and still maintain an efficient level of housekeeping.

HERE ARE some pointers for the new cardiac mother:

1. Sit down and plan your work before you start doing it.

2. Approach each job with the idea of doing first things first, and what isn't done today can wait until tomorrow.

3. Organize your work into daily, weekly and occasional categories, and let other members of the family help. In fact, see that they do.

4. Plan your menus, list the baby's needs, and shop only once a week.

5. Use part-time maid service and a diaper service if possible.

6. Keep the baby downstairs in the daytime and keep his clothing handy. Avoid needless steps.

7. Use clothing that needs little or no ironing.

8. Bathe the baby in the sink or bathinette—it saves your back.

9. When the baby naps, take one yourself.

10. Be sure to rest regularly, and stop at the first sign of fatigue.

For information on work simplification classes in the Chicago area, call or write the Chicago Heart Association, 22 West Madison, FI 6-4675. (Soc.

Job Opportunities

Women Are Swelling Nation's Work Force

by DICK HOFFMANN

Emancipated from the kitchen by modern conveniences and approaching equality of job oportunities, American women are swelling the ranks of the nation's working force.

Some startling statistics are provided by the Women's Division of the Institute of Life Insurance on the feminine employment picture.

For one third of all the workers in this country are now women.

Twenty-three million women work for pay away from home, or in a family business or on a family farm.

American men may no longer tip their hats or give up their bus seats to women, but statistics culled from a variety of sources on the working woman may start to make single men a little edgy about job security, or married men about who's master of the house.

ALTHOUGH fewer than 50,000 women in our country earn $10,000 or more, the steady advances made by the female sex in a 10-year period studied is cause for reflection.

Co-breadwinners in a two-paycheck family show that in 1959 approximately 11½ million couples counted on earnings of both husband and wife, or almost three couples out of ten of the country's population. This is in contrast to 7½ million working couples in 1949.

The median age of women workers is about 40, illustrating the fact that their children are almost grown. Significant also is that more than half of all working women are married and living with their husbands; . less than one-fourth are single.

In 1940, about half this working force was single.

BUT BEFORE males despair over this increased economic independence, it should be noted that of the married women, more than 90 per cent contribute regularly to help meet family expenses.

Statistics, of course, do not determine whether this altruism is due to the family meeting essential needs or because Mom is working for a second family car in our affluent society. But her working is probably due more to meeting family expenses to offset a high cost of living, for the largest concentration of working wives is in families whose joint incomes range from $5,000 to $10,000.

OTHER interesting figures compiled on this new element of the employment field show:

—About one-fifth of the nation's income in the form of wages and salaries is earned by women, with women's earnings for 1958 estimated at $45 billion;

—In about one out of 10 families, the woman is now head of the house. These are the widows and divorcees who work to support and educate their children, and represent 4,500,000 of the country's families;

—While there are 23 million working women, however, the Department of Labor reports that only 3¾ million are "professional workers, managers, officials and proprietors." (Soc

Job Opportunities

by DICK HOFFMANN

Emancipated from the kitchen by modern conveniences and approaching equality of job oportunities, American women are swelling the ranks of the nation's working force.

Some startling statistics are provided by the Women's Division of the Institute of Life Insurance on the feminine employment picture.

For one third of all the workers in this country are now women.

Twenty-three million women work for pay away from home, or in a family business or on a family farm.

American men may no longer tip their hats or give up their bus seats to women, but statistics culled from a variety of sources on the working woman may start to make single men a little edgy about job security, or married men about who's master of the house.

ALTHOUGH fewer than 50,000 women in our country earn $10,000 or more, the steady advances made by the female sex in a 10-year period studied is cause for reflection.

Co-breadwinners in a two-paycheck family show that in 1959 approximately 11½ million couples counted on earnings of both husband and wife, or almost three couples out of ten of the country's population. This is in contrast to 7½ million working couples in 1949.

The median age of women workers is about 40, illustrating the fact that their children are almost grown. Significant also is that more than half of all working women are married and living with their husbands; . less than one-fourth are single.

In 1940, about half this working force was single.

BUT BEFORE males despair over this increased economic independence, it should be noted that of the married women, more than 90 per cent contribute regularly to help meet family expenses.

Statistics, of course, do not determine whether this altruism is due to the family meeting essential needs or because Mom is working for a second family car in our affluent society. But her working is probably due more to meeting family expenses to offset a high cost of living, for the largest concentration of working wives is in families whose joint incomes range from $5,000 to $10,000.

OTHER interesting figures compiled on this new element of the employment field show:

—About one-fifth of the nation's income in the form of wages and salaries is earned by women, with women's earnings for 1958 estimated at $45 billion;

—In about one out of 10 families, the woman is now head of the house. These are the widows and divorcees who work to support and educate their children, and represent 4,500,000 of the country's families;

—While there are 23 million working women, however, the Department of Labor reports that only 3¾ million are "professional workers, managers, officials and proprietors." (Soc

Members of the first place winning group, "The Unclaimed Four," are Joy Hukill of Prospect Heights, Betty Hennesy of Palatine and Helen Keefer and Lori Tomkins of Mt. Prospect. Their selections for the contest were "You're the Kind of a Girl that Men Forget" and "I Wouldn't Trade the Silver in My Mother's Hair."

Director of the Mt. Prospect groups is Phyllis Haeger.

The contest was held in conjunction with the central region 3 meeting of Sweet Adelines, Inc. and was preceded by a dinner for the 250 Sweet Adelines present for the first novice quartette contest. Here's HAUGH to Plan a Party

Sweethearts on Parade Party

by DOLORES HAUGH

Remember the old song: "Two by two, They Go Marching Through, Those Sweethearts on Parade?" Well, sweethearts and valentines entwine to give a theme for your valentine party.

St. Valentine really lived many centuries ago and was sainted for his loving acts of kindness to others, his thoughtfulness and his persistence in carrying out these good deeds all his life. We have one Valentine day and some scoff, "It's so commercial," and they are right but the meaning is what we give it, and if we practiced a little more of the thoughtfulness to our family and others every day, who could make it "commercial?"

INVITATIONS

Red shining paper or dull velour paper, take your choice, will be the basis of the invitation. On this matte place a white lace doilie; tiny butter dish doilies are available and just right in size for decorations as well as the invitations. On the doily place two silhouettes in black, marching along, and write inside:

Two by two they go marching through,
The SWEETHEARTS ON PARADE
And if you'll join the festival

Our party will be made.
Bring your best girl, you fellows,

Or be it the other way,
No matter how you get here
February 14th is the DAY!
Party fun and lots of love
Go with this little rhyme
And let me know if you can come
Below's the place and time.

DECORATIONS

The hearts, flowers, bluebirds, lace and poetry will set the theme and red, pink or white or all three can be the color scheme. Be sure to coordinate your decor and carry it to the prizes, tallies, scorecards and table. The centerpiece may be black silhouettes of the same sort as the invite, but cut like paper dolls so that there will be a parade of them over the buffet or down the center of the table which is set with a pale pink cloth sprinkled with tiny hearts mounted on doilies.

For an added touch, a nylon net cloth of white or red may be made inexpensively and gathered up with tiny nosegays of flowers at spaced intervals, along the edge. Chiffon or any transparent material may be used. Use napkins to match rolled around the silverware and tied with ribbons and hearts on the doilies.

If you are using a sit down method of eating, do this to the napkins only. Tiny nutcups and placecards may be used using the same motif and don't overlook the tiny red heart candies, and the ones with sayings on them, for tags.

All the games should involve famous twosomes, love or flowers. Pantomimes, dancing or even partner card games, can provide an evening of fun for any age group. For the small fry, candy heart-shaped lollipops make wonderful prizes as do the other candies mentioned above. But keep the games simple and the conversation light, and here's hoping you have a wonderful Sweetheart's on Parade Valentine night. (S

"FASHION FLASHBACK" found Mrs. W. Brewster Merrill in a 1927 flapper dress, Mrs. Jack Bornhoeft in a Jean Harlow wedding dress of the 1934 era and Mrs. Richard Tarrant in a country dress of the 1880's. The women were among the members of the literature department of Mt. Prospect Junior Woman's club who modeled old gowns at the January 11 meeting.

Modern Etiquette

Q. What should engaged couples do if they decided to call their engagement off?

A. Above all, they should keep their recriminations and bitterness to themselves. The girl shouldn't discuss the whole thing, except with one or two best friends. And the man should accept the blame and not discuss it with anyone. This may seem a bit rigid nowadays, but the dictates of good taste still hold good.

Q. When a person who is making an introduction fails to speak a name clearly, and it is important that you know the name, of whom do you ask that the name be repeated?

A. Ask the person introduced, not the one who has made the introduction.

Q. Is a soup bowl ever placed on the table without a plate or saucer under it?

A. No, not anymore than you would place a coffee cup on the table without a saucer. A plate should be placed under a soup, cereal, or dessert bowl.

Q. Is it expected that the bride put her wedding gifts on display?

A. This is less often seen now, but it is still in good taste to exhibit them. Cards are removed from the gifts displayed, and gifts of like value are grouped together. Checks are recorded on propped-up cards reading "Check, $50," with the donor's name omitted.

The Way We See It

Politicians Threat To Good Government

A few weeks ago, Paddock Publications expressed concern over the fact that for the first time in northwest suburban history a political battle for township offices was shaping up along national party lines. At that time, we noted it was feared by some observers that such a battle would eventually extend to municipal offices.

Activity in some communities in recent weeks indicates these fears are justified.

Schaumburg township's Republican committeeman has publicly stated that "revitalization of suburban Republican organizations will make a positive contribution to the advancement of progressive local government." He also bemoans the failure of the GOP "to maintain a year-round political identity."

We have no quarrel with Republican and Democratic attempts to sustain interest in their organizations and keep workers in fighting trim between state and national elections.

We welcome, in fact, the apparent importance attached to our suburbs in the GOP's plan to revitalize the state's Republican party. Republican luminaries are appearing with increasing frequency before local clubs and civic organizations. And area GOP organization members appear to have been imbued with new enthusiasm and energy since their November defeat.

Less welcome are indications that in some instances this enthusiasm is being mustered for an assault on municipal offices in the coming April election.

With few exceptions, municipal offices of area communities have traditionally been filled by men who wanted to serve their communities. These men have been concerned with making their towns better places in which to live, not with furthering the fortunes of a particular political party.

This does not preclude a trustee or alderman from holding strong political beliefs. Nor is there "something inherently unwholesome, wicked, or illegal about a political party," as pointed out by the Schaumburg GOP committeeman.

What the committeeman neglects to point out, however, is that it is inherent in the nature of a political party that it must be served before other interests, including that of the community.

If good government is good politics, so much the better; but in the final analysis, the first responsibility of the party is to perpetuate the party.

No better example of the adverse effect of partisan national politics on a local level can be cited than in Niles township, where the excesses and inability of both Republicans and Democrats to solve local problems led to their being turned out by a two-to-one margin by a village caucus.

Some of the Republican activity on the local level in the area appears to be prompted by the rallying cry of "save the suburbs from the Democrats." Such concern is understandable in view of past instances of Democratic interest in local affairs, notably in Wheeling and Rolling Meadows.

But again, we emphasize that our municipal elections must not be looked upon as a means of strengthening party organizations at the grass roots level.

We are confident that, if informed, area residents will not stand for their communities being made national political battlegrounds.

For our part, Paddock Publications stands ready to expose attempts by either party, under its true label or by use of a pseudonym, to "capture" local offices.

DuPage County Historical Center Is Worthy Project

The DuPage county board of supervisors is going to help the DuPage county historical society find a suitable permanent home. Two members, Donald Swan of York township and Willard Bratthauar of Winfield township, have been named a committee for this purpose.

From the beginning, it is important to have an idea of what this historical home should be. Local historical societies often are dim places frequented by very nice old ladies, full of memories, tracing their family genealogy.

But museums need not be moribund. Good examples are the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry, which has made science come alive to hundreds of thousands of children, and the Hinsdale Health museum, which has done a like thing on a smaller scale.

The DuPage Historical society might well plan its future home with a similar goal in mind — of making history come alive to our school children. As a local center of history, it would have built-in advantages for achieving this purpose.

If such were to be the goal, it would be important to have in mind from the beginning a suitable building and a central location in the county.

And there could still be room for the very nice old ladies. They would probably enjoy having the children around.

Police Protection Needs Merit Suburban Appraisal

A recurring and increasingly serious problem in the unincorporated areas of Chicago's suburbs is the lack of adequate police protection.

In recent weeks northwest suburban schools lying outside municipalities have been plagued by vandalism and burglaries. Elk Grove school district 59 is considering installing burglar alarms.

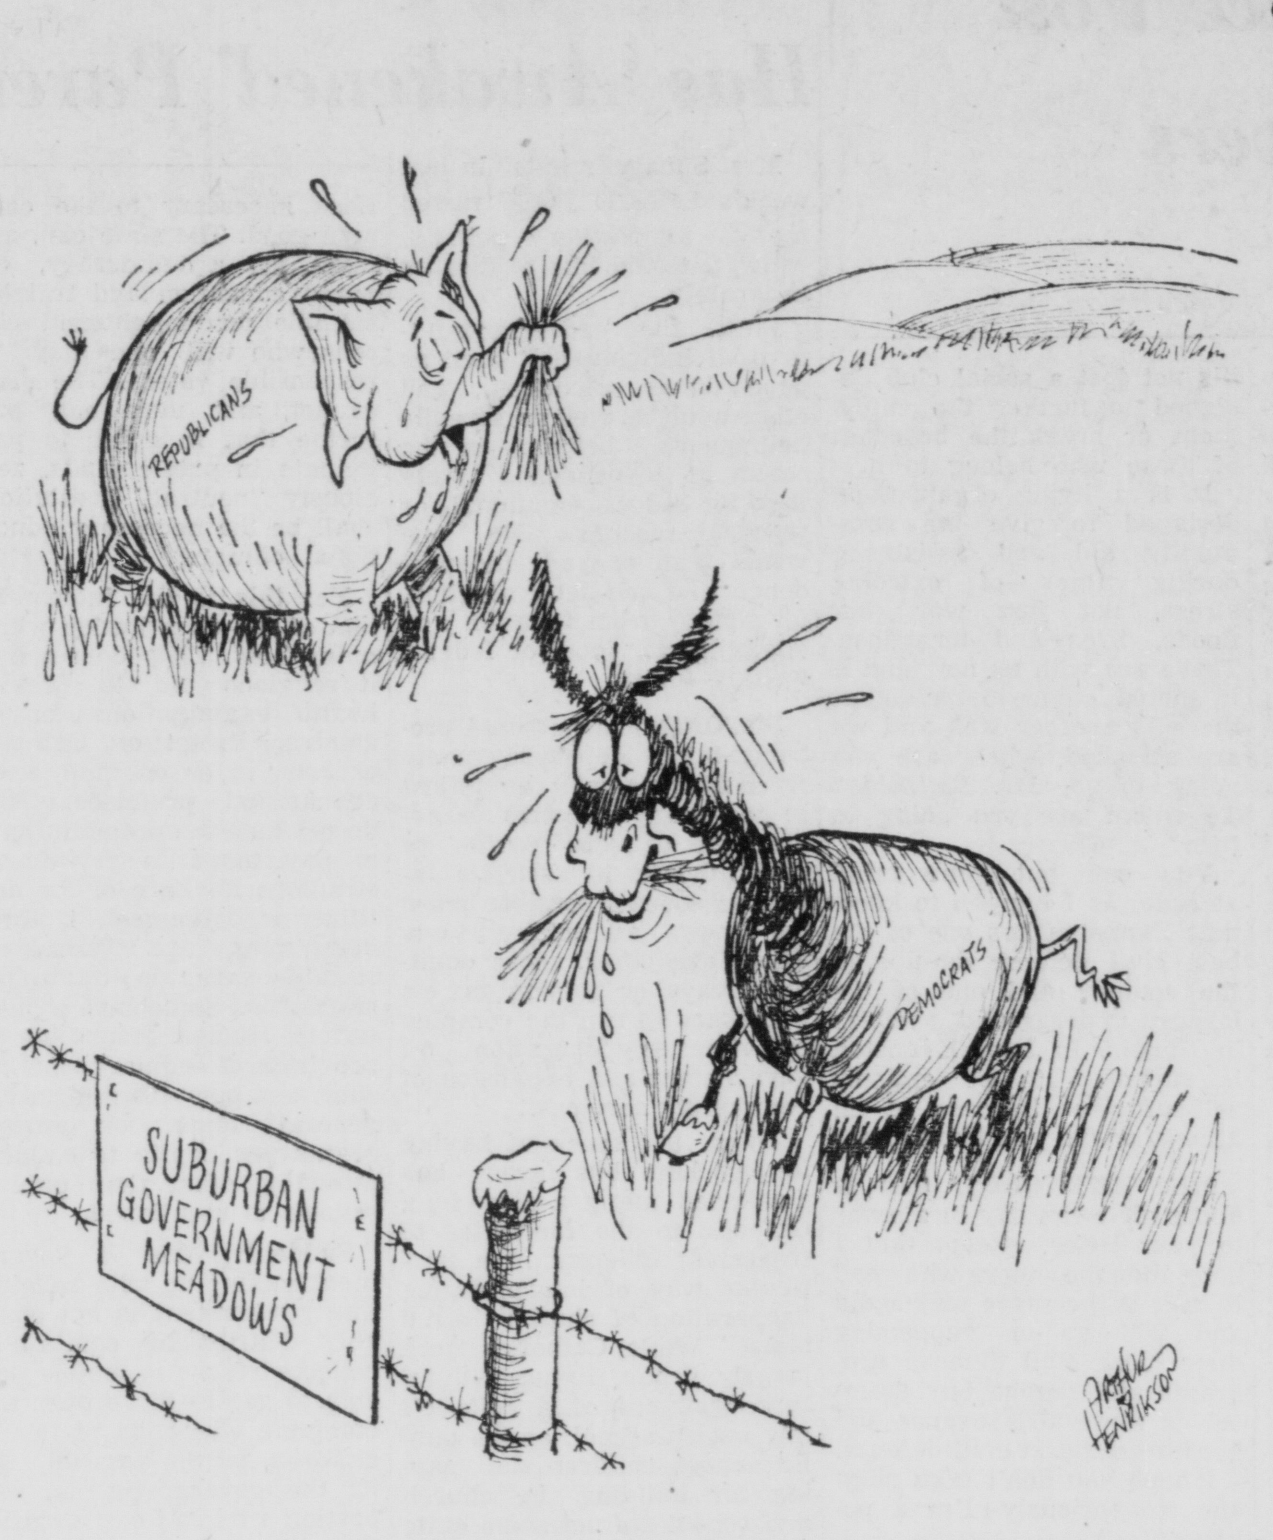
Service stations dotting the unincorporated area are repeatedly burglarized. Some have been hit as many as five times. Armed robberies and more serious crimes are not infrequent.

The responsibility of law enforcement in the nearly 400 square miles of unincorporated area in the county falls primarily on the sheriff's police, a political patronage group. The inability to discharge this responsibility is generally acknowledged. Aside from the quality of personnel on the sheriff's force, a subject that arouses differences of opinion, it is obviously physically impossible to cover such a vast, booming area as the northwest suburbs with the usual two cars to a shift.

Perhaps suburbanites should reconsider the merits of a metropolitan police force, proposed in the past, but rejected by area residents as an extension of Chicago authority.

Another proposal is that unincorporated areas be given the authority to create police districts as is presently the case with fire districts. A tax would be levied and police protection contracted for with surrounding municipalities.

The Great 'Come and Get It' Land!



'In Place of Folly'

World Law Is Alternative To Nuclear Chaos: Cousins

by MARTIN E. MARTY

"Since Adam and Eve ate the apple, man has never refrained from any folly of which he was capable."

This one sentence history of the world is the somewhat cynical text by Bertrand Russell heads Norman Cousins' new book, "In Place of Folly" (Harper, $3.00).

Mr. Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review seems to be asking here for one decisive reversal in the chain of follies, this time in face of the nuclear death-potential.

I confess that I fought the book all the way, and do not yet know who won. I read the Saturday Review every week and find its editor a brilliant but sometimes predictable and tiresome figure for one reason: his enamoration with the thought of India. A devotee of Dr. Schweitzer, Prime Minister Nehru, and most of all of Gandhi, he sees, week by week, a new answer to our religious and moral situation in whatever new idea an Indian cultist develops.

Sometimes the ideas are worthwhile: usually they are so remote that it would take generations of Westerners before the thought became comprehensible.

I fought this book also because like everyone else I like to evade the specter of nuclear war. After reading Cousins, I am convinced nuclear destruction is not too alarming—not compared to CBR and all the chemical, bacteriological, and radiological means we have for unloosing man-made power to end man. Anyone who needs to report on the extent of destruction we now could unleash would do well to buy Cousins' book for the way he brings these materials together.

AND I TRIED to argue back all the way because Cousins' solution, World Government, still seems so complicated and remote a solution, presenting almost insuperable problems.

Here, too, I share my fellow-man's instinct for lazy thought, and Cousins is trying to wake us all up from it. Just as Karl Jaspers (reviewed last week) saw the answer to destruction in world rationality, so Cousins sees it in world law. The end of nationalism has to be at hand, according to the author.

So as not to numb or immobilize the reader, Cousins includes some bright notes toward the end, including a chapter called "an exciting time to be alive," exciting because our generation is called to enlarge its thought about government more than any of its predecessors.

THE BOOK will sell well and be readily available to readers, so I needn't try to detail the argument. As a teaser to potential readers let me say it this way: probably most of them are less pacifist than I; probably most are more reluctant than I to see the end of nuclear weapons testing; probably most are more nationalistic than I.

I wanted to go half way with Cousins; as I read, I kept retreating, trying to refute, and usually failing to.

At the end, dead end, I had no answer, no alternate solution, and an unwillingness to accept his in any simple terms. Will other readers find it easier to dispute his facts, or the use of them, or the alternative he presents? I'll be sitting on the fence post, listening. SUMMARY: At least, it makes us more elastic, more open to exploring new possibilities.

Springfield Sidelights

Urge Citizen Voice In State Government

By REP. PAUL SIMON

"I'm afraid the United States is going to lose in the world struggle against Communism," a prominent American political figure told me at lunch last week.

"Why do you say that?" I asked him.

"Because we are more interested in frills than in realities," he replied. "My home city approved a bond issue for a sports stadium and has approved bond issues for swimming pools, but a tax increase for schools was turned down. I fear — and I hope I am wrong — that our people are not willing to make the sacrifices necessary, both in time and money, that it will take to win this cold war. If there were a shooting war, we would wake up, but I'm afraid a cold war does not shake us from our comfortable indifference."

ONE OF HIS big points was that people are not taking an interest in what government is doing.

Citizens of Illinois will have an opportunity to put his words to a test during the next months as the Illinois legislature meets.

You who read these words can play a major part in the decisions reached by the legislature and by Governor Kerner. Here are some practical things you can do:

1. Read in newspapers what is happening in Springfield. If you belong to labor, farm, business, civic or professional groups, find out what they have to say. Keep in mind that anything you read or hear may have a special "slant" to it.

2. When you have an opinion, write to your State Representatives, your State Senator and to Governor Kerner. Don't send a mimeographed letter; don't send a letter or telegram word-for-word the same as something someone gave you; don't send a lengthy letter. In your own words, write what you are for or against, or what changes you feel should be made. Letters of that type are a tremendous influence.

3. WOMEN HAVE an unusually good opportunity of informing themselves and influencing others through the League of Women Voters. This is a non-partisan group which is a healthy influence on our state. There undoubtedly is a League of Women Voters not far from where you live.

4. Have a "coffee hour" for a dozen or more of your friends in your home, to which you invite one of your legislators. Have him present briefly some of the problems he faces and then have an informal question-and-answer period. Keep in mind that your legislators have busy schedules so don't keep them too long. Also, check well in advance with him when it would be convenient to have your "coffee hours." He probably will have to work this in with other meetings the same day. This is an excellent way to get acquainted with your state's problems and the people who represent you.

5. TAKE AN interest in something that does not affect your pocketbook directly. Probably 95 per cent of the mail received by legislators is from people who have a personal stake in what they write about. People who are not parents or teachers rarely write about school matters; people who do not have an immediate member of a family in an institution rarely write about mental hospitals; and so you could continue. It's natural that what you see in your personal life as a need is your first interest. Continue that interest! But government will be healthier if you show the maturity to go beyond that first interest.

Make any two of these five points your concern, and we will have better government in Illinois.

Jr. College Is Necessity

Program May Relieve Over-Crowded Colleges

by TOM EDWARDS

Junior college is not "just a second-choice substitute" but an "open door" — and often the best choice — to a higher education in an era when education beyond high school is becoming "a practical necessity."

So reported the Illinois Education association, which pointed out that the state's public and non-public four-year colleges and universities will soon be filled to capacity, and the outlook for the immediate future is that more and more students will be denied admission to them.

"Uncertainty of college admission" is a problem many high school upper classmen are now seeking to resolve -- and junior colleges are a solution, state R. O. Birkhimer and Peter Masiko Jr., authors of an IEA report. Birkhimer is junior college consultant for the state Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Masiko is dean of the Chicago City Junior college.

YET, WHETHER or not to enter college at all should remain a "practical judgment" and not a matter of "fashion," the two educators warn, recognizing the growing social pressure to attend college.

"Now is the time. . .to determine whether our youth should follow a headlong rush for inclusion in the exclusive school, or each seek the best for meeting his individual needs."

Advantage of a junior college is that it provides a test ground for individual college ability and a place for those without fixed goals to "discover themselves."

Since these colleges admit all students who show "likelihood of producing success," it gives many who were only average performers in high school a chance to find out if they can achieve well in college, which many can and do.

"Failure in a junior college is not so costly in terms of money, time, prestige and personality damage as failure in a college away from home. An honest attempt, even if unsuccessful, is not cause for shame."

FURTHER, where family cares or financial burdens of going away to college are prohibitive, the junior college is often a better choice. Besides lower tuitions and fees, it is estimated that students save about $1,000 yearly by living at home.

Perhaps the most important advantage cited by Birkhimer and Masiko is that "participation in the values of learning and the benefits of cultural development is more ideal in a smaller student body, particularly when close to home."

Percentage-wise, due to the lower ratio of students per activity, curricular and extracurricular participation is much greater in small colleges, they state. (The seven junior colleges in the Chicago area have an average enrollment of 1,000 fulltime and 2,000 part-time students.)

Because the first duty of junior college instructors is teaching rather than research, "master teachers are employed and instruction is excellent."

CONCLUSIVE evidence has been shown in U.S. studies, according to the article, that "there is no measurable difference" between the performances of junior college transfers to four-year institutions than those who entered them as freshmen.

Additional value of these local education centers is that they are run for and adjusted to the particular needs of the areas in which they are located, providing continuing education for employed people and a second chance for the unsuccessful in the more exclusive institutions.

Also mentioned is a by-product of the increasing difficulty for admission to established four-year educational centers -- a complaint from some educators that perhaps there is an "overemphasis" on test scores and grade averages in high school, even to the extent of encouraging artificial and unethical methods of striving for high scores rather than for "sound education and good placement."

PERTINENT facts cited on junior colleges are:

--About one of every six Illinois college students is enrolled in a junior college, or about 35,000, which does not include evening continuing education programs.

--The state's 32 junior colleges are so located that 70 per cent of the population is within commuting distance, and more are being planned. Enrollments range from 350 to 10,600.

--There are 700 junior colleges, 400 public, in America, with a total of about a million students. California leads with an enrollment of about a half million in its 64 junior colleges, including 73 per cent of entering college freshmen in 1959.

--Besides providing the first two years of college-level work, there are complete two-year (or terminal) programs for which diplomas or degrees are awarded.

--Illinois has the oldest junior college.

The Way We See It

Politicians Threat To Good Government

A few weeks ago, Paddock Publications expressed concern over the fact that for the first time in northwest suburban history a political battle for township offices was shaping up along national party lines. At that time, we noted it was feared by some observers that such a battle would eventually extend to municipal offices.

Activity in some communities in recent weeks indicates these fears are justified.

Schaumburg township's Republican committeeman has publicly stated that "revitalization of suburban Republican organizations will make a positive contribution to the advancement of progressive local government." He also bemoans the failure of the GOP "to maintain a year-round political identity."

We have no quarrel with Republican and Democratic attempts to sustain interest in their organizations and keep workers in fighting trim between state and national elections.

We welcome, in fact, the apparent importance attached to our suburbs in the GOP's plan to revitalize the state's Republican party. Republican luminaries are appearing with increasing frequency before local clubs and civic organizations. And area GOP organization members appear to have been imbued with new enthusiasm and energy since their November defeat.

Less welcome are indications that in some instances this enthusiasm is being mustered for an assault on municipal offices in the coming April election.

With few exceptions, municipal offices of area communities have traditionally been filled by men who wanted to serve their communities. These men have been concerned with making their towns better places in which to live, not with furthering the fortunes of a particular political party.

This does not preclude a trustee or alderman from holding strong political beliefs. Nor is there "something inherently unwholesome, wicked, or illegal about a political party," as pointed out by the Schaumburg GOP committeeman.

What the committeeman neglects to point out, however, is that it is inherent in the nature of a political party that it must be served before other interests, including that of the community.

If good government is good politics, so much the better; but in the final analysis, the first responsibility of the party is to perpetuate the party.

No better example of the adverse effect of partisan national politics on a local level can be cited than in Niles township, where the excesses and inability of both Republicans and Democrats to solve local problems led to their being turned out by a two-to-one margin by a village caucus.

Some of the Republican activity on the local level in the area appears to be prompted by the rallying cry of "save the suburbs from the Democrats." Such concern is understandable in view of past instances of Democratic interest in local affairs, notably in Wheeling and Rolling Meadows.

But again, we emphasize that our municipal elections must not be looked upon as a means of strengthening party organizations at the grass roots level.

We are confident that, if informed, area residents will not stand for their communities being made national political battlegrounds.

For our part, Paddock Publications stands ready to expose attempts by either party, under its true label or by use of a pseudonym, to "capture" local offices.

DuPage County Historical Center Is Worthy Project

The DuPage county board of supervisors is going to help the DuPage county historical society find a suitable permanent home. Two members, Donald Swan of York township and Willard Bratthauar of Winfield township, have been named a committee for this purpose.

From the beginning, it is important to have an idea of what this historical home should be. Local historical societies often are dim places frequented by very nice old ladies, full of memories, tracing their family genealogy.

But museums need not be moribund. Good examples are the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry, which has made science come alive to hundreds of thousands of children, and the Hinsdale Health museum, which has done a like thing on a smaller scale.

The DuPage Historical society might well plan its future home with a similar goal in mind — of making history come alive to our school children. As a local center of history, it would have built-in advantages for achieving this purpose.

If such were to be the goal, it would be important to have in mind from the beginning a suitable building and a central location in the county.

Police Protection Needs Merit Suburban Appraisal

A recurring and increasingly serious problem in the unincorporated areas of Chicago's suburbs is the lack of adequate police protection.

In recent weeks northwest suburban schools lying outside municipalities have been plagued by vandalism and burglaries. Elk Grove school district 59 is considering installing burglar alarms.

Service stations dotting the unincorporated area are repeatedly burglarized. Some have been hit as many as five times. Armed robberies and more serious crimes are not infrequent.

The responsibility of law enforcement in the nearly 400 square miles of unincorporated area in the county falls primarily on the sheriff's police, a political patronage group. The inability to discharge this responsibility is generally acknowledged. Aside from the quality of personnel on the sheriff's force, a subject that arouses differences of opinion, it is obviously physically impossible to cover such a vast, booming area as the northwest suburbs with the usual two cars to a shift.

Perhaps suburbanites should reconsider the merits of a metropolitan police force, proposed in the past, but rejected by area residents as an extension of Chicago authority.

Another proposal is that unincorporated areas be given the authority to create police districts as is presently the case with fire districts. A tax would be levied and police protection contracted for with surrounding municipalities.

'In Place of Folly'

by MARTIN E. MARTY

"Since Adam and Eve ate the apple, man has never refrained from any folly of which he was capable."

This one sentence history of the world is the somewhat cynical text by Bertrand Russell heads Norman Cousins' new book, "In Place of Folly" (Harper, $3.00).

Mr. Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review seems to be asking here for one decisive reversal in the chain of follies, this time in face of the nuclear death-potential.

I confess that I fought the book all the way, and do not yet know who won. I read the Saturday Review every week and find its editor a brilliant but sometimes predictable and tiresome figure for one reason: his enamoration with the thought of India. A devotee of Dr. Schweitzer, Prime Minister Nehru, and most of all of Gandhi, he sees, week by week, a new answer to our religious and moral situation in whatever new idea an Indian cultist develops.

Sometimes the ideas are worthwhile; usually they are so remote that it would take generations of Westerners before the thought became comprehensible.

I fought this book also because like everyone else I like to evade the specter of nuclear war. After reading Cousins, I am convinced nuclear destruction is not too alarming—not compared to CBR and all the chemical, bacteriological, and radiological means we have for unloosing man-made power to end man. Anyone who needs to report on the extent of destruction we now could unleash would do well to buy Cousins' book for the way he brings these materials together.

AND I TRIED to argue back all the way because Cousins' solution, World Government, still seems so complicated and remote a solution, presenting almost insuperable problems.

Here, too, I share my fellow-man's instinct for lazy thought, and Cousins is trying to wake us all up from it. Just as Karl Jaspers (reviewed last week) saw the answer to destruction in world rationality, so Cousins sees it in world law. The end of nationalism has to be at hand, according to the author.

So as not to numb or immobilize the reader, Cousins includes some bright notes toward the end, including a chapter called "an exciting time to be alive," exciting because our generation is called to enlarge its thought about government more than any of its predecessors.

THE BOOK will sell well and be readily available to readers, so I needn't try to detail the argument. As a teaser to potential readers let me say it this way: probably most of them are less pacifist than I; probably most are more reluctant than I to see the end of nuclear weapons testing; probably most are more nationalistic than I.

I wanted to go half way with Cousins; as I read, I kept retreating, trying to refute, and usually failing to.

At the end, dead end, I had no answer, no alternate solution, and an unwillingness to accept his in any simple terms. Will other readers find it easier to dispute his facts, or the use of them, or the alternative he presents? I'll be sitting on the fence post, listening.

SUMMARY: At least, it makes us more elastic, more open to exploring new possibilities.

By REP. PAUL SIMON

"I'm afraid the United States is going to lose in the world struggle against Communism," a prominent American political figure told me at lunch last week.

"Why do you say that?" I asked him.

"Because we are more interested in frills than in realities," he replied. "My home city approved a bond issue for a sports stadium and has approved bond issues for swimming pools, but a tax increase for schools was turned down. I fear — and I hope I am wrong — that our people are not willing to make the sacrifices necessary, both in time and money, that it will take to win this cold war. If there were a shooting war, we would wake up, but I'm afraid a cold war does not shake us from our comfortable indifference."

ONE OF HIS big points was that people are not taking an interest in what government is doing.

Citizens of Illinois will have an opportunity to put his words to a test during the next months as the Illinois legislature meets.

You who read these words can play a major part in the decisions reached by the legislature and by Governor Kerner. Here are some practical things you can do:

1. Read in newspapers what is happening in Springfield. If you belong to labor, farm, business, civic or professional groups, find out what they have to say. Keep in mind that anything you read or hear may have a special "slant" to it.

2. When you have an opinion, write to your State Representatives, your State Senator and to Governor Kerner. Don't send a mimeographed letter; don't send a letter or telegram word-for-word the same as something someone gave you; don't send a lengthy letter. In your own words, write what you are for or against, or what changes you feel should be made. Letters of that type are a tremendous influence.

3. WOMEN HAVE an unusually good opportunity of informing themselves and influencing others through the League of Women Voters. This is a non-partisan group which is a healthy influence on our state. There undoubtedly is a League of Women Voters not far from where you live.

4. Have a "coffee hour" for a dozen or more of your friends in your home, to which you invite one of your legislators. Have him present briefly some of the problems he faces and then have an informal question-and-answer period. Keep in mind that your legislators have busy schedules so don't keep them too long. Also, check well in advance with him when it would be convenient to have your "coffee hours." He probably will have to work this in with other meetings the same day. This is an excellent way to get acquainted with your state's problems and the people who represent you.

5. TAKE AN interest in something that does not affect your pocketbook directly. Probably 95 per cent of the mail received by legislators is from people who have a personal stake in what they write about. People who are not parents or teachers rarely write about school matters; people who do not have an immediate member of a family in an institution rarely write about mental hospitals; and so you could continue. It's natural that what you see in your personal life as a need is your first interest. Continue that interest! But government will be healthier if you show the maturity to go beyond that first interest.

Make any two of these five points your concern, and we will have better government in Illinois.

Jr. College Is Necessity

Program May Relieve Over-Crowded Colleges

by TOM EDWARDS

Junior college is not "just a second-choice substitute" but an "open door" — and often the best choice — to a higher education in an era when education beyond high school is becoming "a practical necessity."

So reported the Illinois Education association, which pointed out that the state's public and non-public four-year colleges and universities will soon be filled to capacity, and the outlook for the immediate future is that more and more students will be denied admission to them.

"Uncertainty of college admission" is a problem many high school upper classmen are now seeking to resolve -- and junior colleges are a solution, state R. O. Birkhimer and Peter Masiko Jr., authors of an IEA report. Birkhimer is junior college consultant for the state Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Masiko is dean of the Chicago City Junior college.

YET, WHETHER or not to enter college at all should remain a "practical judgment" and not a matter of "fashion," the two educators warn, recognizing the growing social pressure to attend college.

"Now is the time. . .to determine whether our youth should follow a headlong rush for inclusion in the exclusive school, or each seek the best for meeting his individual needs."

Advantage of a junior college is that it provides a test ground for individual college ability and a place for those without fixed goals to "discover themselves."

Since these colleges admit all students who show "likelihood of producing success," it gives many who were only average performers in high school a chance to find out if they can achieve well in college, which many can and do.

Letters to the Fence Post

Palatine Reader Answers Critic of Civil Defense

I read with some interest the letter from Mr. Reynolds of Evanston in last week's Fence Post, and I wonder if we shouldn't pursue this point further. So, to Mr. Reynolds, here are a few more points to consider:

1) Let's disband all of our police forces immediately. These organizations have also been violating the truth in telling us that we can survive such things as holidays weekends, drinking binges and the like, also by fostering the illusion that there is definitely a criminal element—in fact, they have created one. I say, let's get rid of these people and let things return to the way they really should be.

2) This church bit has been carried too far. Also, for years I have been hearing that I should be preparing for the end and guard against evil and all that sort of nonsense. Don't they realize that they are increasing the likelihood of immorality and evilness by doing this? It's a darn shame.

DIDN'T THAT sound ridiculous, Mr. Reynolds? And the statement that you made in last week's Fence Post seemed to me to be just as ridiculous. Sure, I'll go along with that civil defense is probably, in a general way, a part of the concept of war, but to say that by teaching or promoting civil defense preparedness that you are promoting or surrendering to a concept of killing millions and to infer that survival is something that you cannot believe in is wrong Mr. Reynolds, dead wrong.

By doing this openly, you are the one who is promoting an idea that can cause millions of people to meet death needlessly, and if we were a nation of people who had the idea that civil defense was needless, you can rest assured that the seeds of destruction would bloom into full flower throughout our country.

The good Lord was indeed good to you and me, Mr. Reynolds. Our nation has never yet had to dig itself out from the rubble and pain of an enemy attack and it has never had to feed and clothe countless thousands who were made homeless and hungry by the bombs of an aggressor, and I, like you, sincerely pray and hope that this shall never come to pass. But I don't delude myself, as you have done, and I don't believe that by preparing myself and my family for survival and helping as many others in my community as I can that I am paving the way for a holocaust.

I BELIEVE that what I am doing is buying a little insurance for myself and the future, and I'm learning too, Mr. Reynolds. I'm learning that civil defense isn't just for when the bombs fall and it's not just a social club designed to further the enjoyment or break the boredom of those who belong to it.

It is a living organization designed to give the community aid and assistance during times of extreme stress, not just war, but floods, fires and tornadoes. These are with us now and if it should come to pass that there is another war and we are attacked, where are you going to go, Mr. Reynolds? To whom are you going to turn?

You can put your mind at ease, as I happen to know that Evanston has one of the best civil defense set-ups in the country and one of the largest underground shelters in Illinois. In fact, Evanston is supposed to be entirely self-sufficient in case of an attack, or did you know that?

MR. REYNOLDS, that is about all I can say in answer to your letter, except that I hope that the others who read it took it the same way I did and will go on supporting their local civil defense programs and maybe buy themselves survival insurance and get interested in civil defense.

I hope you don't take point one too seriously—I'm a police officer.

Urge World War I Veterans to Join Barracks in Area

There is a current appeal, which is being made by the national commander of World War I veterans to area veterans that of swelling the membership of all World War I barracks.

Purpose of the appeal, in short, is for buddies to help their buddies. This, it is felt, can be done by a larger number of members working toward putting through a pension plan for the World War I veterans.

There are barracks in almost every area - for the Paddock area there is one in Bensenville and one that meets in Rolling Meadows. Dues are $5.

Parochial School Problem Has 'Awakened' Parents

Mrs. Sunagel's letter in last week's FENCE POST raised many interesting points, which I would like to discuss separately.

First, the "government-favored individuals," such as dope-addicts, alcholics, and other adult as well as juvenile delinquents belong in the realm of "dependents," whether for moral, emotional, or physical reasons. No one would wish to trade independence and self-determination, for liberty from taxation and eligibility for local or federal welfare funds.

SECOND, the personal property tax is hopelessly unenforceable, as well as unjust in too many respects to enumerate. Citizens would be well advised to seek its repeal as soon as possible under the new administration. There are other, more equitable ways or raising taxes necessary to run the complex but necessary operation of government and expansion of community services.

Third, the shock of having to pay high bus fares has awakened many a sleeping Catholic to the inequities of treatment inherent in a particular way of interpretating "separation of church and state." While Catholics were largely urban, living within three-quarters of a mile of any parish school, as the public school children did, paying for building the church and school did not seem quite as burdensome. In addition, property and other taxes were proportionately lower than they are today. Now, with the tax picture presented by Mrs. Sunagel's letter, the further necessity of building educational plants at least roughly comparable to the public system, and transporting the youngsters safely at a cost which (in elementary school, at least) is greater than the monthly tuition per child - now the family budget is not only strained, it is split wide open.

The solution to this dilemma lies, some would have it, in closing the parochial schools of whatever denomination and sending all children to the "free" public schools. No one seriously believes this to be an honest solution. Everyone is aware that the per capita cost of ordinary private school education is much less than that of public school, largely because of the low, almost "room and board" allowance given to the teaching nuns and brothers. Private schools seem to be to some people an insult to public schools, "undemocratic" being the usual charge. Those who set themselves above others can jolly well pay the freight. People of this sort, either consciously or otherwise, view "democracy" as a religion, and it would be a compulsory "state religion," if they had their way, to which all would pay obeisance by sending their children to the "state" schools. Denying funds to parents who find defects in the system conducted by the state as a convenience to citizens, is a form of civic blackmail whose legality is going to come under serious scrutiny as private citizens with concern for the broader training of their children, begin to investigate their rights.

PARENTS have a prior right to decide the suitable education for their children. The state, in its capacity as the agent and assistant to the citizen in doing for all those things which each cannot individually accomplish, has the right, and the duty, to supply for all citizens, through equitable collected revenues, services and operations necessary to the common good. The state can, and must, in a democracy, demand education and training suitable for enlightened citizens who will one day be responsible voters. The state cannot, and may not, prescribe that in order to participate in public funds, religiously "neutral" institutions shall be the necessary educational climate.

Yet this is the interpretation of the Constitution which many hold. They do not hold it religious aid to provide health examinations for all children, Protestant, Catholic, or Jew, in or on their own educational premises. They do not hold it unconstitutional to pay funds to private institutions for care of the destitute or delinquent, if those instutitions are providing suitable care up to proper standards. Somehow, a mysterious change occurs when provision of ordinary services such as bus transportation, general texts, or outright grants per capita to children attending other than public schools is mentioned.

Suddenly, this is government mixing up with religion. The government is not equitably distributing equitably collected taxes to enable parents to see to the proper and complete education of their children, as the parents see it; the government is supporting religion, crossing that line which makes the Iron Curtain look diaphanous by comparison.

OBVIOUSLY, these correspondents would prefer direct payment to parents of funds to be applied to the school of choice, provided certain objective standards in education are met. As citizens we believe those institutions which supply more than this are going beyond the call of duty, and are pumping moral and cultural richness into our society. This is true whether they be Protestant, Catholic, or Hebrew private schools; they are keeping alive the spluttering flame of deep religious orientation in a religiously indifferent and cultural impoverished invironment.

As for such things as bus transportation, were it not for the distrust of so many of religious "fanaticism," and fear of letting any of the so-far successfully repressed "minorities" get an upper hand, it would take no person of even moderate justice long to see the unfairness of the present system. (Our child walks a mile to get his bus, for which we must pay $100 yearly; in our side drive, all the youngsters in the block around pick up their bus for a two mile ride for nothing. Unless you count our tax money.)

We believe the day is coming when men of good will will be able to see these things. We could wish our new President agreed with us; but then, if he did, he might never have gotten to the White House.

MEANWHILE, citizens who want more for their children than reading, writing, and 'rithmetic in the hours when teachers stand in loco parentis, will continue to bear the unfair burdens, and even cheerfully, because others often, truly, "know not what they do." Some day they will, and the situation will improve.

Vehicle Tax Defeat Was 'Technical'

The petition to bring the vehicle tax increase to a vote of the people was denied by the court, not because the petition itself was faulty, not because there was anything wrong with the signatures of either the signers or the notary but because of a minor technicality which in itself was not sufficient to deny the rights of the people in a commission form of government.

Political foes of the rights of the people always have the advantage of having money and legal advice available to them to suppress the inherent right of the people to petition. It was this lack of money that denied the people their right to have their voices heard and their wishes approved.

How one man can still the voices of 632 people, or 60 per cent of the electorate, and deny them their constitutiona, prerogative, is a subject for consideration and a good deal of thought by all peoples of all communities.

Is Suburban Government Victim of Political Panic

The injection of national political parties into the affairs of township, city, village, fire district, school district and park district government has been the subject of many meetings and much prose in these last few weeks. This problem is one that deserves the very close attention of the entire voting public.

There are two basic questions that should be examined. What has motivated this recent interest in this century old problem, and what are the relative merits of the two approaches?

In answer to the first question, the fact is obvious to all who have read the recent prose and heard the arguments. The Republican party has just been the victim of three major defeats, in Cook county, the state and the nation. They have to live with at least these next two years without patronage and little power. Many Republican leaders are planning to remedy the situation by developing better candidates and better bounty, state and national organization, but others are looking to the tantalizing plum of local government to fill the vacuum. The cry to exploit this only remaining source of political power in our county can now be heard in all of the suburban areas of Cook county.

IT IS AN historical fact that both parties have found it difficult to resist the temptation to exploit and use local government for their broader purposes. There have been many abortive attempts made and even temporary successes achieved by both parties in this area, but with constant effort, today, local government in Illinois remains predominantly independent and uncontrolled. Rolling Meadows has seen a recent attempt by one of the parties to invade its fire district, but Democrats, Republicans and Independents alike in our local government united and were successful in preventing it.

It would be politically false and naive for anyone to think that only one of the parties is attempting to devour the local political plum, they both have been attempting it for over a century. At this particular point in our County's history, the Republican Party is the one that has the greatest immediate need in the minds of many of its leaders to salvage whatever political power it can through local government.

THE QUESTION of merit is one that only can be answered by what either system can do for local governments. Local government unencumbered by national politics has survived in Illinois for many valid reasons. Most people are in closest touch with their city or town governments, because this level of government produces the successes or failures that are most easily seen by us, and because they regulate our activity more closely and immediately in our day to day activity than any other. Local government is a strong source of our pride and sometimes our shame. It is this closeness that has caused a large group of talented political independents to devote their energies and time to our problems.

The independence of local government has made it possible for its ship to sail an even course through many different county and state administrations without fear of prejudice or of favoritism. Rolling Meadows has received a new Kirchoff road from a Democratic administration, a toll road access from a Republican administration, new sanitary sewers from a Demorcratic administration and marvelous cooperation in sales tax investigations under a Republican administration. We can point to failures on both sides too.

Rolling Meadows, like most communities, has been the beneficiary of the talents and energies of its adminstrative personnel who have been chosen for their ability and not their vote production potential.

A Republican city administration could perhaps enhance our local success in joint projects when dealing with county or state Republican administrations, but what benefit will we receive when it is faced with a Democratic county and state administration. The same is true in reverse. It seems to me to be absurd to talk of the sanctity of the national parties as the medium of expression of American opinion on all levels of government, and in the same breath to talk about one of the parties in terms of the "cancerous growth of Mayor Daley's political machine." This political paradox ignores reality and faults and merits on both sides, and no one will cure this so-called "cancer" by creating a new one in the suburbs.

THERE IS nothing in the dogma or philosophy of either party that will help us determine whether or not we should remodel an old building for our city hall or build a new one. How would they guide us in determining the speed limit for Campbell street? Since the parties can make no philosophical contribution to the solution of our local problems, what can they do for us? They can use our purchasing power to gain political favor; they can use the power of appointment to acquire personnel who can bring in votes but ruin our physical plant or police protection. They will not bring us better candidates, but they will discourage many independents from attempting the costly campaigns necessary to buck the patronage replete national political party.

In summary, panic has caused the resurgence of this old argument, and history has shown us that small local governments prosper by independence and gain nothing from serving as battle grounds for the power struggles of the national parties.

I find it very reassuring, as a man with strong national political beliefs known by all who know me, to be a participant in Mayor Woods' administration and the Peoples Economy party in Rolling Meadows, neither of which have ever held national party affiliation as prerequisite for appointment or membership. Of the six aldermanic candidates recently announced by the Peoples Economy party of 1961, I know the national political beliefs of only one, and he only because he is a close personal friend of long standing. John Woods is an outstanding example of an independent who has dedicated himself to local government.

AS A POSTSCRIPT I might add a point which has been mentioned to show that the Rolling Meadows administration is concerned with other than local problems. A number of Rolling Meadows officials lent their names to an ad solicited by a citizens group sponsoring the candidacy of Governor Kerner. Why did we do this? Governor Kerner promised to solve one of our most pressing local problems, the re-routing of Route 53; he convinced us he believes in close city and state cooperation, and we believe we reflected the desires of most Rolling Madows citizens regardless of party belief. I know that I personally, as will others, shall support George W. Howes, a Reublican, in his bid for re-election as Palatine Town Collector. I know and appreciate the cooperation and consideration he has given to our city. These men we support as individuals because of their interest in Rolling Meadows.

I appreciate this opportunity to express these rather lengthy opinions; I am speaking only for myself and hope you share my views on this vital issue.

Tax Funds Assist Majority: Reader

The writer, a resident of Arlington Heights for many years, feels compelled to answer the confused lady, Mrs. Pat Sunagel, who had her letter in the Fence Post on January 19.

Any thinking person knows the statement that alcoholics, drug addiction, prostitution or illegitimacy are not now, or ever were, qualifications for favor in disbursement of tax money or service. In fact, use of tax funds for any such purpose by any individual will cause them to be cut off from such government help.

My wife and I, over a period of years, have taken care of children who were wards of the juvenile court and were paid a small sum for each child. We have spent many times more on the children we cared for than the small sum of tax money we received from the court, and were happy to do so. Yes, some of these children were so called illegitimate; however, today many who we still see are fine upstanding citizens. So please don't begrudge these unfortunates a small share of your hard-earned money.

ON THE subject of some people avoiding or not paying their share of taxes, Mrs. Sunagel mentions among others she knows, relatives who don't pay personal property taxes. Perhaps if she would point out to them that beside being illegal in the non-payment, they also cause her share to be higher than her just proportions. It would be a more sensible approach to tax reduction than just complaining about it to tell them so.

On the bus facilities to take her children free to a private school, this just doesn't make sense.

Any government based as ours is, on the needs of the majority of the people, can never hope to provide public facilities to all private institutions that desire it.

Should this happen, it then becomes public tax facilities for the minority, instead of the majority, and one only has to look at such places as China, Russia and Cuba to see what happens in such use of all the public funds.

IN CONCLUSION, dear lady, please don't be so unhappy in your situation. It could be that under a different system of government, your children would not need a school bus at all, but would be allowed to work in the fields or factory for the benefit of the few who would tell you, not ask you, how you want to live.

Partisan Politics Enter Local Scene

Your recent editorial entitled "Local Government Is Hurt by Partisan Politics" points up several facts of purely local government which suburban residents have understood and accepted for years.

We depend upon our local units of government principally to provide the basic services—security for our homes and property, safety for our person and our families, and fair and impartial settlement of our local disputes. These basic services are not matters for partisan controversy or political control.

WHAT POLITICAL control can do to these basic services has been demonstrated by our nearby and most familiar metropolis. A partisan approach to essential services in Chicago has often been a matter of national disgrace.

Of course, we all recognize that there are areas of important political choice for Americans. I happen to prefer the Republican approach to political questions, but certainly the providing of basic services in our local communities is not a political question. It should not be made one.

As a trial lawyer aware of the continuing need for judicial reform, I am particularly concerned about one of the basic community services at stake in our Spring elections. That relates to our courts. A non-partisan judiciary is essential to the orderly administration of justice, especially at the local level. Therefore, the recent decision in a few of our townships to make our courts political and to run judges on a strictly partisan basis is most alarming. It represents a decided backward step in the administration of justice and law.

Club Future Important

First, may I compliment you on an excellent editorial which appeared in the Mount Prospect Herald (January 12) titled "Club Future Vital Issue." I should think that every citizen in and around Mount Prospect would be vitally concerned about this problem in terms of a community and civic interest.

I have strongly opposed some of your past articles that have dealt with the life and loves of one Richard Hauff. There are some who may look upon these articles as favorable publicity even though I am sure they were written with tongue in cheek. I do not think I am in the minority when I express the opinion that this kind of deceitful and hoodlum element must be exposed for everyone to see. If the laws of our community and the trusted officials do not have enough power to deal with the control and elimination of this kind of undesirable, then I think the press and the individual citizen must focus strength to deal with it. Public opinion in a decent community with the help of the press could have a great effect—at least it is our white hope.

TOO MANY of us have invested our family futures in this community to sit by and allow honesty and decency be replaced, as you so well put it, by a watering trough for Rush street cronies.

Some action certainly should be taken before the grass starts growing again on the greens.

Letters to the Fence Post

Palatine Reader Answers Critic of Civil Defense

I read with some interest the letter from Mr. Reynolds of Evanston in last week's Fence Post, and I wonder if we shouldn't pursue this point further. So, to Mr. Reynolds, here are a few more points to consider:

1) Let's disband all of our police forces immediately. These organizations have also been violating the truth in telling us that we can survive such things as holidays weekends, drinking binges and the like, also by fostering the illusion that there is definitely a criminal element—in fact, they have created one. I say, let's get rid of these people and let things return to the way they really should be.

2) This church bit has been carried too far. Also, for years I have been hearing that I should be preparing for the end and guard against evil and all that sort of nonsense. Don't they realize that they are increasing the likelihood of immorality and evilness by doing this? It's a darn shame.

DIDN'T THAT sound ridiculous, Mr. Reynolds? And the statement that you made in last week's Fence Post seemed to me to be just as ridiculous. Sure, I'll go along with that civil defense is probably, in a general way, a part of the concept of war, but to say that by teaching or promoting civil defense preparedness that you are promoting or surrendering to a concept of killing millions and to infer that survival is something that you cannot believe in is wrong Mr. Reynolds, dead wrong.

By doing this openly, you are the one who is promoting an idea that can cause millions of people to meet death needlessly, and if we were a nation of people who had the idea that civil defense was needless, you can rest assured that the seeds of destruction would bloom into full flower throughout our country.

The good Lord was indeed good to you and me, Mr. Reynolds. Our nation has never yet had to dig itself out from the rubble and pain of an enemy attack and it has never had to feed and clothe countless thousands who were made homeless and hungry by the bombs of an aggressor, and I, like you, sincerely pray and hope that this shall never come to pass. But I don't delude myself, as you have done, and I don't believe that by preparing myself and my family for survival and helping as many others in my community as I can that I am paving the way for a holocaust.

I BELIEVE that what I am doing is buying a little insurance for myself and the future, and I'm learning too, Mr. Reynolds. I'm learning that civil defense isn't just for when the bombs fall and it's not just a social club designed to further the enjoyment or break the boredom of those who belong to it.

It is a living organization designed to give the community aid and assistance during times of extreme stress, not just war, but floods, fires and tornadoes. These are with us now and if it should come to pass that there is another war and we are attacked, where are you going to go, Mr. Reynolds? To whom are you going to turn?

You can put your mind at ease, as I happen to know that Evanston has one of the best civil defense set-ups in the country and one of the largest underground shelters in Illinois. In fact, Evanston is supposed to be entirely self-sufficient in case of an attack, or did you know that?

MR. REYNOLDS, that is about all I can say in answer to your letter, except that I hope that the others who read it took it the same way I did and will go on supporting their local civil defense programs and maybe buy themselves survival insurance and get interested in civil defense.

I hope you don't take point one too seriously—I'm a police officer.

Urge World War I Veterans to Join Barracks in Area

There is a current appeal, which is being made by the national commander of World War I veterans to area veterans that of swelling the membership of all World War I barracks.

Purpose of the appeal, in short, is for buddies to help their buddies. This, it is felt, can be done by a larger number of members working toward putting through a pension plan for the World War I veterans.

There are barracks in almost every area - for the Paddock area there is one in Bensenville and one that meets in Rolling Meadows. Dues are $5.

Parochial School Problem Has 'Awakened' Parents

Mrs. Sunagel's letter in last week's FENCE POST raised many interesting points, which I would like to discuss separately.

First, the "government-favored individuals," such as dope-addicts, alcholics, and other adult as well as juvenile delinquents belong in the realm of "dependents," whether for moral, emotional, or physical reasons. No one would wish to trade independence and self-determination, for liberty from taxation and eligibility for local or federal welfare funds.

SECOND, the personal property tax is hopelessly unenforceable, as well as unjust in too many respects to enumerate. Citizens would be well advised to seek its repeal as soon as possible under the new administration. There are other, more equitable ways or raising taxes necessary to run the complex but necessary operation of government and expansion of community services.

Third, the shock of having to pay high bus fares has awakened many a sleeping Catholic to the inequities of treatment inherent in a particular way of interpretating "separation of church and state." While Catholics were largely urban, living within three-quarters of a mile of any parish school, as the public school children did, paying for building the church and school did not seem quite as burdensome. In addition, property and other taxes were proportionately lower than they are today. Now, with the tax picture presented by Mrs. Sunagel's letter, the further necessity of building educational plants at least roughly comparable to the public system, and transporting the youngsters safely at a cost which (in elementary school, at least) is greater than the monthly tuition per child - now the family budget is not only strained, it is split wide open.

The solution to this dilemma lies, some would have it, in closing the parochial schools of whatever denomination and sending all children to the "free" public schools. No one seriously believes this to be an honest solution. Everyone is aware that the per capita cost of ordinary private school education is much less than that of public school, largely because of the low, almost "room and board" allowance given to the teaching nuns and brothers. Private schools seem to be to some people an insult to public schools, "undemocratic" being the usual charge. Those who set themselves above others can jolly well pay the freight. People of this sort, either consciously or otherwise, view "democracy" as a religion, and it would be a compulsory "state religion," if they had their way, to which all would pay obeisance by sending their children to the "state" schools. Denying funds to parents who find defects in the system conducted by the state as a convenience to citizens, is a form of civic blackmail whose legality is going to come under serious scrutiny as private citizens with concern for the broader training of their children, begin to investigate their rights.

PARENTS have a prior right to decide the suitable education for their children. The state, in its capacity as the agent and assistant to the citizen in doing for all those things which each cannot individually accomplish, has the right, and the duty, to supply for all citizens, through equitable collected revenues, services and operations necessary to the common good. The state can, and must, in a democracy, demand education and training suitable for enlightened citizens who will one day be responsible voters. The state cannot, and may not, prescribe that in order to participate in public funds, religiously "neutral" institutions shall be the necessary educational climate.

Yet this is the interpretation of the Constitution which many hold. They do not hold it religious aid to provide health examinations for all children, Protestant, Catholic, or Jew, in or on their own educational premises. They do not hold it unconstitutional to pay funds to private institutions for care of the destitute or delinquent, if those instutitions are providing suitable care up to proper standards. Somehow, a mysterious change occurs when provision of ordinary services such as bus transportation, general texts, or outright grants per capita to children attending other than public schools is mentioned.

Suddenly, this is government mixing up with religion. The government is not equitably distributing equitably collected taxes to enable parents to see to the proper and complete education of their children, as the parents see it; the government is supporting religion, crossing that line which makes the Iron Curtain look diaphanous by comparison.

OBVIOUSLY, these correspondents would prefer direct payment to parents of funds to be applied to the school of choice, provided certain objective standards in education are met. As citizens we believe those institutions which supply more than this are going beyond the call of duty, and are pumping moral and cultural richness into our society. This is true whether they be Protestant, Catholic, or Hebrew private schools; they are keeping alive the spluttering flame of deep religious orientation in a religiously indifferent and cultural impoverished environment.

As for such things as bus transportation, were it not for the distrust of so many of religious "fanaticism," and fear of letting any of the so-far successfully repressed "minorities" get an upper hand, it would take no person of even moderate justice long to see the unfairness of the present system. (Our child walks a mile to get his bus, for which we must pay $100 yearly; in our side drive, all the youngsters in the block around pick up their bus for a two mile ride for nothing. Unless you count our tax money.)

We believe the day is coming when men of good will will be able to see these things. We could wish our new President agreed with us; but then, if he did, he might never have gotten to the White House.

MEANWHILE, citizens who want more for their children than reading, writing, and 'rithmetic in the hours when teachers stand in loco parentis, will continue to bear the unfair burdens, and even cheerfully, because others often, truly, "know not what they do." Some day they will, and the situation will improve.

Vehicle Tax Defeat Was 'Technical'

The petition to bring the vehicle tax increase to a vote of the people was denied by the court, not because the petition itself was faulty, not because there was anything wrong with the signatures of either the signers or the notary but because of a minor technicality which in itself was not sufficient to deny the rights of the people in a commission form of government.

Political foes of the rights of the people always have the advantage of having money and legal advice available to them to suppress the inherent right of the people to petition. It was this lack of money that denied the people their right to have their voices heard and their wishes approved.

How one man can still the voices of 632 people, or 60 per cent of the electorate, and deny them their constitutiona, prerogative, is a subject for consideration and a good deal of thought by all peoples of all communities.

Is Suburban Government Victim of Political Panic

The injection of national political parties into the affairs of township, city, village, fire district, school district and park district government has been the subject of many meetings and much prose in these last few weeks. This problem is one that deserves the very close attention of the entire voting public.

There are two basic questions that should be examined. What has motivated this recent interest in this century old problem, and what are the relative merits of the two approaches?

In answer to the first question, the fact is obvious to all who have read the recent prose and heard the arguments. The Republican party has just been the victim of three major defeats, in Cook county, the state and the nation. They have to live with at least these next two years without patronage and little power. Many Republican leaders are planning to remedy the situation by developing better candidates and better bounty, state and national organization, but others are looking to the tantalizing plum of local government to fill the vacuum. The cry to exploit this only remaining source of political power in our county can now be heard in all of the suburban areas of Cook county.

IT IS AN historical fact that both parties have found it difficult to resist the temptation to exploit and use local government for their broader purposes. There have been many abortive attempts made and even temporary successes achieved by both parties in this area, but with constant effort, today, local government in Illinois remains predominantly independent and uncontrolled. Rolling Meadows has seen a recent attempt by one of the parties to invade its fire district, but Democrats, Republicans and Independents alike in our local government united and were successful in preventing it.

It would be politically false and naive for anyone to think that only one of the parties is attempting to devour the local political plum, they both have been attempting it for over a century. At this particular point in our County's history, the Republican Party is the one that has the greatest immediate need in the minds of many of its leaders to salvage whatever political power it can through local government.

THE QUESTION of merit is one that only can be answered by what either system can do for local governments. Local government unencumbered by national politics has survived in Illinois for many valid reasons. Most people are in closest touch with their city or town governments, because this level of government produces the successes or failures that are most easily seen by us, and because they regulate our activity more closely and immediately in our day to day activity than any other. Local government is a strong source of our pride and sometimes our shame. It is this closeness that has caused a large group of talented political independents to devote their energies and time to our problems.

The independence of local government has made it possible for its ship to sail an even course through many different county and state administrations without fear of prejudice or of favoritism. Rolling Meadows has received a new Kirchoff road from a Democratic administration, a toll road access from a Republican administration, new sanitary sewers from a Demorcratic administration and marvelous cooperation in sales tax investigations under a Republican administration. We can point to failures on both sides too.

Rolling Meadows, like most communities, has been the beneficiary of the talents and energies of its adminstrative personnel who have been chosen for their ability and not their vote production potential.

A Republican city administration could perhaps enhance our local success in joint projects when dealing with county or state Republican administrations, but what benefit will we receive when it is faced with a Democratic county and state administration. The same is true in reverse. It seems to me to be absurd to talk of the sanctity of the national parties as the medium of expression of American opinion on all levels of government, and in the same breath to talk about one of the parties in terms of the "cancerous growth of Mayor Daley's political machine." This political paradox ignores reality and faults and merits on both sides, and no one will cure this so-called "cancer" by creating a new one in the suburbs.

THERE IS nothing in the dogma or philosophy of either party that will help us determine whether or not we should remodel an old building for our city hall or build a new one. Letters to the Fence Post

Foreign-Born Suburbanite Persecuted by Neighbors

Why? Why? Why? That seems to be the only question I can ask myself. Why are people so cruel?

Yesterday afternoon I was visiting a neighbor, whom we shall call Mrs. Z., when her phone rang. Now, this may not seem strange to you, and it didn't to us either at the time. However, upon answering the phone and attempting to distinguish who was calling amid cat calls, music blaring and other disturbances coming over this magnificent instrument of communication, we discovered this call was a cruel joke, making fun of Mrs. Z. and her family.

Some of you may say, "So? What's so bad about that, happens every day." Well, I'll tell you. Mrs. Z. is not an American-born native. When she was young, she and her family fled their native country and came to America to find liberty and freedom and to start a new life in this great land of ours. Instead, they met with nothing but prejudice and injustice from us, the great American people.

YOU MAY THINK the call was made by juvenile delinquents, but I assure you, it was not. The call was made by a group of "women," how many we do not know. These "women," I am ashamed to say, are the neighbors of Mrs. Z. and myself.

When the "ladies" were informed that we saw through their little farce of pretending to be the new neighbors of Mrs. Z., they said they were sorry. Let me say that I am the one who is sorry, sorry for them. Sorry that their lives are so empty and petty that this is the only way they can get their kicks out of life, by tormenting and making fun of people. May I say this is not the only call of this nature that Mrs. Z. has received.

We speak of juvenile delinquents. Well, in my opinion, these "ladies" are adult delinquents. How can we expect our children to grow up and be outstanding citizens when we, as adults, set such an example for them? We can't just say, "Do as we say, don't do as we do." Children aren't like that.

Maybe these "ladies" should go down to the Southern states and join the mobs and the riots and work this need to persecute people out of their systems. Then when they come back up here, they may be able to live like civilized human beings.

SO, NEIGHBORS, let us not forget about that little bronze statue, I think they call her "the Goddess of Liberty," which stands on a little hunk of ground called Bedloe Island in New York harbor. I am sure it represents something, but I am afraid too many of us have forgotten what it does represent.

In closing let me say I am sorry, Mrs. Z., sorry for all the prejudices and injustices you have received since you arrived in this country. Sorry that people must be so cruel to you. I know you have told me that your heart is hardened to these cruelties and people can't hurt you anymore, but my heart is not hardened, and it hurts and sickens me to think that these "average intelligent American housewives" from a supposedly above average suburb of Chicago have tried to hurt you, just because you have an accent and perhaps are a little bit different.

As you know, Mrs. Z., we are new residents of Arlington Heights, and this incident has made me wish that my husband had not worked so hard for our daughter and myself in order to buy a home in this town. But let me say, Mrs. Z., that we are extremely fortunate to have a neighbor as sweet, kind and gentle as you, and we sincerely hope we may call you our friend.

You must forgive these cruel "women," Mrs. Z., and simply say as Jesus said on the cross, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."

Erroneous Impression Corrected

Your page-one article January 12 about the April elections gave the people in this area an erroneous impression of the construction and purpose of the District 21 School Caucus Committee.

The Caucus membership consists of representatives from many organizations in Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, and surrounding areas including the four Parent-Teacher Associations. Its purpose is to provide for candidates for the Board of Education. At no time will the Caucus enter in village board elections of Buffalo Grove or Wheeling.

A CLARIFICATION on your part can save us the task of explaining the article numerous times to the confused public. It would appear in order to avoid future confusion that you use separate columns for each election.

Thank you for publizing the articles referring to the Caucus and the school board. Your goals and ours are the same—an enlightened public and good schools.

Red Sympathizers Criticize Movie

In the editorial page of the January 12 issue of the Mount Prospect Herald, there appears an article which, in effect, condemns the work of the House committee of un-American activities and the motion picture film which it has produced entitled "Operation Abolition."

Having recently seen the film, which admittedly was edited to avoid needless repetition, I find it difficult to conceive how anyone other than a sympathizer of the Communist cause can be critical of the obvious purpose of the film which is to show how the young people of this country are being influenced by a small group of hard core Communists who are determined to overthrow the government of the United States.

PERHAPS the exact chronology of events which occurred during the hearings in San Francisco were not in perfect sequence. It appears to me that this is not the important point. The important issue is what should be done to suppress the activities of witnesses called before the committee who openly and brazenly defy the United States government and its free institutions. Also, all Americans must give serious thought to what is happening to the minds of many of our college students. The riots in San Francisco against a duly constituted investigating body of the Congress of the United States, which were obviously inspired by a few Communists, is enough to make one sick.

Instead of condemning the work of the House un-American activities committee and criticizing the editing of "Operation Abolition," you would do a much greater service to the community by pointing out the threats to our government and our freedom which "Operation Abolition" so well portrays for the benefit of all who will have the opportunity of seeing it.

Let People Judge, Urges Candidate

The decision to accept the nomination of the Taxpayer's party to run for the office of J.P. has been difficult to make. When a man accepts the offer to run for an office, he also accepts the responsibilities which that office could place upon him. The low salary set up by the county board has had a bad effect.

Some men, who have done a good job at personal sacrifice to their own families to render a good service for their communities, have been discouraged.

At the same time, I believe the county board is right in wanting to limit the number of J.P.'s in the county. A justice of the peace could then have a substantial living wage and devote full or almost full time to the job.

HOWEVER desirable this may be, local practical politics is against this. As it stands now, seven men were working for the three Republican nominations in our district—how much would they be hurt if there was only one job?

It has been my contention that it is the duty of our Du-Page County Bar association and the lawyers of our county to improve the quality of the judicial administration.

So the problem becomes one of whether or not the spoils system rather than an opportunity for public service controls. The legislature has attempted by setting up districts and the county board by limiting the number of justices to stop some of the appalling conditions found. I, for one, would hate to see our district take a slip backwards instead of forward in the battle to obtain a higher quality of judicial administration—so we will offer our services and let the people be the judge.

Film Criticism Is Rapped by Reader

I wish to protest against the inferences put forth in your paper's article on the film, "Operation Abolition." It is not the House Committee on Un-American Activities which is suffering a goundswell of public revolt, but the activities of the Commies, their fellow-travelers and dupes.

The film shows men leading a disturbance. Will anyone deny that those leaders in the camera's eye are the people described by name and past affiliation with Un-American organizations? Will anyone deny that they created such a disturbance that a lawfully assembled Congressional committee and the local courts were hindered from carrying on their business in a public building? This is the message of the film. It proves that a handful of agitators can dupe a thousand Americans into doing their unsavory work.

THE CRITICISM that scenes are not shown in chronological order is completely irrelevant. The picture would have just as much impact on a patriotic American if it were run BACKWARDS. As to a complaining quotation from ONE minister, I am sure that thousands of ministers support the work of the committee. As to Congressman Roosevelt's views, the Congress has voted funds for Un-American Activities committees since 1930, making the committee a standing one in 1946. That certainly demonstrates the views of the majority. J. Edgar Hoover, before the House Committee On Un-American Activities said, "I have always felt that the greatest contribution this committee could make is the public disclosure of the forces that menace America—Communist and Fascist." The film shows that operations used in Korea and Japan can be worked here unless these tactics are disclosed for all to see.

Those who haven't seen the film would do well to ask their local patriotic organizations to arrange a showing and see for themselves where our danger really lies.

Ham Radio Controversy Still Rages

Hurrah! My letter is being read. The one thing that I was hoping for. Mrs. H. Johnson's "rebuttal" is a classic. She has outclassed herself by taking on a subject of which she knows nothing. She has told me nothing on how it is to live next to a ham for I did, and had TVI, but I fixed it without raising an unnecessary stink.

I have spent years learning electronics and make my living with it. Even though I know the answer on the hows and whys of TVI and how to solve it (it can be fixed) I find it next to impossible to explain it in a few words, after all it took me years, how then could she learn in one newspaper article

I WOULDN'T bother with a rebuttal, charge for charge, as the technical language that would be used would not be understood. I do have one question, what has children going to bed after 9:30 or 10 o'clock have to do with TVI? As far as listening to a onesided conversation with an electrical device, I do. Many hours on end I am unable to enjoy my choice of entertainment due to a sewing machine or similar device. She could take a course in electronics and read some of the rules of the F.C.C. act of 1934.

Investigation has revealed that the two stations near her are not amateur stations alone, but citizens band stations operating in a different part of the radio frequency sprectrum. All we want ma'm is the facts, just the facts ma'm. I suggest strongly that she file a complaint with the F.C.C. and resolve this problem once and for all rather than talk about it.

Un-American Activities Committee Wins Plaudits

It is necessary in truth to answer William Dulaney's column, "Operation Abolition."

Mr. Dulaney would like the House Un-American Activities committee abolished. He knows that those who feel as he, might be called Communists. I won't call him a Communist—I will call him a woefully-uninformed writer.

The Constitution of the United States says (Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 1 and 18): "The Congress shall have the Power to provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States."

"TO MAKE laws, which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers. . . ."

Congress has the same right through its investigative committees to expose the Communist infiltration into every segment of our society.

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the F.B.I., in a letter to the chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, writes, "Your committee's role in safeguarding our freedom is well known to every patriotic citizen, and real Americans are not fooled or misled by efforts to discredit your vital task."

Mr. Dulaney takes a look at the movie, "Operation Abolition," a product of the HCUA and quotes the Christian Century.

The movie, it seems, contains inaccuracies and distortions. The question before us is, Does the movie tell the truth or does it lie when it shows the riots in San Francisco last May were inspired and led by the Communists? Mr. Hoover states as follows: It is vitally important to set the record straight on the extent to which Communists were responsible for the disgraceful and riotous conditions which prevailed during the HCUA hearing. The riots were the most successful Communist coup to occur in the San Francisco area in 25 years. The Communist attack on the HCUA in San Francisco was in line with a long-standing party aim to destroy, not only the HCUA, but also, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee and every other enemy seeking to expose the threat which Communist activities represent to the internal security of the nation."

MR. DULANEY finds the HCUA employs inquisitional techniques. I can find no proof for this statement. Perhaps, Mr. Dulaney can supply some concrete proof, such as a list of names of people who have been insulted, smeared and ruined by this committee.

The House Committee of Un-American Activities is the only official source Americans have of finding out the truth about Communist infiltration. The reports of the hearings can be obtained by anyone from the Government Printed Office for a few cents. WE ARE NOW ENGAGED IN A STRUGGLE TO THE DEATH WITH COMMUNISM. It is their aim to bury us. One way to assist them, is to silence the investigating committees of our Congress. It won't be long after that takes place that reporters like Mr. Dulaney will lull the people to sleep, so we will fall without a fight.

Letters to the Fence Post

Foreign-Born Suburbanite Persecuted by Neighbors

Why? Why? Why? That seems to be the only question I can ask myself. Why are people so cruel?

Yesterday afternoon I was visiting a neighbor, whom we shall call Mrs. Z., when her phone rang. Now, this may not seem strange to you, and it didn't to us either at the time. However, upon answering the phone and attempting to distinguish who was calling amid cat calls, music blaring and other disturbances coming over this magnificent instrument of communication, we discovered this call was a cruel joke, making fun of Mrs. Z. and her family.

Some of you may say, "So? What's so bad about that, happens every day." Well, I'll tell you. Mrs. Z. is not an American-born native. When she was young, she and her family fled their native country and came to America to find liberty and freedom and to start a new life in this great land of ours. Instead, they met with nothing but prejudice and injustice from us, the great American people.

YOU MAY THINK the call was made by juvenile delinquents, but I assure you, it was not. The call was made by a group of "women," how many we do not know. These "women," I am ashamed to say, are the neighbors of Mrs. Z. and myself.

When the "ladies" were informed that we saw through their little farce of pretending to be the new neighbors of Mrs. Z., they said they were sorry. Let me say that I am the one who is sorry, sorry for them. Sorry that their lives are so empty and petty that this is the only way they can get their kicks out of life, by tormenting and making fun of people. May I say this is not the only call of this nature that Mrs. Z. has received.

We speak of juvenile delinquents. Well, in my opinion, these "ladies" are adult delinquents. How can we expect our children to grow up and be outstanding citizens when we, as adults, set such an example for them? We can't just say, "Do as we say, don't do as we do." Children aren't like that.

Maybe these "ladies" should go down to the Southern states and join the mobs and the riots and work this need to persecute people out of their systems. Then when they come back up here, they may be able to live like civilized human beings.

SO, NEIGHBORS, let us not forget about that little bronze statue, I think they call her "the Goddess of Liberty," which stands on a little hunk of ground called Bedloe Island in New York harbor. I am sure it represents something, but I am afraid too many of us have forgotten what it does represent.

In closing let me say I am sorry, Mrs. Z., sorry for all the prejudices and injustices you have received since you arrived in this country. Sorry that people must be so cruel to you. I know you have told me that your heart is hardened to these cruelties and people can't hurt you anymore, but my heart is not hardened, and it hurts and sickens me to think that these "average intelligent American housewives" from a supposedly above average suburb of Chicago have tried to hurt you, just because you have an accent and perhaps are a little bit different.

Mt. Prospect Minister's Wife Finds Cooking Pleasant Task

by LOIS SEILER

Being the busy wife of a minister as well as mother of two small sons, Mrs. David Noreen of Mount Prospect has many duties and responsibilities. But her obligations don't hamper her culinary activities one bit; rather they are an inducement to do more than the ordinary amount of cooking and baking, for many are the friends who are welcomed at their pastor's house.

And because this cheerful young woman loves to cook and considers it a hobby rather than a chore, she has accumulated many excellent recipes, a few of which are being featured today.

ONE recipe Mrs. Noreen has served for ladies luncheons, but finds equally nice for family meals, is an unusual combination of browned pork, onions and celery baked in a casserole with rice, cream of chicken soup and chopped green pepper.

Topped with buttered Ritz Cracker crumbs, it is a tasty dish which needs only a salad and rolls as accompaniments.

Mrs. Noreen's Orange Muffins are a delightful flavor complement for this casserole. Simple to prepare, the muffins contain raisins as well as grated orange rind and are spread with an orange juice topping while still hot. They are nice for morning coffees, too, and are a delicious breakfast treat!

ONE OF this capable cook's favorite salads is a refreshing Strawberry Jello Mold. This colorful salad has a layer of sour cream and mashed bananas molded between two layers of strawberry jello, studded with crushed pineapple and frozen strawberries. It is served with a tart fruit salad dressing.

And for dessert Mrs. Noreen has a recipe which she terms a "real favorite." Called a Pineapple Torte, it has a butter-sugar-flour crust which is baked, heaped with a pineapple filling and returned to the oven for an additional baking period. This delectable dessert is stored in the refrigerator and served topped with whipped cream.

MRS. NOREEN prepares the Pineapple Torte a day ahead, and it will serve 15.

All of Mrs. Noreen's outside activities are centered around the Northwest Covenant church, of which her husband is the minister. She is a member of the Womens fellowship, the Cradle Roll committee, the church choir and is a youth counselor for the Hi League.

Pastor and Mrs. Noreen reside at 303 N. Eastwood in Mt. Prospect. Their two sons are Jerry, 3½, and Kenny, who is 22 months old.

LITTLE TOTS as well as adults enjoy a flavorful jello salad, and Jerry Noreen eagerly awaits a sample while his brother, Kenny, takes a taste. Their mother, Mrs. David Noreen of Mt. Prospect, is about to spread the topping on a delicious Strawberry Jello Mold which has a middle layer of mashed bananas and sour cream. It is an excellent accompaniment for a luncheon which features an unusual casserole called Rice Gloria and tempting orange muffins. (SH

High C Tempters

Youngsters take to citrus fruits — especially the ones they can peel easily and eat without adult help, like tangerines, tangelos and Temple oranges. These tempters are in good supply now from Florida so keep the fruit bowl filled and within easy reach of young and old alike.

THE THREE delightful Florida fruits have several things in common. All peel and section neatly for out-of-hand eating and yet can double in fruit cups and salads if desired.

All are low in seeds but high in flavor and vitamin C, the daily-needed vitamin especially important this time of year to help ward off winter weariness and respiratory ailments.

YOU WILL FIND them in local markets from now thru March, just when their bright orange color and refreshing taste is so welcome.

The aromatic tangerine is probably the most familiar of the three, long known as the kid-glove fruit because of the way it slips out of its peel.

Tangelos are a cross between a tangerine and a grapefruit, combining the best features of each and resembling an orange!

The Temple is a thin-skinned eating orange with flavor similar to a tangerine. All are sweet enough to satisfy a child's sweet-tooth and yet nutritionally so good! (SH

What To Carry With Soup

Many folks who carry lunch to work or school each day, find that hot soup is especially welcome during the winter months.

Soup in itself is so readily available and in such variety that anyone can carry his or her favorite in a thermos to keep it hot and good until lunchtime.

HOWEVER, to get additional pleasure from soup with the carried meal, take something with it in the lunch box that will be crisp and add that certain something to the meal.

Package some of the following in the clear, new economy lunch-box wrap to keep them protected. Then when lunch time is at hand, open the package of garnish to eat with or on the soup.

Bean Soup—Croutons
Pea Soup—Popcorn
Corn Chowder—Crumbled, Crisp Bacon
Vegetable Soup—Corn Chips
Mushroom Soup — Pretzel Sticks
Clam Chowder—Cheese Sticks

This list could go on but perhaps the ones given here will spark other ideas. Be sure, though, to wrap the garnishes. New lunch box wrap does this job very well.

Mt. Prospect Minister's Wife Finds Cooking Pleasant Task

SUCCESSFUL HOMEMAKING

by LOIS SEILER

Being the busy wife of a minister as well as mother of two small sons, Mrs. David Noreen of Mount Prospect has many duties and responsibilities. But her obligations don't hamper her culinary activities one bit; rather they are an inducement to do more than the ordinary amount of cooking and baking, for many are the friends who are welcomed at their pastor's house.

And because this cheerful young woman loves to cook and considers it a hobby rather than a chore, she has accumulated many excellent recipes, a few of which are being featured today.

ONE recipe Mrs. Noreen has served for ladies luncheons, but finds equally nice for family meals, is an unusual combination of browned pork, onions and celery baked in a casserole with rice, cream of chicken soup and chopped green pepper.

Topped with buttered Ritz Cracker crumbs, it is a tasty dish which needs only a salad and rolls as accompaniments.

Mrs. Noreen's Orange Muffins are a delightful flavor complement for this casserole. Simple to prepare, the muffins contain raisins as well as grated orange rind and are spread with an orange juice topping while still hot. They are nice for morning coffees, too, and are a delicious breakfast treat!

ONE OF this capable cook's favorite salads is a refreshing Strawberry Jello Mold. This colorful salad has a layer of sour cream and mashed bananas molded between two layers of strawberry jello, studded with crushed pineapple and frozen strawberries. It is served with a tart fruit salad dressing.

And for dessert Mrs. Noreen has a recipe which she terms a "real favorite." Called a Pineapple Torte, it has a butter-sugar-flour crust which is baked, heaped with a pineapple filling and returned to the oven for an additional baking period. This delectable dessert is stored in the refrigerator and served topped with whipped cream.

AT JACK'S MARATHON (Across the Street from Red Owl!)

MEAL-IN-A-MINUTE. This elegant fare can be prepared in a jiffy with convenient canned foods. The menu features canned onion soup, given added zip with grated cheese; glazed luncheon meat with sweet potatoes, Frenched green beans, and a green salad. For dessert, a delectable tapioca pudding garnished with canned peaches.

Chicken Noodle Soup Mix

For a change from heavy meal fare, surprise your family with this Jellied Chicken Salad. It is an inexpensive light supper dish which boasts a built-in home cooked chicken flavor.

Made with a package of chicken noodle soup mix, the wholesome salad also features chopped celery, diced chicken, green pepper, olives and pineapple tidbits. Good go-together is crusty French bread, toasted and seasoned with garlic butter.

THE RECIPE is made by stirring the chicken noodle soup mix into boiling water and cooking for seven minutes. Then strain noodles and reserve broth. Noodles may be served as side dish, buttered and seasoned with salt and pepper.

For a piquant touch, try adding a teaspoon of caraway seeds, as well.

JELLIED CHICKEN SALAD

3 cups boiling water
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
¼ cup lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
1 (9-ounce) can (1 cup) pineapple tidbits, drained
2 cups diced cooked chicken
½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper
3 stuffed green olives, sliced

After making chicken broth according to above directions, soften gelatin in cold water for five minutes; dissolve in hot broth. Add the lemon juice and salt; then chill until the mixture is partially set.

Stir pineapple, chicken, and vegetables into the gelatin. Pour mixture carefully over sliced olives which have been placed in a 1-1½ quart mold. Chill. Serve on salad greens. Makes 6 servings. (SH

Meals from the Can Are Hasty and Tasty

There's a kitchen wizard in every community. The culinary sorceress can nip into the kitchen and emerge in a jiffy with a meal fit for royalty. Despite appearances, there's no magic involved. The lady undoubtedly has a deft hand with the can opener.

This little implement works as much magic as a wand, if the homemaker knows a variety of ways to use the available canned foods. She can choose from over 1,200 canned foods: juices, soups, relishes, vegetables, meats fish, fruits, and specialty items.

THANKS TO the canning industry, today's housewife has an invisible labor brigade that does all the work the cook formerly had to do. Before she bought the food, nimble fingers or machines have cleaned, peeled, diced, and cooked it. The shopper can buy well in advance, and lay in supplies for as long as she likes. If she lives in the West, she can still serve foods grown in the East; conversely, the Easterner needn't go without foods grown 3,000 miles to the west.

And the country over, all foods are in season at all times, thanks to the canning industry. Canned oysters, for instance, "R" in season in May, June, and July, as well as the more alphabetically favored months. Just about anything the kitchen wizard wants for her menu will emerge readily from the can.

FOR MORE than 21 million women who rush off daily to office and factory, canned foods are more than a boon—they are a necessity for preparing nutritious, well-balanced meals in a hurry. Few women will choose, after a day at work, to stop at the grocer's for fresh beans, for instance, and clean, trim, and cook them. Every working wife knows how much easier it is to reach for the canned vegetables on her cupboard shelf and simply turn them into a saucepan without fuss or bother.

In the "good old times," when Grandma spent the day in the kitchen, she had plenty of elbow room. The kitchen was as spacious as today's living room, and grandmother generally had a large pantry for food storage. In addition, the cellar, or "cool room," generally held her quantities of potatoes, apples, winter squash, pumpins, onions, and other bulky foods. Our hard-working ancestor had plenty of kitchen problems, but storage space wasn't among them.

IF A TIME machine could whisk grandmother into the modern compact kitchen, she would probably be shocked. Today's space, by comparison, is minuscule, particularly for the city apartment dweller. The bulky products that formerly took up as much room as the coal in the coal bin now come neatly packaged in cans or jars and may be stacked compactly on the cupboard shelves.

With the canned foods at her command, today's kitchen wizard has merely to wave her can opener wand to come up with a superb meal in minutes. (SS

Week's Best food buys

Lamb hasn't moved forward in keeping with the times despite sales promotion efforts. Temporary over supply ranks some cuts as a top spot value opportunity this week with a good bargaining position for the home freezer owner.

Pork and poultry also are better values on generally lower retail quotes. Beef and veal costs are a little higher, but this too is countered at the retail level by lagging sales.

Wholesale eggs are higher, with retail tags holding at steady levels when not promoted.

FRESH FRUITS and vegetables from Florida and Mexico are subject to change with each new weather report, as cold and wet conditions plague growers. West coast and more durable storage stocks offer better values.

The grocery wholesale index continues its snal pace climb, and now reads 5.3 points ahead of year-ago levels. Staples offer the most value opportunity.

Against this general market background, the University of Illinois consumer service notes these bargain buy items for the week ending January 28:

MEATS -- pork loin roasts and chops, lamb leg roasts, ground beef and rump roasts; poultry -- fryers, large eggs and stewing hens; produce -- tomatoes, lettuce, carrots, cabbage, celery, potatoes, grapefruit and apples.

Lamb -- this line almost rates a "distress sales" possibility in some stores on heavy supplies and slow demand. Store promotion efforts haven't moved substantial quantities. On this basis it becomes a good freezer-buy line as a spot value. Depending on stores, leg roasts quote 69 cents and often lower, shoulder roasts mostly 45-49 cents, shoulder chops generally 69 cents, and rib chops and loin chops revert to top quotes of 98 cents and $1.25 respectively.

PORK—generally lower at live and wholesale levels, with spareribs an exception. Expect retail tags to show rib roasts 33-39 cents, loin end roasts 43-49 cents, center cut chops 65-89 cents and sometimes lower, fresh Boston butts pivoting around a steady 49 cents, and spareribs ranging 49-59 cents. Last week's higher bacon prices "to slow movement" did just that. This week first lines again quote 69 cents, and as low as 59 cents on promotion, while second lines are seldom over 55 cents. Smoked butts receded from as high as 75-79 cents to a range of 49-69 cents that allows promotion opportunities. Smoked picnics range 39-43 cents.

Beef -- costs are up in the supply channels, but lagging sales counter the situation at retail to hold quotes generally steady, with some shading from the higher ranges. Blade cut chuck pot roasts seldom quote over 59 cents, round bone roasts 69 cents, 1st-4th rib cuts 75-79 cents, 5th-6th rib cuts 65-69 cents, rump and sirloin tip roasts 89-98 cents. In steaks, sirloin quotes 89 cents - $1.09, porterhouse 98 cents - $1.29, round, a top of 95 cents. Ground beef ranges 49-59 cents.

Poultry -- stewing hen factors reacted to the weaker egg market previously reported, and stewers dropped 1 cent to 2 cents at wholesale. They post a high of 43 cents on heavier weights, and can often be found for less. Fryers show a reaction to the beef and pork situation and quote a wider retail range of 29-37 cents. Turkeys range 39-49 cents. Despite a 2 cent increase at wholesale, following a period of declining costs, eggs are steady with a range of 55-65 cents showing across the board for large grade A.

SOME MARKET forecasts are available that hold promise of lower costs for consumers starting next month and continuing into spring.

Cattle and calves now on feed are at a record high that measures 7 per cent above the fall of 1959, the last low price period of note. When this supply starts to market about next month, prices are expected to fall.

A 5 per cent larger pig crop also is expected this spring, and should have a downward effect on prices later on.

The turkey population is expected to be 20 per cent greater, some 6,700,000 more birds and of heavier weight than year-ago, to forecast cheaper turkey prices.

Short-term, however, expect various factors -- weather, waning consumer demand, snarled eastern transportation, and the like -- to create supply and price fluctuations here. (SH

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Edward Rentz

We taste that which is bitter, salty, sour, or sweet. All others flavors are really odors and are detected, not by the tongue, but by the sense of smell.

These flavors are caused by a volatile oil in the flavoring material: In other words, this evaporates quickly when heated. So, when heated too long, the food loses its flavor. This is especially true of the most aromatic foods and flavorings.

It is well to remember that whatever passes off as fragrance during cooking is lost as flavor. Cooking flavoring is the same as throwing most of it away.

This little implement works as much magic as a wand, if the homemaker knows a variety of ways to use the available canned foods. She can choose from over 1,200 canned foods: juices, soups, relishes, vegetables, meats, fish, fruits, and specialty items.

THANKS TO the canning industry, today's housewife has an invisible labor brigade that does all the work the cook formerly had to do. Before she bought the food, nimble fingers or machines have cleaned, peeled, diced, and cooked it. The shopper can buy well in advance, and lay in supplies for as long as she likes. If she lives in the West, she can still serve foods grown in the East; conversely, the Easterner needn't go without foods grown 3,000 miles to the west.

And the country over, all foods are in season at all times, thanks to the canning industry. Canned oysters, for instance, "R" in season in May, June, and July, as well as the more alphabetically favored months. Just about anything the kitchen wizard wants for her menu will emerge readily from the can.

FOR MORE than 21 million women who rush off daily to office and factory, canned foods are more than a boon—they are a necessity for preparing nutritious, well-balanced meals in a hurry. Few women will choose, after a day at work, to stop at the grocer's for fresh beans, for instance, and clean, trim, and cook them. Every working wife knows how much easier it is to reach for the canned vegetables on her cupboard shelf and simply turn them into a saucepan without fuss or bother.

In the "good old times," when Grandma spent the day in the kitchen, she had plenty of elbow room. The kitchen was as spacious as today's living room, and grandmother generally had a large pantry for food storage. In addition, the cellar, or "cool room," generally held her quantities of potatoes, apples, winter squash, pumpins, onions, and other bulky foods. Our hardworking ancestor had plenty of kitchen problems, but storage space wasn't among them.

IF A TIME machine could whisk grandmother into the modern compact kitchen, she would probably be shocked. Today's space, by comparison, is minuscule, particularly for the city apartment dweller. The bulky products that formerly took up as much room as the coal in the coal bin now come neatly packaged in cans or jars and may be stacked compactly on the cupboard shelves.

With the canned foods at her command, today's kitchen wizard has merely to wave her can opener wand to come up with a superb meal in minutes. (SS

Patriotic Seminar Is Scheduled

The Sunday afternoon seminar to be held at Des Plaines VFW Club rooms, 2067 Miner st., will be of special interest to students currently studying the Declaration of Independence. The film to be shown deals with the signing of the document and presents it in an interesting fashion.

However, the address by Sidney L. De Love, Litt. D., will be concerned with "the betrayal of our country by unsuspecting Americans who have ignored the warning of Thomas Jefferson," "material abundance without character is the surest way to destruction."

THE honorary degree of Doctor of Letters was conferred on the speaker in 1959 by Quincy college, Quincy, Ill. He has also received five annual awards from the Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge for outstanding service to country.

The seminar will be held on Sunday, Jan. 29, beginning at 2 p.m. under the sponsorship of the Americanism Committee of Des Plaines Post 2992, VFW. Doors will open at 1:30 p.m. and the bar facilities will be closed on that day. (B8

The Sunday afternoon seminar to be held at Des Plaines VFW Club rooms, 2067 Miner st., will be of special interest to students currently studying the Declaration of Independence. The film to be shown deals with the signing of the document and presents it in an interesting fashion.

However, the address by Sidney L. De Love, Litt. D., will be concerned with "the betrayal of our country by unsuspecting Americans who have ignored the warning of Thomas Jefferson," "material abundance without character is the surest way to destruction."

THE honorary degree of Doctor of Letters was conferred on the speaker in 1959 by Quincy college, Quincy, Ill. He has also received five annual awards from the Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge for outstanding service to country.

The seminar will be held on Sunday, Jan. 29, beginning at 2 p.m. under the sponsorship of the Americanism Committee of Des Plaines Post 2992, VFW. Doors will open at 1:30 p.m. and the bar facilities will be closed on that day. (B8
